Atavistic Listeners.
Business Is Good.
Wonderful Corn Belt.
Wall Street Forgives.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

MILLIONS eagerly listened last night for the big fight's beginning. The listeners included some that would not have waited had they seen Moses coming down from the mountain with his message.

IT IS not fair to condemn intense prize fight interest as savagery. It is 80 per cent atavistic. We are separated by only 12,000 years, a moment in the earth's life, from ancestors whose lives depended every day on fighting ability.

Prize fight interest is the survival of a life struggle.

IT MAY interest you to know, in these doldrum dog days of politics and midsummer, that business goes ahead, cheerfully. Many big firms show great gains in "net."

Oil companies are cheerful. If Venezuela can be persuaded to handle her oil wealth wisely all will be serene.

RAILROADS are doing well. The Southern Pacific, excellently managed, made $21,843,134 this year's first six months, $1,857,115 more than last year.

They say—they being the wise ones—that we are to have a savage political campaign. But it is not hurting business.

PROF. SWEENEY, of Iowa State College, supplies important information about corn.

The Corn Belt is the earth's "greatest sponge for absorption and storage of the sun's heat." Heat units are stored in chemical compounds, and could be released. But they go to waste.

HEAT and power wasted in farm products, equivalent to hundreds of millions of tons every year, could be saved. One billion tons of raw stuffs, wasted every year, are equal to twice our tonnage of soft coal.

THE great crowds should live in the Corn Belt, use the power and food products there, instead of crowding, uneconomically, in big cities on the seashore, says the professor.

Already, 30,000 different uses are made of cereal products.

MEN will find a way to take the sun's heat direct, without farming to get it or storing it in vegetable growth. That will not come immediately. It would make us all too rich and lazy and we'd stop working.

WALL STREET forgets Bryan and forgives the Democratic party. A big Democrat banner swings in the Wall Street breeze. And W. H. Woodin, president of American Car and Foundry, and American Locomotive, and prominent in other great corporations, comes out for Gov. Smith.

Like Mr. Raskob, of General Motors, Mr. Woodin had been a member of the Republican Union League Club, and a Republican in politics.

Republicans will realize that they have a fight on their hands as time passes.

A WISE decision by Postmaster-General New reduces air mail charges to 5 cents for the first ounce. Above that weight the price is 10 cents.

This will stimulate air mail use, and thus promote aircraft building.

Business men should send circulars in air mail envelopes. Every one thus sent will be opened and read. That does not happen to all.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE visiting iron fields in Northern Minnesota, will see something more important than iron mines, in Minnesota's magnificent public schools.

The open pit iron mines near Hibbing are marvelous proofs of the Creator's generosity. But the open minds of children are ten million times more important, and Minnesota knows it.

WILL peace ladies and gentlemen kindly consider China and Japan? China's population is more than six times that of Japan; her wealth and territory infinitely greater than Japan's. As fighters, thinkers, in bravery and intelligence Chinese equal Japanese.

But China lives in dread of Japan, and at Japan's mercy, BECAUSE CHINA IS NEVER PREPARED.

THIS big, rich, peace-loving country could easily give a good imitation of China. Croesus showed his pile of gold to Solon, the wise man, and Solon said something that ought to be posted across the walls of the Senate and House, and in every room in the White House:

"IF ANY ONE COMES HAVING BETTER IRON THAN YOU, HE WILL BE MASTER OF ALL THAT GOLD."

LITTLE private wars, based on bootlegging, vice and extortion, proceed. Two are shot dead, riddled by machine gun fire, in St. Louis, a third in the party lives with six wounds.

In another St. Louis gang operation three were shot down, not killed.

IN CHICAGO, Salvator Canale, only 24, drove into his garage and never drove out. Men waited there in ambush. Six bullets in his head, no clues.

London and all Britain are horrified by our "murder carnival." We take it calmly. That's why we have it.

GIRL CASHIER JAILED, $9,000 MISSING

A gay career in which she indulged in numerous parties and spent money lavishly on fancy wearing apparel was checked, police say, by the arrest in Philadelphia yesterday of Marian C. Briggs, 28, former cashier of the Pittsburgh office of the Standard Life Insurance Company of America. She is charged with embezzlement in an information made before Alderman Thomas Flanigan.

Almost $9,000 was spent by the woman in the past year, is it alleged, or at least that amount was taken from the company. Elgin A. Hill, agent of the company, who filed the information, charged Miss Briggs with embezzling $8,948 in money, checks and other valuables.

According to Chief County Detective George A. Murren, who today received a telegram from Detective Chief Patrick J. McKewen, of Philadelphia, Miss Briggs disappeared 10 days ago. Her home is said to be at 4107 North Broad street, Philadelphia.

4 Escape Rockview Prison

Four convicts, two of them from Allegheny county, escaped from the State Penitentiary at Rockview yesterday, it was learned today at the Western Penitentiary.

Guards from the Rockview prison were scouring the nearby mountains today for the fugitives who escaped while they were working on a new reservoir.

The prisoners are Joseph Zetinski and Harry Allen. Assistant Parole Officer W. E. Gaffney, of the Western Penitentiary, said Zetinski was taken to Rockview on April 4, to serve three to six years for robbery, and Allen was admitted June 14, to serve one to two years for larceny.

GRAIN BELT IN FLAMES

WALLA WALLA, Wash., July 27.—(AP.)—Scattered clouds that greeted several hundred smoke-begrimed farmers and townsmen this morning held out some hope of assistance in fighting a fire that during the night swept the wheat lands of Eureka Flats, near here, for some 40 miles over a 10-mile front.

Raging since yesterday with little interference, the fire destroyed untold quantities of wheat and several farm homes and endangered lives.

Backed by a high wind the flames spread rapidly. It was reported that the Northern Pacific Railroad was filling tank cars with water at Pasco,

15 Insane Patients At Large

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 27.—(AP.)—Fire that destroyed the administration building of the Central State Hospital for the Insane near here early today sent the 7,272 occupants scantily clad scurrying from the other buildings of the institution. The administration building housed only the attendants and their families.

Guards who first drove the inmates from the dormitories to prevent their being burned to death, soon were dashing through the nearby woods and fields in a frantic effort to round up the more dan-

JAIL BANK TELLER

Caught in the recent stock market speculation flurry, Robert C. Haberkorn, former teller in the United States National Bank of Johnstown, attempted to recoup his losses by using bank funds, Department of Justice agents report.

In an information filed with the United States commissioner today, Haberkorn is accused of embezzling and misappropriating $66,000. His peculations may reach $91,000, agents say. Haberkorn is under arrest in the Cambria county jail at Ebensburg.

Special agents of the Department of Justice today in filing their informations, accused Haberkorn of converting $30,000, deposits of the National Radiator Company, to his own use on June 13. Between March 1 and June 25, he is alleged to have

RICKARD BARS RADIO AS "POISON" TO GATE

NEW YORK, July 27.—(AP.)—Radio, and "million dollar" fights don't mix, George L. (Tex) Rickard, promoter of last night's battle of the century, said today, and in the future his championship bouts will not be broadcast.

Rickard, whose Madison Square Garden Corporation lost over $150,000 on the Heeney-Tunney bout, blamed the radio and the 25 per cent Federal tax on all tickets over $5.

Thousands, who ordinarily would have paid to see the fight, either went to the theaters or stayed at home to hear the returns over the radio, Rickard said.

CAN'T BEAT RADIO AND TAX

"No, sir," Rickard said, "you can't beat both the tax and the radio. I can tell you right now, definitely, that this is the last big fight I shall promote which will be broadcast through the air."

Rickard lost about $155,719.77 on the fight, according to a detailed report issued today from Madison Square Garden. The figures, tabulated by 42 men in an overnight checkup of returns, showed the total intake to have been $691,014.50 and the net receipts to have been $521,422.23.

CLOSE VOTE AT WEST VIEW

Hoover led Smith on the voting machine operated by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph at West View Park yesterday, but the margin was small, the vote standing 42 to 41.

On the other five machines of the newspaper on which a straw vote is being taken throughout the city, Smith was a heavy favorite. Especially in the Second Ward. Here the Democrat polled 299 votes while the Republican candidate was favored by only 15 persons.

The City-County Building continues to roll up its majority for Smith, the count yesterday running two-to-one. Kennywood Park showed a two-to-one favor for "Al" Smith, also.

Almost 39,000 votes have been gathered by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in its test vote on the presidential candidates, with Smith credited with 23,150 of them. The voting has been spirited and interesting, with men and women alike crowding the machines to express their preference as between Hoover and Smith.

Starting next week there will be a canvass of the out-of-town districts, with machines located at Braddock and McKeesport for the week. In Braddock the vote will be taken at "The Smoke Shop," 735 Braddock avenue, and the Baltimore and Ohio Depot, McKeesport, will be the location for a machine in that community.

MOBS HISS NOBILE LANDING AT NORWAY

Two Say "Yes!" -:- Should Women Work and Be "Half-Wives?" -:- Four Shout "No!"

ANNE FERLIN

MRS. ANNE FERLIN, 24, 1114 Bidwell street, wife of Charles Ferlin, Paris newspaperman, says:

"I believe a woman should follow her career until there's a family; idleness is not good for a young woman, married or single!"

NAN ALLEN

NAN ALLEN, 19, 5013 Volt way, will never marry (she says), but she offers this:

"Certainly a married woman should make her husband support her! Men value that for which they pay—so a wife should be expensive."

KATHERINE HAGBLOOM

KATHERINE HAGBLOOM, 2610 Versailles avenue, McKeesport, has ideas of her own; thusly she speaks:

"Men, when women age, find younger wives, but I'll marry; in fact, I have the boy picked out. And I won't work, except in my own home."

PEGGY MARTIN

PEGGY MARTIN, 19, 854 Forty-second street, is engaged and won't name the boy, but will say:

"I don't want to be a 'half-wife.' But if my husband falls ill, then I'll work. It's then he'll need a good pal and someone to help out."

THELMA SMELTZ

THELMA SMELTZ, 20, 1205 Mill street, Wilkinsburg, has a little bit to say in this vein:

"I'm afraid I'm going to marry 'money.' I want pretty clothes and to boss a fine home. I'll work if I must and if I fall in love with a poor man."

MARGARET BORN

MARGARET BORN, 21, 5206 Clarwin avenue, West View, has a definite opinion and sets it forth:

"Financial independence for woman is a great thing. She should work and then she could provide luxuries. But make 'hubby' work, too, just as much."

CROWDS HISS NOBILE AT NORWAY

NARVIK, Norway, July 27.—(AP.)—The North's farewell to the survivors of the Italia when they started for home was hisses. Today they were rushing southward in a special car to Italy, where they will face an inquiry into their fatal trip to the Pole.

Cheers sped the airship on its way when it departed from Vadsoe on May 5 for the Arctic and the town was decked with bunting and flags in their honor. Hostility kept them aboard their base ship the Citti di Milano yesterday until the train was ready to take them home.

Gen. Umberto Nobile, commander of the dirigible, looked like a man broken physically and mentally. He was pale, thin and stooped and his haggard face showed plainly the strain of worry and illness.

CROWD REFUSES AID

When the Citta di Milano arrived at the little place of Fagernes, about two miles from Narvik, the crowd waiting on the quay ignored the appeals of the Italian crew to take the mooring rope cast ashore. A sailor was forced to jump to the quay to tie the ship and finally a boy of 11 pitied them and helped in the mooring.

Capt. Filippo Zappi, navigator of the airship, appeared on deck intending to go ashore to buy some clothes. There were hostile cries from the crowd on the quay and he decided to remain aboard the ship.

There was a military air about the vessel. Marines with bayonets fixed stood guard over the gangplank.

Nobile did not appear for some time after the ship had been moored. He was working in the cabin and it was stated he had been spending much time compiling a report of the expedition.

The Citta di Milano will return to the Spitzbergen region to aid in the searching operations for the six members of the Italia crew who drifted away in the balloon part of the airship after the crash. It will also aid in the hunt for Roald Amundsen and the five men missing with him.

ROME, July 27.—(INS.)—When Gen. Umberto Nobile and his fellow survivors of the Italia disaster arrive here from the Arctic early next week, probably on Tuesday, they will slip into Rome quietly. It will be a homecoming far from their dreams when they set out three months ago.

Instead of the plaudits and medals they had expected they will arrive to face a stern inquiry at the hands of Premier Mussolini to determine if negligence was responsible for the disaster on May 25, when the dirigible was wrecked in a storm between the North Pole and Spitzbergen.

INQUEST HOLDS DRIVER FOR AUTO DEATH TRIAL

Edward Griffith, of near Elizabeth, was orderd held on a charge of manslaughter by a coroner's jury following an inquest into the death of Sylvester Neel, 25, of Mifflin township, who died in McKeesport Hospital July 14, the result of an accident in Glassport, June 9. Neel and several companions were in Griffith's auto when it skidded and crashed into a pole. It was testified the party had consumed several bottles of beer.

15 PATIENTS AT LARGE

gerous patients and quiet those terror-stricken by the flames. Messengers were sent by police to warn residents for miles around.

PATIENTS FLEE

Torches in the hands of guards blazed as they sought out the inmates known to be dangerous and tried to form a cordon around the grounds. Most of the inmates stood quietly at a distance watching the fire, but others, screaming in terror, fled down the road and into nearby fields. A drizzling rain soaked them and caused men and women to shiver as they stood in their night clothes.

In all some 350 patients escaped for a time from the control of the guards, but within a few hours a check showed that all except 15 had been rounded up. Those still at large included two homicidal maniacs, Jesse McPherson of Nashville and Samuel Kemper of Wilson county, and another man listed as criminally insane, but whose name was not learned.

No loss of life was reported.

MOTHERS ASK MORE POLICE IN TRAFFIC QUESTIONNAIRE

Many practical and some unique suggestions are made by 17,000 Pittsburgh mothers in their replies to the Better Traffic Committee's questionnaire on how to make streets safer for children.

One mother would inflict the death penalty on drivers whose vehicles kill children.

Another suggests that drivers be permitted by law to spank children over 6 who run in front of moving vehicles.

One would fine parents for permitting children to play on the streets.

And one mother apparently would ban automobiles altogether as she suggested, "a garage for every car and every car in a garage."

But as the committee, headed by Walter Rosenbaum, analyzed the stacks of replies they found one outstanding demand on the part of mothers—for more traffic officers.

More than 1,000 mothers made that suggestion and almost as many suggest more playgrounds so that children will not be tempted to play in streets.

Of the mothers who see the need of more traffic policemen more than 200 name specific street intersections and other points where the need is apparent.

The report made following the analysis of the replies to the questionnaire, which was distributed to the mothers through public and parochial school children during the recent Pedestrian Week, commented on the lack of concerted opinion, except in a few isolated instances on accident prevention means.

embezzled $6,600 transmitted by the United States Treasury to the Johnstown bank in payment for mutilated money returned to the Treasury and on June 22 to have misappropriated cash letters totaling $30,000 from the Federal Reserve Bank at Philadelphia, which he used and did not enter until later.

IN JAIL MONTH

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 27.—Robert C. Haberkorn, 34, for 16 years an employe of the United States National Bank here, has been in jail for almost a month, following his arrest on a charge of embezzlement. He has been active in financial circles and is said to be the owner of a large chicken farm near Blairsville. He was treasurer of a foreign fraternal society and of a battery company.

PHYSICIAN HELD FOR WIFE'S MURDER

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., July 27.—(AP.)—In a courtroom crowded with spectators, half of whom were women, Dr. H. H. Hoffman, 40, of Ashley, was ordered held today without bail for the murder of his wife, Gladyce, 32. The physician was immediately hurried to the Luzerne county prison, where he will remain until the September grand jury acts on his case.

Dr. Hoffman was brought before Judge John V. Kosek at 10 a. m. for the first public hearing held since the physician's wife was found battered to death in her bedroom early last Sunday morning. The prisoner was calm and showed no emotion as he heard a county detective testify that a confession had been obtained from him. The prosecution failed to go into details of the story told by the physician and after a prima facie case had been made out the court committed the defendant to prison without bail.

The district attorney's office has announced that Dr. Hoffman has signed a statement in which he admits battering his wife with a hammer while the woman was in bed. An hour after the crime the physician aroused neighbors to tell them that a strange man and woman had forced entrance to his home and after binding and gagging him, attacked his wife. He stuck to this version for two days while held at the state police barracks here, but finally confessed, according to the prosecuting attorney, that he had slain his wife because of alleged infidelity.

Wash., and rushing them to the scene of the fire.

In addition, more than 50,000 acres of spring sheep pasture had been burned over. Many sheep camps and buildings were burned. Farmers said that the fire had advanced into the best part of the wheat land on the flat and they felt it was impossible to head the onrushing flames.

Telephone wires were down and roads blocked in the section, and it was impossible to get accurate estimates of the destruction. Reports here said at least 10 farm homes had been burned.

Many farmers packed their belongings and, turning their livestock loose on plowed ground, fled the area

Several ranchers said they barely escaped with their lives while attempting to save their ranch homes.

Two warehouses are known to have been destroyed, but the amount of grain lost was not known.

Sweltering heat, which has held over this district for five days, had hurried the ripening of wheat and burned brown large grazing sections, providing perfect fuel. Several small towns received refugees from the endangered areas.

The conflagration was reported to have started along the Northern Pacific tracks near Attalia, Wash., and the flames quickly raced up and down the right-of-way.

Farmers, with hastily-harnessed teams, worked through the night turning furrows in vain attempts to stop the flames, which jumped over the newly-plowed ground and ate further into the waving grain.

COX, DAVIS FIGHT FOR SMITH

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Democratic campaign managers today answered the incipient "bolt movement" in the South with the announcement that two national standard bearers of previous years had enlisted "for the duration of the war" in the front ranks of the aggressive Smith-Robinson forces.

They are James M. Cox, of Ohio, and John W. Davis, of West Virginia, Democratic presidential nominees of 1920 and 1924, respectively.

Davis told Chairman John J. Raskob he is subject to call for any part the national executive committee may select for him in the campaign.

Cox, who came to New York to see the Tunney-Heeney financial disaster, was a caller at headquarters today. Raskob indicated clearly that he had a major role in the campaign selected for the former Ohio Governor, but declined to reveal the nature of the job.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was Cox's running mate in 1920, is a member of the executive committee.

SMITH, RITCHIE CONFER

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, who was himself a presidential candidate against Smith in the Houston convention, was a third party stalwart to enlist in the campaign today.

"My first job will be to carry Maryland for Smith and Robinson," Ritchie said, "but I am subject to call for duty in the national campaign wherever I can be of service."

Gov. Smith invited Ritchie to New York for "just a talk" today. Smith is scheduled to arrive from Albany late this afternoon. He will take dinner with Ritchie and then hurry to Good Ground, L. I., for a long week-end, far from the dizzy din of presidential politics.

The Democratic drive for the labor vote was launched today under direct supervision of George L. Berry, president of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union, and one of the founders of the American Legion.

HARD BLOW IN SOUTH

The public announcement of former Senator Robert L. Owen, of Oklahoma, that he would support Herbert Hoover and the withdrawal of Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, as a member of the Democrat national committee struck a heavy blow at national headquarters, despite the outward calm with which they were received. Neither was expected and the repercussion served to emphasize in the minds of the national strategy board the significance of the prospective campaign in the "Solid South." Before the Simmons and Owen statements, the South was taken for granted. Now the territory is receiving serious consideration.

ST. VINCENT'S RETREAT OPENS

ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE, BEATTY, Pa., July 27.—In the venerable college chapel, around which are clustered historical memories of Western Pnnsylvania, the first period of the fourteenth annual retreat under the auspices of the Diocesan Union of the Holy Name Society opened here Wednesday night with representatives from parishes of the 10 counties of the diocese. Father James M. Delaney is the spiritual director of the union.

The Rt. Rev. Dr. Francis C. Kelley, author, editor, founder of the extension society that made possible the spread of Catholic missions throughout the poor and more sparsely settled sections of the South and West, is in charge of the retreat. This retreat movement, emphasizing the spiritual side of man's nature, had its inception 14 years ago at St. Vincent's, when a band of laymen, under the leadership of Joseph A. Beck, of Pittsburgh, secured permission from the late Bishop Canevin to take up the work which has since spread throughout the United States and Canada.

The Rt. Rev. Aurelius Stehle, archabbot, by placing at the disposal of the Holy Name Society the buildings and grounds of St. Vincent's College, has made possible these mid-summer retreats, which combine spiritual exercises with a wide latitude for outdoor recreation: a broad lake for swimming and boating, tennis courts, baseball grounds, hiking and golf. The seminary building, containing 180 rooms with bath and running water in each room, houses the retreatants. The meals are served by Caterer Renilla of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Tilden, Cochet Win

ROLAND GARROS STADIUM, PARIS, July 27.—Bill Tilden, America's ace of aces, scored one of the greatest victories of his career on the courts today in winning the first singles match of the Davis Cup challenge round from his arch-rival, Rene LaCoste, of France, 1-6, 6-4, 6-4, 2-6 and 6-3.

In the second singles Johnny Hennessey, the smiling Irish lad from Indianapolis, succumbed to the wizardry of Henri Cochet's inspired stroking.

The scores were 5-7, 9-7, 6-3 and 6.0.

Clipping Bureau Clips Quarters From Curious

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 27.—Many residents of Washington county are victims of a clever clipping bureau scheme, which apparently is netting a nice return. The firm is sending letters notifying persons that it has clippings of items of interest relating to them. Most persons receiving the letters are curious enough to pay 25 cents to get the clipping. When they receive it they find that it is an item which has been clipped from their home town newspapers.

HOOVER TO CARRY PA. —MORIN

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., July 27.—(AP.)—With his fellow Californians eager to pay tribute to him as the foremost citizen of the state, Herbert Hoover today assumed the role of one just returned from afar, for the occasion of his homecoming reception, postponed at the time of his arrival because of the death of Mrs. Hoover's father.

The program called for receptions in San Francisco and in the towns that crowd upon one another's heels along the 30 miles and more of the peninsula stretching southward from the Golden Gate.

Representative John Morin, of Pittsburgh, who is traveling in California with his family, called to convey greetings from Senator-elect William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, and assurances that Vare is for the nominee "progressively."

Morin, the Vare leader in Pittsburgh, predicted not only that Pennsylvania would go Republican, but that the Vare stronghold of Philadelphia would return a very substantial majority for the Hoover-Curtis ticket.

The Pittsburgh representative in Congress also told Mr. Hoover that information he had obtained in his recent travels over the country led him to the conclusion that the strength of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic nominee, was at flood tide, and that the Republican ticket would continue to gain.

NEW YORK, July 27.—(AP.)—Senator George H. Moses, vice chairman of the eastern Republican advisory committee, is opposed to an invasion of the Solid South for the purpose of securing electoral votes for Herbert Hoover, because he believes it would be useless.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that was central over Minnesota yesterday is now centered over lower Michigan and the adjacent lakes. The low pressure area covers the entire lake region and the Ohio Valley states. It is producing cloudy weather generally over the Ohio Valley states and the entire Northeast and mostly light showers throughout the low pressure area and southward to the gulf. Thunderstorms occurred also in Western South Dakota and Western Nebraska, and in Colorado and Wyoming.

High pressure centered over the Canadian Northwest and extending southward over the central plains is separating the eastern low from a low over the plateau section west of the Rockies.

River Conditions.

There were light showers at scattered places in the river basins, but not enough rain to affect the rivers. However, more rain is expected today, which may start slight rises. Stage at Pittsburgh is 11.6 feet; Dam No. 2, 7.7, and Dam No. 6, 8.2 feet. All the dams are up.

GENE TUNNEY RETAINS WORLD TITLE

CHALLENGER TAKES BAD BEATING

one year before he won the heavyweight championship from Jack Dempsey at Philadelphia, Gene Tunney, master boxer and intellectual giant of the ring, turned fighter to technically knock out Tom Heeney in the eleventh round of their scheduled 15-round bout at the Yankee Stadium last night.

He just beat a torrential downpour of rain to end the show, for the crowd had barely got out of the arena before the cloudburst descended, first as a fine spray and then in a deluge with accompanying thunder and lightning.

Despite the thrilling battle that Tunney staged in entering the ranks of "killer fighters," the fight was a losing proposition financially. It was estimated by those in the know that Rickard and his Madison Square Garden associates stand to lose in the neighborhood of $155,000.

"KILLER" TOO LATE

Tunney became a killer too late to save the pocketbook of the promoters.

The conditions of the storm were not dissimilar to those of the night Gene first defeated Dempsey, and newspaper men, finishing up their stories at the ringside, were forced to seek cover as their operators' instruments were washed out. There was a general rush, the same as at Philadelphia, for drier quarters in which to complete filing the stories.

The big battle of the year was a washout in more ways than one. Promoter Tex Rickard's financial sock on the chin was even heavier than Heeney's beating. Between 40,000 and 50,000 persons saw the fight, and the receipts were so disappointing that Rickard declined to announce them to the scribes at the ringside, as is his custom at such affairs.

It was estimated by box office employes that the gate would not exceed $600,000, which isn't enough to pay the guarantees for the main bout. Heeney received $100,000 in addition to his pasting, while Tunney dragged down a cool $525,000.

As a fighter Tunney made the grade with his greatest scoffers, his home town folks, and it is a sure bet that the next time he steps out to defend his laurels, if his opponent is a worthy challenger, it will be before a regular heavyweight championship crowd.

The fans didn't like the clever-boxing Tunney and they didn't think much of Heeney. Their valuation of Tom was correct and they couldn't be blamed very much for staying away from the stadium in such large numbers.

All Heeney did was what he was expected to do—take it. And he took it long enough to satisfy the most bloodthirsty human. He didn't have a chance, and the only question from the start was how long he could stand up under the barrage of blows that rained upon his jaw and body.

Heeney was not actually knocked out for two reasons. One was that the bell saved him in the tenth round and the other was that the referee intervened before a similar break could come his way in the next session.

The arbiter, Eddie Forbes, an official of long experience, took compassion on the willing lad from far-off New Zealand and stopped the slaughter with Tom still on his feet, but very, very groggy and ticketed for slumberland.

Just as the bell hit at the end of the tenth round, Heeney had gone crashing to the canvas, there to groan and writhe in pain.

He was down more than 10 seconds before his handlers, stunned by his collapse, were able to clamber through the ropes and drag his 203½ pounds of bruised flesh and bones to his corner.

There he was in such bad shape that it appeared doubtful that he would be able to come up for another round. His seconds worked frantically over him, dousing with water, shaking his head, feeding him smelling salts and standing him up.

At the bell they shoved him out to meet his doom, and he made a brave stand, only to bow to the inevitable.

Tunney did not lose a round. There never was a time that he wasn't sure of himself and it was evident from the first bell that he was out to win by a knockout. In fact, as I wrote yesterday that he would, he made a big bid for a decisive victory in the very first round.

His first punch of the fight was a driving right cross to the chin, as it was against Dempsey at Philadelphia, and he kept on throwing right-handers to the chin throughout the round, leaving himself open to Heeney's short and ineffective counters at close quarters.

So furious was the fighting in this frame that the crowd cheered itself hoarse as the men went to their corners at the bell. Learning that the Hard Rock was not the sort of a man to be taken by hard punches in the early stages, Tunney then tempered his attack. He set his own pace, alternately boxing and slugging—and there is no finer judge of the pace in the ring than this champion.

Heeney, for his part kept walking into the champion, even as he was figured to walk in against the thunderer. He soaked up punishment in to that time he had kept coming on, time it seemed he might make good his boast of outlasting his opponent to win the title.

But no man without a superb defense could withstand the Tunney of last night. The rasping lefts and crashing rights to the jaw and the left hooks to the liver and right smashes to the body went home with devastating effect until finally even the Hard Rock crumbled, and his collapse, when it came, was quite sudden.

Heeney first began to shed blood in the fourth round, when a stream came from his nose that continued throughout the fight. In the fifth round he missed a swing and fell awkwardly to the floor. The eighth round saw the plodding challenger take his first backward step. Up to that time he had kept coming on, everlastingly coming on, in the face of a storm of gloves.

Now, however, he suddenly gave ground, pawing at his left eye and blinking as he went. The crowd went wild as it scented the kill. Tunney piled in and battered poor Tom about. Then he suddenly stopped.

Tom appeared to be in dire distress. His eye was closed and he was groping about blindly. Taking heart with the momentary cessation of hostilities by Gene, Tom moved in close and tried to rest up. He did a little mixing inside and this brought back Tunney's fighting mood and he again hammered Tom until the bell, with the latter hanging on at every opportunity.

In his corner, Heeney's seconds began to set up a claim that their man's eye had been injured by being thumbed, but Tunney, immediately after the bout, took occasion to ridicule this contention.

"Why should I do a thing like that?" he asked. "I struck him on the temple with a hard right and paralyzed his optic nerve. I knew that the moment he began to grope and blink, and I purposely stepped back to keep from blinding him."

This eye trouble was the beginning of the end for Heeney. The eye was open again as he came up for the ninth round, but in the first few exchanges Tunney knocked a cut over it which bled freely.

Then Gene went to the kill in a decisive manner, proceeding to butcher the New Zealander without mercy. He mixed his attack to the body and head and Heeney was tired and hurt at the bell.

Tunney, the master workman, gave an exhibition of coolness and deliberation as he came up for the tenth round. He grabbed a clinch as his first move and turned Heeney partly around and held him there while he took a good look at the cut eye, which had been patched up by Heeney's seconds during the rest period.

Then, when they broke he took a punch at it and reopened the gash, loosing a flood of blood. Heeney began a rally and Tunney backed to the ropes, punching as he went. He nailed the challenger with a full-arm right swing to the body that caused Tom to sag in the middle, and the finish was close at hand.

Gene followed with a two-fisted attack and drove Heeney to the ropes, where he floored him with a thud just as the bell rang. All was confusion. As stated before, Heeney's seconds were so befuddled that they were unable to get to their man before the referee would have had time to count him out.

Roughly handled in his corner, Tom was brought back to a state of consciousness and when he was pushed out for the eleventh round he went on a straight line for Tunney and threw a wild right for the head. Tunney met him with a stiff left jab and battered his right over the heart. Heeney traded a few punches and then held in two clinches.

Tunney drove two rights to the body and then a left to the body and Heeney went reeling into a neutral corner. As Tunney closed in, Tom grabbed a clinch and dragged after Gene to the center of the ring.

Tunney was trying hard to finish the challenger and began to become a bit over-anxious. He floundered once or twice and a ringsider yelled, "Steady, Gene; don't lose your class." As if hearing the injunction, Gene straightened up and backed Heeney into the ropes with a left.

Tom made his last stand, with his back to the strands. Bracing himself, he threw both fists, fighting off Tunney. Gene then got him in mid-ring and backed him into the champion's corner, where he battered him with both fists.

Tom was out on his feet, but still trying doggedly to fight back when, with eight seconds of the round remaining, the referee wisely interceded and stopped one of the most one-sided and yet one of the most interesting fights over a route the heavyweight division has seen in years.

Tunney's exhibition of fighting and punching power was a revelation to many who had seen Heeney in his eight other fights in this country, in which he fought his way through the heavyweight eliminations to get his chance at the championship. It was the first time Heeney ever had been knocked out, and he was cut up as badly about the head and beaten as soundly about the body as was Dempsey in either of his fights with Tunney. There was nothing fluky or lucky about Tunney's triumph. He won it with what his detractors always have said he lacks—a wallop.

Tunney last night was not as fast as he was against Dempsey, but this was traceable to the fact that he was deliberately setting himself to punch hard. He left himself open to more counter punches than he usually does, but he likely did not fear Heeney's blows and had to take some of them to step in and send his own home with telling force.

At times he did not appear to exhibit the same brilliance he has in the past, but the results he obtained justified his fighting plan. He was out to knock out an admittedly sturdy foe, and he sacrificed much to the achievement of this ambition.

Tunney weighed 192 pounds when he scaled in shortly after flying here from his camp at Speculator, N. Y. His opponent, who came up on a yacht from his New Jersey camp, scaled 203½. Both were in prime condition, splendidly attuned for hard fight, and neither bore any marks from his training bouts.

Jack Dempsey, the old Manassa Mauler, was introduced before the main bout and his appearance in the ring was the signal for a roar of applause that shook the portals of the stadium and far eclipsed the ovations for Tunney and Heeney combined.

GENE GETS NEW LIBRARY

STAMFORD, Conn., July 27.—Gene Tunney is expected here today to inspect his new home, which he intends to occupy in the near future. The library in the domicile of the heavyweight champion is stocked with 40 volumes of books, including some of Shakespeare's works.

POLICE ELECT PITTSBURGHER

HAZLETON, Pa., July 27.—Daniel T. McKelvey, of Hazleton, again headed the Pennsylvania Police Chiefs' Association today after his re-election at the organization's convention here late yesterday. Louis Leff, of Pittsburgh, is chairman of the reorganized executive committee.

Bethlehem will have the 1929 convention. Laws to connect all cities of more than 10,000 population with Harrisburg for the telegraphic exchange of crime news; for civil service for police in boroughs and townhips, and for regulation of the sale of firearms in the state will be worked upon by a committee including Louis Leff, Pittsburgh, and Thomas Flynn, Duquesne.

G. O. P. CHIEFS WON'T FINANCE DRYS

FUNDS DENIED PROFESSIONAL ANTI-WETS

By WILLIAM S. NEAL,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—The Republican National Committee will not finance the multitudinous new dry organizations already springing up over the country for action in the presidential campaign.

This was made clear by officials of the national organization who today were engaged in completing the loose ends of their estimates upon which National Chairman Work and Treasurer Nutt will definitely fix a budget.

Reports have reached Washington that many professional dry organizers whose scope of activities has been outside of the regular channels of the Anti-Saloon League were preparing to descend upon the city with an urgent plea for funds.

Among the most prominently mentioned of these many organizations are the anti-Smith Democrats which emanated from the recent conference of Southern drys at Asheville. Unless there is a change of heart on the part of campaign leaders, it is unlikely that any of these organizations will be permitted to dig into the millions raised for the National Committee.

At the headquarters of the Anti-Saloon League it was indicated by officials, in the absence of General Superintendent F. Scott McBride, that no such request would be sent to Chairman Work.

RESERVES TO GO TO SEA

Some 50 officers and enlisted men of the Sixth Separate Division, Fourth District, United States Naval Reserve, whose headquarters are in Pittsburgh, will leave here tonight for Philadelphia, where they will board the destroyer U. S. S. Putnam for a 15-day training cruise off the eastern coast. These reserves replace the regulars who have been granted leaves, and will receive training during the cruise.

The personnel includes:

Lieuts. J. H. Cox, H. F. Dickerson, R. S. Lawson, S. D. Fulton, August Saska and Alan D. Reynolds and H. J. Roth; H. J. McLaughlin, S. T. Baran, N. Best, C. W. McDade, F. J. Couts, J. C. Lindsay, J. ## "INVESTS" LIFE SAVINGS GETS 20 CHIPS OF GLASS

Instead of the $2,750 which he had saved with more than 30 years' effort, the life savings of Abe Graff, 62, of Monessen, were represented today by 20 pieces of glass—sold to him as diamonds.

Two men came to the junk shop in Monessen in which Graff works. One man owned these "diamonds," the other, an acquaintance of Graff wanted to borrow the money to buy them, so he said. It ended with Graff doing the buying.

When examined by a jeweler the diamonds were found to be genuine, but while Grass went to a bank to get his money the bits of glass were substituted.

Graff came to Pittsburgh yesterday to try to identify the men from pictures in the rogues' gallery. He told county detectives he had intended to bestow the money on a home for the aged and then take up residence in the home. He has returned to his junk shop job.

ANIMAL RESCUE LEAGUE HOLDS PICNIC TOMORROW

The activities of the Animal Rescue League will be presented to those interested in its work at an outing to be held tomorrow afternoon at the League farm on Verona road. Contests in which the participants will be dogs, addresses by public officials and a basket picnic will be features of the outing. Hot and cold drinks will be served. A general invitation has been extended.

SHERIFF DRAWS VEIL ON HAMMER MURDER PROBE

POLICE WORK IN SECRET ON CASE

LAKE CITY, Fla., July 27.—(AP.)—Police and sheriff's forces worked in secrecy today preparing for an inquest into the death of G. W. Simmons, aged and wealthy Ohioan, whose body was found by the roadside several days ago, his skull crushed with a hammer.

Meanwhile the search for Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Booth, missing honeymooners who were seen last with the Steubenville tourist, continued without apparent result. Mrs. Booth was his favorite grandchild. Before leaving Ohio with them two months ago, Simmons was said to have disposed for cash of "a large amount of real estate."

A blood-stained automobile identified as a car Simmons had bought for the couple before they came to a tourist camp here, was held by Jacksonville police.

The body is held for the inquest and arrival of Ohio relatives.

OLD SCHOOL REPLICA IS ERECTED IN OHIO

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., July 27.—Lieut. Gov. William C. Pickerel and State School Superintendent John L. Clifton, are to be two of the speakers next Sunday at the dedication of the log building replica of the "first school erected west of the Alleghenies," July 29, 1773 on the site of Shoenbrunn, east of New Philadelphia. Mr. W. J. Holland, Pittsburgh, chairman of the Carnegie Hero Fund and former chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh, wrote the committee that Schoenbrunn school and church preceded those in Pittsburgh.

NOVEL FIREWORKS AT NATIONAL PARK

Fireworks strung to a balloon cable 1,200 feet in the air will be set off tonight at the National Amusement Park, Freeport road, above Aspinwall. On Sunday "Honey" Skelton will jump in a parachute from a balloon basket suspended 1,500 feet in the air.

Hero! Hero!

J. D. M'PHERSON

When a runaway horse, dragging a bakery wagon, tore loose for a block in Diamond street, it met at Wood street its conqueror, Traffic Patrolman J. D. McPherson. He stopped the horse, as any hero would. And this is what he said: "That horse was going the wrong way on a one-way street. It went past a stop sign and it violated the speed limit. Call the wagon!"

TWO PINE TWP. FARMS AND GARAGE RAIDED

Prohibition agents and constables ventured into the open spaces of Pine township early today and raided two farms and a garage. Carl and Joseph Duffick were arrested at a garage on Perry highway, near Wexford, where the agents reported seizing beer and moonshine. Home brew beer and moonshine were seized at the farms, the agents reported, but no arrests were made.

TWO DWELLINGS BURN; FIRE LAID TO TRAMPS

Fire, believed to have been started by tramps early this morning, destroyed two unoccupied dwellings at 1812 and 1814 Bigelow boulevard. The loss was estimated at about $3,000, according to Fire Chief Ford. Firemen had to lay more than 1,000 feet of hose to the blaze.

VESS DRY

Nature alone contributes to the goodness of Vess Dry

IT is easy to understand why Vess Dry has made such an instantaneous hit in town. Real Jamaica ginger instead of capsicum which makes ordinary ginger ale so hot and peppery—real cane sugar instead of saccharine, the cheaper and unpleasant-tasting substitute—fine fruit essences and spices—and the purest of sparkling water.

That's the recipe for Vess Dry—just the best that nature affords. Small wonder that people say it is better than other ginger ales selling at its price, that it is superior, even, to many costing far more.

How we counter-balance the extra cost of these fine ingredients

We realized that we couldn't use these fine ingredients in Vess Dry and sell it for 5 cents if we dressed up the bottle with fancy labels, gold foil and other unnecessary trimmings. We knew that we couldn't keep it at this price if forced to add the express charges to this city on bottles and water. So we decided to use the best ingredients obtainable and make up for this expense by selling it in our own distinctive bottles and having it bottled right here in your city.

Make this test today

It costs you but five cents to decide whether you would rather pay additional for labels and frills which you cannot drink. Just spend that amount for a bottle of Vess Dry at any of the town's better drug, grocery and confectionery stores and soft drink stands.

Individual Size 5¢ the bottle

When dry ask for VESS DRY

LIBERTY BRIDGE BRINGS SHIFT IN TRAFFIC

Effects of the redistribution of traffic brought about by the use of the Liberty Bridge are noted in a recommendation forwarded yesterday by the Better Traffic Committee to city council, that the one way street regulations on Diamond street be increased to include those sections of the thoroughfore from Ross street to Smithfield street and from Market street to Ferry street.

It was explained by the committee that much of the bridge traffic makes the left turn on Forbes street into Diamond street and the two-way regulations now in effect seriously interfere with the rapid movement of this traffic into the lower downtown section. The extension of the one-way regulations to include all of Diamond street, also would serve to eliminate a number of left turns which seriously interfere with traffic, particularly the left turn from Grant into Diamond street, east of Grant, the left turn from Diamond to Grant and the left turn from Ferry to Diamond street. The one way direction would be east to west throughout the length of Diamond street.

GUARDS BATTLE AMID HILLS

CAMP HENDERSON, MOUNT GRETNA, Pa., July 27.—(AP.)—Enviously eyeing their more fortunate comrades, 800 soldiers of the One Hundred Eleventh and One Hundred Twelfth Infantry Regiments late yesterday marched off to the hills to spend the night in bivouac, while the rest of the 4,000 Pennsylvania National Guardsmen in training here were listening to the radio returns of the Tunney-Heeney fight. A radio with a special loud speaking attachment was placed in the large athletic bowl

Meanwhile, the others pitched their shelter tents on Fountainhead field, about two miles from the permanent camp, on a maneuver which will keep them in the field until noon today. There, outposts were stationed and scouting parties designated. At daybreak, they were to meet in a "battle" involving defense of a pass in the hills. A One Hundred Eleventh group represents the offensive and the One Hundred Twelfth the defending unit.

WIDOW MAY GET CONGRESS SEAT

CHICAGO, July 27.—(INS.)—Mrs. Laura Rathbone, widow of Congressman-at-Large Henry R. Rathbone, probably will be tendered the honor of serving her husband's unexpired term by the Republican State Committee today.

Her name has been suggested and has met with approval of leaders, it is understood.

If elected at a special election probably in November, Mrs. Rathbone would serve until the new Congress convenes in March. That would give her three months in Congress.

BRITISH FIGHTING FANS SIT UP FOR RADIO NEWS

LONDON, July 27.—(AP.)—Fight and sporting fans in Great Britain were well rewarded for sitting up to early morning to hear the Tunney-Heeney fight broadcast from New York. Reception through relay and on a direct wave was regarded as excellent with little atmospherics to interfere with the announcer, as he told the story, round by round. Some commentators praised with ungrudging admiration the announcer's remarks during Heeney's good showing in the early rounds. The excitement at the end was envisaged when the announcer's shouted remarks became less clear through excited utterance.

RIVER GETS NEW VICTIM AS ONE BODY IS FOUND

BEAVER, July 27.—While the body of John Walton, 11, Industry, was recovered from the Ohio river yesterday, the river added another victim in Robert Fox, 30, Monaca Heights, formerly of Templeton, Pa. Fox, employed as Government carpenter on the Legionville dam, was fishing when he stepped from shallow water into a 20-foot hole. Two small boys gave the alarm. The body was recovered.

KITTANNING WOMAN FALLS INTO OLD WELL

KITTANNING, Pa., July 27.—Mrs. Ada Heilman, 68, widow, fell 36 feet into an abandoned well when planks above the opening broke under her weight. There was no water in the well. She was picking berries near Elderton when the accident occurred.

The August Sales

Invite Your Consideration
Advance Inspection Days—Saturday (Until One)
Monday and Tuesday

FURNITURE

THE PRE-VIEW! Two and a half days to see what opportunities the August Sale of Furniture holds for you! The stage is set---the green tags are on the special offerings---charming settings of furniture to suggest uses in your own home are arranged---and hundreds of pieces and suites are displayed. Come tomorrow until one o'clock---Monday and Tuesday all day, to leisurely inspect and check the values, in any way you desire.

Furniture of Today—Furniture of Quality—Furniture of Decorative Merit At Amazingly Low August Sale Prices

For this August Sale our greatest efforts have been concentrated toward meeting the demand for furniture for such homes as those many charming modest ones that are being constructed in considerable numbers, throughout the outlying districts of Pittsburgh. Bringing to them that character, quality, taste and beauty upon which the Horne reputation has been founded.

The furniture of today, following the important new decorative trends. It is selected under the same guiding hand that directs our extensive decorating activities. It is furniture representing the choice selections of this country's foremost makers. Furniture that will be lived with for years — an integral part of your lives—that will carry Horne's name into tomorrow.

The Dream Cottage Re-Furnitured

Visit the Dream Cottage before the sale. It has been refurnitured at sale prices with the idea of being a splendid illustration of how attractive and livable a small house may be made at a very low cost.

Deferred Payments Arranged

A plan of deferred payments has been arranged which adds to the inducement of the August Sale savings. You make a moderate first payment and pay the balance on a convenient schedule.

FURS

The great fact of interest in this year's August Fur Sale, a fact which will make women eager to inspect the garments at the earliest possible opportunity, is that every coat in the sale is a new model!

Furthermore, all of our coats are made of new skins, fresh, supple pelts from the most reliable sources.

Striking, new style features will be presented—new collars, new cuffs, new side flares, new combinations of furs, and new treatments which glorify even those furs which heretofore have been regarded as commonplace.

Coats Will Be Displayed on Models

During the Days of Inspection—tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday—mannequins will wear the sale's outstanding models in an informal showing given in the department.

A 25% deposit will reserve any coat selected.

BEDDING

The event that each year plays an important part in the buying plans of housewives, institutions and hotels—an event of recognized value-giving, when fall and winter requirements are given thoughtful consideration and are anticipated.

Complete stocks of fresh, new Horne merchandise are offered—blankets in a variety of qualities and types to suit every preference for style and price—comforts, bed spreads, standard grade sheets and pillow cases. And the prices will decidedly point to the economy of buying liberally.

The Sale Will Be Held in the New Bedding Department, Fourth Floor

The department is in its new quarters, where larger area and modern equipment will enable us to better serve our customers.

Come tomorrow morning, Monday and Tuesday and unhurriedly place your orders, which will be delivered when the Sale formally opens.

Actor From Musical Comedy Steps Into Opportunity With Advent of Sound Photoplays

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, July 27.

JOHN BOLES, who stepped from a musical company career into the movies when Gloria Swanson selected him for "Loves of Sonya," has been making good with a vengeance. The present finds him cast opposite Mary Astor in her second Fox photoplay. It is called "The Woman," and it will be directed by Irving Cummings. Boles has been increasingly in demand with the advent of sound-films. He has an excellent speaking voice in addition to being a songbird. This attribute, together with his experience on both stage and screen, places him in a fortunate spot to win further film fame.

A prophecy of some weeks ago has come to pass with the announcement that Clive Brook and Evelyn Brent have been finally chosen to interpret Somerset Maugham's story, "The Letter," for the screen. Evelyn's role is that played by Katherine Cornell on the stage. Incidentally, I stopped into a neighborhood theater the other night to see Evelyn play opposite Adolphe Menjou in "His Tiger Lady." If you want to see my idea of a deliriously beautiful girl, and a pretty good picture, too, go, thou, and do likewise.

June Collyer, whose mother is as Irish as the River Shannon, got a particularly big kick from a fan letter all the way from Dublin. Among other things, June's fan hopes that she may soon visit "the ould sod." I suggest that when she returns from New York to Hollywood she vamp Director John Ford a little bit. For this talented Hibernian has it in his heart to make a Celtic picture right in Ireland itself. And who can pick a better type than June for an Irish colleen? And June and John are both under contract to Fox films.

Jesse Lasky, Paramount sachem, thought up a clever idea to keep down the overhead regarding "scream" tests to determine how his stars register in the "talkies." It is planned that each Paramount star will appear on the screen, make his little speech, take his little bow, and make room for the next fellow. When the very last star has done his song-and dance, or said his witty quip, the entire reel will be released as a novelty and shown in the theaters. It should be well worth the price of admission to see. I mean hear, it. But, oh, what a lot of illusions are going to be destroyed when the peacocks try to sing. I still think I'd rather look at them—in mutual silence.

The casting director at Metro is trying to unearth 100 dwarfs to appear in a fantastic film soon to be produced. Lon Chaney should be able to play quite a few of them.

Shakespeare's query, "What's in a name?" was answered in some measure by a recent society note mentioning "among those present" at some activity, Mrs. Hal Willis, Mrs. Kenneth Hawks, Mrs. Jack White, Mrs. Richard Arlen, Mrs. William Seiter, Mrs. Charles Kenyon, Mrs. Irvin Willat, etc. Now what bright little boy or girl knows that these married ladies are somewhat better known as Louise Fazenda, Mary Astor, Pauline Starke, Jobyna Ralston, Laura La Plante, Jane Winton and Billie Dove?

When Josephine Dunn leaves the Warner lot, where she has been loaned for Al Jolson's film, "The Singin' Fool," she'll speed right back to Metro to do the feminine lead opposite Ramon Novarre in "Gold Braid," the naval aviation yarn which will be his first since that $30,000 European vacation. Josephine's a Gotham girl and a comparative newcomer, as you know. She's having a lot of success.

Tay Garnet's second directorial effort, following "Celebrity," will be "The Spielers," and Jacqueline Logan has been engaged to play the leading role. "Celebrity" has been finally cut and edited, and it will soon go out into the cold world to win praise for Robert Armstrong and Lina Basquette.

Marcelline Day is the most recent to join the free-lance ranks. Her Metro contract expires within a week or two, and then Marcelline will be at liberty to sell her services to the highest bidder.

Doug Fairbanks' new one, "The Iron Mask," is to be evolved from three Alexandre Dumas stories. They are "B'Artagnan, of the Guards," "The Man in the Iron Mask" and "Twenty Years after." A photoplay containing the best features of these three is bound to be the concentrated essence of romance and adventure.

Incidentally I understand that both Fairbanks and Chaplin are in a quandary regarding the advisability of putting talk into their new films. I imagine it will result in a compromise—sound effects, but no dialogue.

Officials Asked To Be Guests At Play

Police and other city officials have been invited to the Pitt Theater as guests of the management Monday night, when the George Sharp Players will appear in their first performance of "Nightstick." The play is a romantic drama of a policeman's life.

"Polly With A Past," which the Nixon Players will present in the Nixon next week, is a comedy in three acts by George Middleton and Guy Bolton. It was a success for an entire season in the Belasco Theater, New York.

AUTO ACCIDENT VICTIM SUES VOSE BABCOCK

Vose Babcock, 22, son of County Commissioner E. Vose Babcock, was sued yesterday for $25,000 by David E. Shetron for automobile injuries, suffered August 3, 1926. Shetron asserts that while standing beside an automobile near the Butler pike, just north of Mt. Royal cemetery, young Babcock ran into him. His neck and hip joint were injured.

34 OSTEOPATHS GET LICENSES

HARRISBURG, July 27.—(AP.)—Thirty-four osteopaths passed the recent examinations of the Pennsylvania department of public instruction and were licensed to practice, the department has announced. Seven additional licenses were granted to applicants from other states.

Among the successful applicants in Pennsylvania are: Walter P. Spill, Pittsburgh; Ivan F. Bixby, Alba; Charles E. Young, Zelienople; Roy E. Hughes, John H. Warren and Joseph Calafiore, of Johnstown; Jean W. Johnston, McConnellsburg; James Robert Gray, Honey Grove; Elmer R. Jenkins, Forty Fort; James Madison Eaton, Kingston; Robert W. White, Lewiston; Florence M. Cargill, Bala and J. Louis Maier, Latrobe.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIOR DROWNS IN LAKE ERIE

ERIE, Pa., July 27.—United States coast guard last night recovered the body of Albert Cifolelli, 16, Kahkwa Park Club caddy, who was drowned while swimming at Manchester-on-the-Lake. Seized with cramps he sank before companions could rescue him. The boy was a senior at Academy High School and planned to use the money he earned as caddy to pay his way through college.

WIFE STRIKES SHOTGUN, SAVES HUSBAND'S LIFE

STONEBORO, Pa., July 27.—Quick action by his wife saved the life of Art. Fisher, just a fraction of a second before a roomer in their home pulled the trigger of a shotgun. Mrs. Fisher struck the man and the charge buried itself in the ceiling.

The roomer and Fisher had quarrelled. Mrs. Fisher heard the men arguing and entered in time to save her husband. The roomer escaped and is being sought.

Bennett Seriously Injured As America Crashes In Test Flight

Weather Conditions Studied

CHAPTER XXV.

METEOROLOGY was the next important matter. There was no suitable trans-Atlantic meteorological service, and this had to be devised. Long ago Lieut. Commander Noel Davis and I had requested the Secretary of Agriculture to give us the co-operation of the United States Weather Bureau. This was granted.

The bureau needed reports of conditions over the Atlantic, so we requested the Radio Corporation of America to procure radio reports from sea-going ships, which they did magnanimously and patriotically.

The weather bureau assigned Dr. James H. Kimball, of its New York office, to make weather predictions for the trans-Atlantic flights, and for the first time in history regular weather maps for aviation uses were made of the North Atlantic. This work, I think, undoubtedly is the beginning of a valuable meteorological service.

I was further assisted by Mr. Roswell Barrett, of New York, who received reports from Dr. Kimball and spent many nights with me studying weather conditions. Mr. Rossby, an expert of the weather bureau, also conferred with us.

We devoted some time to the study of a proper take-off field for a trans-Atlantic flight. The biggest field available around New York was the Roosevelt Field on Long Island. Mr. Grover Whalen leased it and we set about developing it for the heavy loads the long distance plane must carry.

Take-Off Field Important

Next to the plane, the take-off field was the most important consideration. It is the swinging of very heavy loads in the air that makes long distance flights difficult. A very long run and high speeds are necessary to get off the ground. The bigger and the more heavily loaded the plane, the longer the run.

Rene Fonck used a three-engined plane and one of the things that he had to contend with was the irregularity and shortness of the runway he had to use. We repaired this same runway and took out its worst bumps and soft spots.

Day after day I personally went over every inch of the ground, striving for the same smoothness that we got on our Spitzbergen snowway, and which finally had made the North Pole flight possible.

Even with a very smooth field, and the biggest one within a radius of hundreds of miles, the field was not, we thought, big enough.

What could we do!

After many conferences we got the answer. Someone suggested building a little hill. Great! We had taken off going down hill with skis on the North Pole flight. Surely it would work with wheels. It did! We built the hill and got in effect at least 500 feet to the end of the runway by the fast intitial start it gave us.

And this can solve the problem of cities that have small fields without chance of expansion.

With preparations as complete as this I felt that we would be hopping off equipped as nearly as possible for a practical commercial air travel between Europe and America.

The next step would be to use pontoons instead of wheels. The reason we used land planes last summer instead of seaplanes was because, on account of the weight and resistance of the pontoon or boat, we could not quite make the necessary distance.

Other Over Ocean Flights

Things were going merrily along by the middle of March, when I ran into an altogether unexpected complication. Several other trans-Atlantic flights were being planned. Noel Davis, Rene Fonck, Charles Lindbergh, Clarence Chamberlin and nearly a dozen others announced their intentions of flying across the Atlantic Ocean from New York to Paris.

This was not exactly news. I knew they had been preparing. Each had his own ideas. We were working toward a workable commercial plane, while the others were, no doubt, interested also in that phase. Some of them were competing to be first to reach Paris to win the Ortieg prize of $25,000, which we were not. We didn't even enter our names.

As a result there was competition between them, but hardly between them and us. Mr. Wanamaker was very clear on this point; so were Bennett and the others attached to my camp.

Despite this, the first thing I knew I had been projected into what was euphemistically called by the press the "Great 1927 New York-to-Paris Air Derby." I admit it would have been gratifying to be first across, but that was only a secondary consideration with us. So we repeatedly said we were in no race, though the public insisted that we were.

On the surface, such a canard would seem to have no bearing on my work. But this country of ours is so large and its press so powerful that sway of public opinion can easily make a terrific difference. I think it may be compared to the swelling of the sea, which carries the seaweed far before its surface to and fro.

My desire was to keep quiet our plans, do the best we could and then make the flight if possible. This would avoid hurting aviation if we failed. Now understand that my inclination to be quiet was looked on as a conspiracy of silence directed against my so-called competitors in the race who were really my friends whom I was rooting for.

Then there was another very important factor; in trying to point towards the trans-Atlantic plane of the future, our work was necessarily experimental—pioneering. We knew all about lifting heavy loads with single-engined planes, but very little indeed about load lifting with a great three-engined plane.

We knew we were taking big risks though, of course, we expected no recognition of this fact from the public. It was possible that we might find that we couldn't fly the distance necessary to go from New York to France. Should there be a great deal of publicity and then should we have to admit the plane couldn't make the distance, aviation would be hurt. We didn't want to hurt the game we were trying to help.

I was shadowed. Questions were put to my family and friends about me to find out what I had "up my sleeve." Exaggerations and rumors flew about thick and fast. Caustic criticism of other entrants was attributed to me.

Presently I found that instead of being a technical explorer I was some sort of frenzied political candidate. At least that was the impression I got.

As I would not speak, exaggerated things were published right and left, so I was finally forced to break my silence. In dismay, I asked Mr. Wanamaker to employ a "public relations" man to get the "straight dope."

I must add that I think representatives of the press, later on when I had a chance to explain things, sympathized with my position. But at that time their owners and editors had to get news. The public demanded it, due to its great interest in the forthcoming flight.

This passing phase of the venture is worthy of mention if only because it is one of the truly American phenomena that a man in public notice is forced to encounter and deal with as best he can.

On April 20, 1927, our plane was ready for the factory test. It was through no special effort that we were many weeks ahead of all the others planning to fly the Atlantic. We wanted to make the flight in May when we would have the full moon. Our plan had no doubt gone smoothly because it was years old with me.

Having received word from the factory at Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., that the designer was ready to take his machine up for its first flight, I sent for Noville and Bennett to join me. Some of my friends tried to dissuade me from the flight. The plane was brand new and had not been in the air yet. But I did not want to accept the plane without personally observing its performance.

We got off all right. Fokker was at the controls; the other three of us were passengers.

So long as the engines were running everything went all right. But the moment they were cut off the plane felt nose heavy.

Nobile and I saw Bennett licking his lips. This was the only sign Bennett gave when he was nervous—which was very rare.

I nudged Noville and nodded toward Bennett.

Fokker brought the plane down for a landing. But when he slowed up to touch the ground again came unmistakable signs that the plane was nose heavy. He took her up again for another turn and to think over what we had better do.

Bennett Injured in Crash

As we had very little fuel we couldn't stay up long. And as there was no way to shift weights we could not help ourselves. We couldn't get aft on account of our great 1,300 gallon tank—another experiment—that filled the fuselage aft of us. Fokker brought her down within a few feet of the ground. I caught hold of a steel upright just back of Fokker's seat—kept my gaze concentrated on the air speed meter. We were going a mile a minute. The wheels touched the ground. Instantly I saw Fokker rise and make frantic attempts to jump out. Bennett was trapped as Fokker occupied the only exit. There was no way Noville and I could even try to get out.

With all my strength I clung to the heavy steel upright. Abruptly the body of the fusilage rose under us. In a flash we knew she was going completely over.

There came a terrific crash.

It sounded as if every inch of the plane were being crushed to kindling. Something struck me a stunning blow on my head and in the small of my back. It was Noville thrown forward from the sudden stop. The impact snapped my arm like a match stick. Then dead silence.

"Look out for fire!" cried a strained voice. I learned afterward this was Bennett, caught in the wreckage. Noville and I, fumbled together with broken rods, frames, seats and other gear, scrambled to our feet to find ourselves trapped.

With my broken arm and bruised body I was of little use. Noville wildly broke a hole through the fabric with his bare fist. Both of us were thinking of Fonck's similar crash in which his men inside the plane were trapped and burned to death before they could escape.

Noville dove through the hole and fell on the ground in great agony. He was injured internally. I followed.

There was no fire. Someone had at the last instant the presence of mind to pull Bennett's switch, cutting off all three engines.

I rushed to Bennett. He was hanging head downward, held by the wreckage of the pilot's seat. It certainly looked as if he had "got his" at last. His leg was badly broken and his face streaming blood. He was drenched with oil.

It seemed tough to get it on a trial flight after all we had been through.

I leaned over him and told him who I was. He tried to open his eyes but couldn't.

"Guess I'm done for Commander," he said weakly. "I'm all broken up. I can't see and I have no feeling in my left arm."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Pittsburghers Take Prominent Part in Social Activities at Various Summer Resorts

IF SOME unexpected circumstance or conquering inertia has prevented one from going to the seashore or to the mountains or to any of the places favored by society, one can do a great deal of vicarious "summer resorting."

News drifts back to the city occasionally of the social life of Pittsburgh folks in the various summer colonies, and of former Pittsburghers, too.

You all remember, I'm sure, Mrs. C. D. Pettus, now of St. Louis, Mo. She is Thruston Wright's sister, you know. She is with the Wrights, who are at Watch Hill, always favored by members of the city's "400." Mrs. Pettus entertained at a large dinner party this week, I hear, at Road's End. Of course the Wrights were among the guests.

THE A. R. Flinns and the George Greer Coolidges, who are at Narragansett Pier, R. I., you may recall, are being entertained a great deal.

They were among the guests at a luncheon given early this week by the S. Hinman Birds at the Point Judith Country Club.

ANOTHER representative of this city attracted to Narragansett is Mrs. John F. Casey, Jr. She is at the Massasoit. She has registered already at the Narragansett Bathing and Clambake Club.

* * *

THE junior Harry Darlington's are popular hosts, no matter whether they are in Pittsburgh, in Palm Beach, or in Watch Hill. They entertained at a large dinner party a their summer home on Saturday, I hear.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS M. JONES III are entertaining Mr. Jones' mother, Mrs. W. C. Dumble, of Cobourg, Canada, at their Watch Hill home. Later this week Mrs. Jones' brother, John S. Hess, and Craigie McKay will come to visit them. It sounds like quite a Pittsburgh gathering, doesn't it?

* * *

PITTSBURGH society folks summering in the North or in New England do quite a bit of visiting and "week ending" at the nearby summer homes of friends. Augusta Leovy is the guest just now, I understand, of the Loyall A. Osbornes, of New York, at White Lodge, Stockbridge, in the Berkshire Hills.

* * *

WHEREVER smart society folks meet, there you'll find, sooner or later, Eben M. Byers. Just now he is at Southampton. He is entertaining a number of friends, we have been told, at Sandymount.

AND now the last of the July society weddings has taken place. Margaret Crutchfield, daughter of the James Stapleton Crutchfields, of Beaver road, Sewickley, was a very charming bride, too, yesterday, don't you think? Of course you know she married Andrew Tod Roy, son of the Frank C. Jordans, of Riverview avenue, North Side. The Rev. William Crowe, of Tuscumbia, Ala., a cousin of the bride, was the officiant at the wedding, which took place at 5:30 o'clock in the home of the bride's parents.

Margaret was lovely in a gown of white chiffon and lace and a veil of tulle, arranged with a bandeau of exquisite rose point lace. And she cararied lilies of the valley, sweet peas and roses. Sounds pleasantly old-fashioned, doesn't it?

Harriet Crutchfield, who was her sister's maid of honor, and Catherine, Alice and Grace, three more sisters, who were bridesmaids, appeared in pink chiffon gowns and wore large leghorn hats, banded with pink velvet. Garden flowers fashioned their arm bouquets.

Dr. Robert Hugh Robertson, the bridegroom's brother-in-law, was best man, and Albin Pilkington Crutchfield, Margaret's brother, Henry Pitney Van Dusen, of Philadelphia; Albin Pilkington Crowe, of St. Louis, and Robert Taylor were the ushers.

The mother of the bride wore beige georgette and lace, and a black hair braid hat, and the mother of the bridegroom appeared in gray lace and a gray hair braid hat.

A reception followed the wedding, of course, and then the young Roys set out for Scotland. Mr. Roy will spend a year studying in Edinborough, and will attend the Youth and Peace Conference in Holland as a delegate.

CLUBWOMEN DESERT CITY FOR VACATIONS

EVEN busy clubwomen these warm days are deserting the city for the mountains, the country, or Europe. Many of the executives of the Congress of Clubs are now enjoying vacations from the city.

Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, president of the Congress, is visiting her brother, Robert Hapgood, of Bradford, Pa. During her absence, Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, who is first vice president of the Congress as well as chairman of the department of education, will be at the president's desk in the clubhouse from 2 to 4 o'clock each day.

Mrs. R. W. Johnston, second vice president of the Congress, and her daughter, Miss June Johnston, will sail this week on the New Amsterdam. Mrs. Johnston, who is chairman of international relations for the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, will spend much time at Geneva. Her tour will also include the Rhine trip, Cologne, Amsterdam, Glasgow, Paris and London. She will return on the Arabic.

Mrs. F. H. Burdick, third vice president of the Congress, will go to Detroit this week-end.

Mrs. Charles S. Miller, recording secretary of the Congress, will tour through the East with her family during the latter part of August.

Many members are at their summer home. Mrs. George J. Campbell, corresponding secretary, is at her home, "Oak Hill Farms," Butler Pike, Gibsonia.

Mrs. W. B. Carson is visiting her son in Boston, Mass., and Mrs. S. J. Corbett will leave this week-end for a two-weeks' visit with her daughter in Cambridge Springs.

Mrs. William M. Justice has taken a cottage at Venango and Mrs. J. C. Schreiner will go to California to visit her sister, Mrs. E. A. Jones, a past president of the Congress.

Mrs. W. H. Francies is planning a motor trip to Maryland and through the East.

Another motorist is Dr. Luba Robin Goldsmith, who, with her family, is driving through the New England states, with Maine as her destination.

Mrs. John R. Hermes has made no definite plans, but expects to take a motor trip in August.

Mrs. John Howard Phillips, with her husband, spent last week in Detroit at the Masonic conclave. This week they are in Boston.

Mrs. James C. Mace has just returned from a three-months' trip through the East.

WHEN members return to the Congress clubhouse in the fall, they will find many changes. The house committee, under the direction of the chairman, Mrs. James C. Mase, has been supervising redecorating and renovating. The Reick dining room and the second floor assembly room have been freshened with new paper in a colonial pattern. A Chamberlain design paper has been chosen for the third floor assembly. Curtains and drapery in a modernistic design, a new coat of paint in the new putty shade, and the installation of an indirect lighting system will make the auditorium most attractive. The outside as well as the inside of the clubhouse is receiving attention. The exterior will be painted cream with cool lettuce green trimmings.

THE department of education of the Congress of Clubs will hear how a clubwoman, who became blind, learned to adapt herself to her new condition, and live as full a life as formerly. Mrs. C. C. Taylor will relate her personal experiences at the September luncheon meeting of the club. She has entitled her talk "Sightless Seeing." At the same meeting, Miss Fannie Crawford, superintendent of the League of the Hard of Hearing will describe the newest discoveries for aiding the deaf.

In charge of this initial session will be the special schools committee, of which Mrs. Mary Murphy is chairman. Mrs. Murphy has asked Mrs. William Pfouts, past president of the Oakland Woman's Club to be her co-chairman, and Mrs. W. F. Webb, Mrs. William H. Jacob, Miss Ellen C. Hogan and Mrs. I. J. Carroll as members.

The department now is ready to start its fall work, according to Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, who is again the chairman. Mrs. Miller has asked Mrs. C. Watson Kenney to be her co-chairman, and program chairman. Mrs. L. L. Hartley is recording secretary; Mrs. Bruce Cobaugh, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. George A. Eckels, treasurer.

The committee chairmen have just been named. Mrs. W. R. Shoemaker is chairman of Americanization; Mrs. J. H. Lesley, clothing; Mrs. E. P. Schempp, home safety; Mrs. W. C. McClure, music; Mrs. Otille Sheppard, parent-teachers; Miss Louise Blessing, scholarship; Mrs. Robert T. Alexander, schools co-operation; Mrs. Mary Murphy, special schools; Mrs. D. F. Harrison, study group; Mrs. Frank Scnomberg.

HAMILTON TAKES OATH AS SENATE SECRETARY

HARRISBURG, July 27.—(AP.)—A. Boyd Hamilton was sworn in as secretary of the State Senate by John E. McKirdy, chief clerk of the Senate, yesterday. Oaths of office were also administered to Frank J. Gorman, Hamilton's successor as secretary to Gov. Fisher, and Mrs. Mary D. Patton as a member of the State Board of Censors, by Secretary of the Commonwealth Johnson. All three appointments are effective August 1.

N.E.PARISH LEAVES FUND TO HOME FOR CHILDREN

READING, Pa., July 27.—(AP.)—A gift of $100,000 for the Home for Friendless Children here is provided in the will of Neff E. Parish, founder of the Parish Auto Body Manufacturing Company, filed for probate. Annuities of $10,000 a year for his widow and $3,000 a year for his son also are provided.

How To Be Beautiful

by Maria Jeritza

The Lovely Outdoor Girl

MARIA JERITZA

THE outdoor girl is in her glory these days at the golf links, the tennis court, the beach, the wheel of her car, the helm of her speed-boat. She is laying in a store of vitality and healthful beauty that should successfully weather the rigors of the winter season.

But nothing in this world is quite perfect. This bliss of the summer girl is often tempered considerably by the fact that exposure to the sun brings a fiery glow to her skin, as uncomfortable as it is ugly. The quicker you apply some such bland, soothing lotion as olive oil to your sunburned skin, the better off you will be! For if you let the burns blister or deepen into hardened, weather-beaten skin, you will find it hard to restore natural, delicate bloom.

Best of all, oil your skin well before you go out in the sun, either with olive oil, cocoanut oil or a pure nourishing cold cream. Rub this in well, remove the excess, then powder your skin to further protect it from the ultra-violet rays of the July and August sun.

Another soothing lotion for sunburned skin is glycerine and witch hazel in equal parts. When you take your tub baths these days, add a palmful of baking-soda to the water, for it refreshes burned skin and is also antiseptically cleansing, removing every trace of perspiration from the pores.

Be especially careful not to wash your face with hot water just before going outdoors, because hot water dries the skin and leaves it sensitive to sun and wind. Always finish your facial bath with a dash of softened cold water.

A bathing suit cut at the neck and shoulders, front and back, with the decolette line of your evening frocks, should prevent the high-water line of tan and sunburn which are so unlovely when the outdoor girl dons her evening clothes.

Do not let fear of sun or wind keep you from enjoying every minute you can of the summer outdoors. For the open air is the greatest friend of the beauty of your hair, eyes, skin and body.

The Greeks knew more about feminine beauty and how to attain and retain it in all its glory than any other race that ever lived. And the Greeks made a cult of outdoor life. We cannot do better than follow their example in this respect.

Walk outdoors for hours daily. Eat, and if possible, sleep outdoors on a screened porch. In this way, you may well hope to bring out the ultimate possibilities of your beauty. For what is feminine beauty but a healthy mind and its healthy body, expressing the harmony that is loveliness.

For Freckled, Tanned Sun-Spoiled Skin

To reveal the exquisite loveliness hidden beneath a freckled or tanned complexion, use pure mercolized wax. Applied nightly to the face like a cold cream, the wax gradually peels off all particles of scorched and half-dead cuticle. The underskin then revealed, is clear, smooth, white and youthful. Procure an ounce at any drug store and keep your skin young. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and restore facial contour, use as an astringent 1 ounce powdered saxolite and 1 half pint witch hazel.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

DIAMONDS AND HEARTS

By L. M. BLAKE.

"Of course, I could get you a diamond ring," Claude Rix declared, "but we can use that money to pay down on furniture for our flat."

Myrtle Carlson frowned. "I suppose that is the wisest thing," she admitted; "but I've always told the girls at the office that when I became engaged I would show them a nifty sparkler."

"Drat that!" Claude said, and sneered. "A woman has the right to change her mind."

"I know . . . Well, I just won't tell the girls that I'm engaged, that's all."

The man nodded, and got up. "A good idea," he agreed. "Now let's go for a walk in the park. Sitting in this parlor gets on my nerves."

"Why not go to a show?"

"We better save the money. We can use it later."

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon, two days after, Myrtle was called into the private office of her employer, Clark J. Morgan. The latter dictated four business letters, with hesitation that was unnatural for him. Then suddenly—as if making a decision—he swung about in his chair and eyed the girl.

"Miss Carlson," he said, and a soft note crept into his usual metallic voice, "I admire you tremendously. I'll say more. I—I want you to be my wife."

"Are you—are you serious, Mr. Morgan?" As she spoke, Myrtle drew back in her chair as if it were a fort.

"Never more serious in all my life. Oh! I'll admit that I haven't courted you in the regular sense; still we see each other for hours every day and so we're pretty familiar with the character back of the clothes. And I know your people."

"But—but—"

"Everything is all right," Morgan declared soothingly. "I know you are surprised. And I want you to take plenty of time to thing it over. I may not make the best husband in the world; but I'll try hard not to be the worst."

There was a time when Myrtle would have been delighted with the man's proposal. At the moment she shook her head as if in pain.

Morgan ignored the gesture and pulled out of his pocket a small box. From this he drew a ring. Silently he offered it to the girl. The diamond was large and exquisitely mounted.

"Oh! It's beautiful!" Myrtle found herself saying involuntarily.

"Business forces me to leave tonight on the 8 o'clock flyer for New York. I'll be gone three weeks. Give me my answer when I return."

"I can't—" Myrtle stammered helplessly, and tried to give back the treasure.

"Keep it," Morgan directed, "until I return. Then let me have your answer."

The girl did not move.

"My proposal may seem funny," Morgan added thoughtfully. "Perhaps I will make a funny husband. But at least you know I am generous and kind. Perhaps you can train me to be more of a man and less of a machine."

"But—but—"

Morgan's nod of dismissal was not to be denied. Force of habit carried Myrtle to the door. As she opened it, she had presence of mind enough to stuff the ring into her pocket.

Immediately after lunch hour, the next day, Millie Bennet, bookkeeper, twice married, and known in the office as "KPO" because she was forever "broadcasting," said loudly to Myrtle:

"Listen, girlie! I saw Henry Dobbs at the Coffee Tavern today, and he said that Claude Rix and you are engaged. Claude told him so."

Myrtle smiled weakly. "Well?"

"Where's the big diamond you always said you were going to show us when you get engaged? C'mon. Show us."

The other girls gathered around.

"Let's see the ring?"

"Maybe I haven't got one," Myrtle returned weakly.

"Gwan! Don't tell me that," protested Millie Bennet. "You kidded me about the small one I got when I was married the second time. C'mon now. Show up. I'll bet it's even smaller than mine."

With an inward prayer for forgiveness, Myrtles hand shot into her pocket and came out with a box.

"Well, K P O," she declared grimly, "if I must show you a ring, here it is."

"Boy!" from Millie Bennet. "Isn't—isn't it stunning!"

She did not see Claude again until Friday evening. Then the frown on his handsome face threw her into a panic.

"What's the matter, Claude?" she questioned as she lead the way into the little parlor.

"I'm not feeling any too good," he replied.

"I'm sorry," Myrtle said honestly.

"You ought to be," Claude snapped out. "Say! Where's that ring you've been showing the girls. Did you buy it on the installment plan? Why, Hen Dobbs told me that Millie Bennet said the diamond was as big as an egg. And he wanted to know what bank I had robbed."

Myrtle slumped on a chair. "I might have known," she whimpered, "that I couldn't get away with it."

"Get away with what?" Claude demanded suspiciously.

Slowly Mrytle extended her left hand, onto the third finger of which she had slipped the ring.

"There it is," she murmured unevenly.

Claude started, mouth agap. "Where—where did you get that?" he managed to growl. "Tell me! Where did you get that ring?"

"From Mr. Morgan," Myrtle said timorously. "Oh! Claude!"

The man clenched his hands. "I might have known it," he snarled. "Me! Poor fool! Trusting you! Well, this is enough. I'm cured!"

"Why Claude—"

"Oh! Don't get so innocent. Morgan's stenographer. Ha! Ha! That's good. You needed a ring and told your boss., So for old-time's sake—"

"Claude! Claude! You don't know what you're saying. Mr. Morgan asked me to marry him."

"Morgan asked you to marry him. Don't make me laugh!"

The coarseness in the man's face and voice caused Myrtle to draw back as if from fire.

"I'm telling the world," Claude went on fiercely. "I wouldn't marry you on a bet!"

Something seemed to snap inside Myrtle. She laughed shrilly.

"I guess you wouldn't," she said. "Now . . . Get out!"

A little over two weeks later, Myrtle sat in Clark Morgan's private office and confessed everything to her employer.

"So you see, Mr. Morgan," she concluded. "I can't marry you. I'm too big a fraud. But I do thank you for your proposal. And here's your ring. At least it saved me from marrying a very miserable type of man."

Morgan picked up the ring from his desk and reached for Myrtle's left hand.

"Thank heaven," he said, "I wasn't too late."

"But I don't deserve this."

Morgan laughed queerly. "You're crying and smiling at the same time," he said throatily; "and you look prettier than ever. Hang it all, I'm no machine. Come here and kiss me!"

SKYWARD

By Commander Richard E. Byrd

back quickly, but was sure he was right.

Presently I noticed that his eyes were filled with oil. When I wiped the oil away he could see. It was a great relief.

However, for a week it looked as if Bennett might not pull out. But the fine attention he got from Dr. Sullivan and his own courage and grit saved the day. His leg took many weeks to knit. He was out of the ocean flight for good. That was heart-breaking for him and a very great disappointment to me.

Noville suffered a great deal and for a while was not expected to live. It was thought that he might have to be operated on. But it turned out that he had torn loose some of the muscles of his stomach. In several weeks he was up and back on the job again.

I set my broken arm on the way to the hospital. Two bones were fractured and there were many bruises. But beyond being something of a nuisance for a few weeks the injuries did not interfere with our plans.

We minimized the seriousness of our crash as much as possible, fearing that on account of the great amount of publicity our project had had it would seriously hurt aviation.

I felt like making a plea to the people of the country then not to let such pioneering accidents hurt the advancement of commercial aviation. Such an accident had nothing to do with regular commercial flights. The country was not yet sufficiently air-minded to distinguish the great difference.

We felt it our duty to go ahead with our flight—for the science of trans-oceanic flying.

The damage to our plane was serious. It took a month of day and night toil to get her back into shape again.

WILKINSBURG SWELLS MILK, ICE FUND

Keeping 23 youngsters busy at a Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund benefit is no mean job, as one of the mothers can attest. Last year these same children gave a benefit and raised $21.75 for the fund. Urged on this year by the interested mother, they again undertook an entertainment and increased their gift to $24.40. The affair was held in Woodlawn street, Wilkinsburg, the workers including Roy, Earl and Rose Mary McCullough, Charles Kenyon, Billy and Margaret Moats, Audrey and Devon Hummel, Alice Kleinknecht, Homer and Evelyn Hallet, Mable and Sara Kreidler, Mildred Straka, Sydney, Wilma and Jane Hantman, James Witherspoon, McKee Boal, Donald Reeder, Betty and Ruth Guckelberg and Ruth Schubert.

Four little women from South Linden avenue, Betsy and Mary Jeanne Britt and Lois and Mabel Marshall, who sign themselves "Money Makers," have contributed $3, and $1.37 comes from Betty and Bobby Yundt and Junior Lloyd. These, with three other gifts, two of which are anonymous and the third from the Primary Sunday School of Bridgeville, brings the fund to a total of $887.90.

RADIO STATIONS GET EXTENSION

WASHINGTON, July 27.—(AP.)—The Federal Radio Commission yesterday renewed until September 1 the licenses of 527 stations, revoked the licenses of 36 and accepted the voluntary surrender of broadcasting rights from four other transmitters.

The remaining 123 in the nation's broadcasting band of 690 stations were included in the commission's order dated May 25 which provided for termination of 162 transmitters on August 1 as not justified by "public interest, convenience or necessity."

Representatives of 123 stations have appeared at hearings to refute this finding, and judgement on their cases was deferred until August 1.

The usual period for license extension is 60 days and the one-month extension in the present cases is taken as an indication that the long waited new allocation plan of the commission will be ready on September 1.

Included in the stations whose licenses have been revoked are WGM, Jeannette, Pa.; WABW, Wooster, O.

SEIZE KIDNAP SUSPECT

Suspicion that two men were attempting to kidnap Mildred Musulin, 15, of 1003 Greb street, yesterday, resulted in the arrest of Paul Pilijan, of Detroit, Mich., who, it was learned at the hearing at the South Thirteenth Street Police Station today, is wanted on a charge of reckless driving pending against him here since January last. Police were called to the Musulin home when Pilijan is alleged to have attempted to entice the girl to leave. On Wednesday the girl's foster parents caused the arrest of Paul Miller, 39, also of Detroit, who was charged with trying to entice Mildred from home. He was ordered to pay a fine of $25 by Magistrate John J. Sweeney, and upon payment of the fine was turned over to city detectives for further examination.

CONSTABLES' RECORDS NEXT IN 'FINING' PROBE

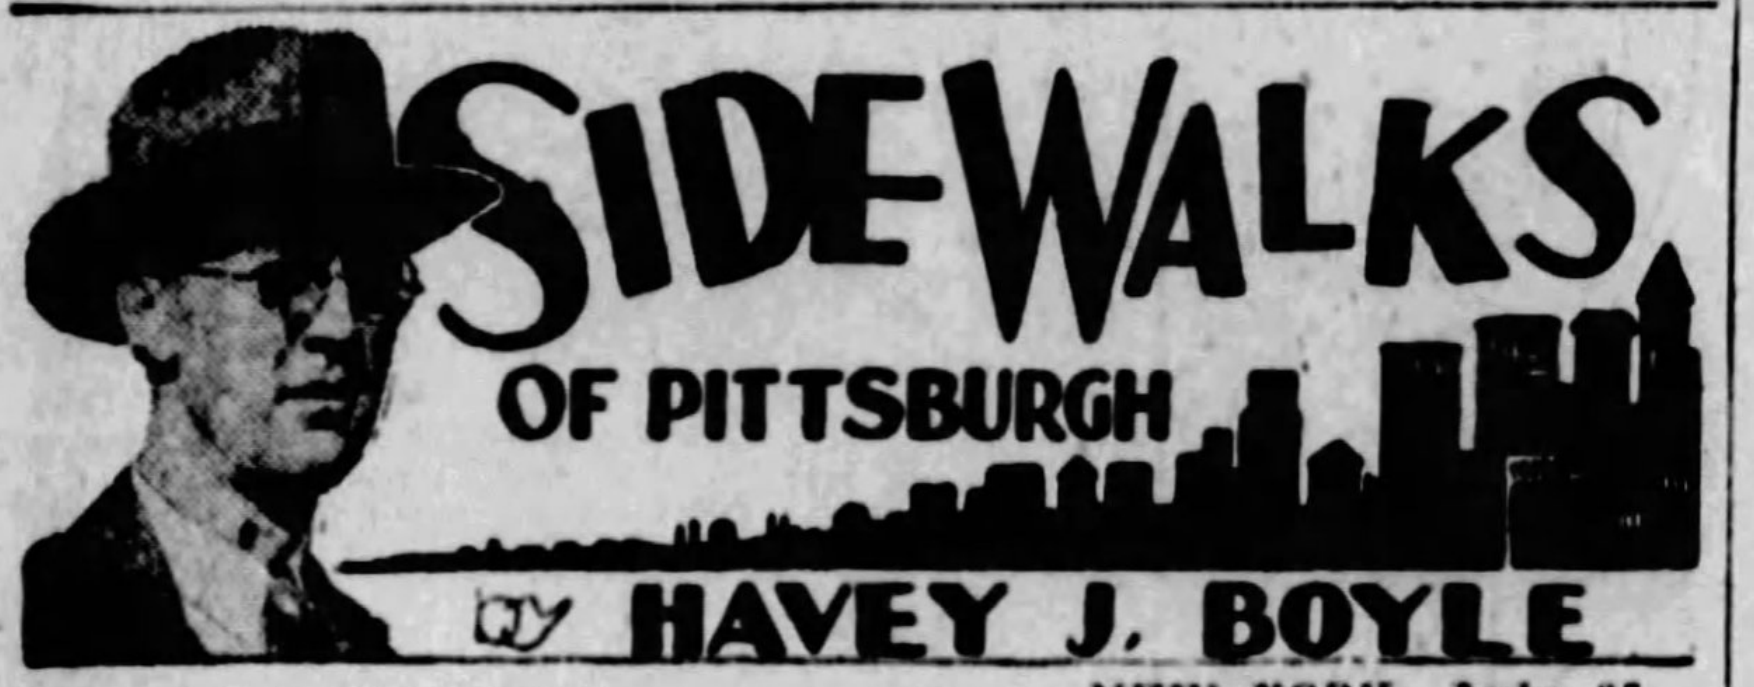
As part of its campaign against public officials who persecute motorists, the Pittsburgh Motor Club today announced a general investigation of constables who are active in automobile law enforcement work.

According to C. H. Roth, secretary of the club, the records of constables will be closely scrutinized and wherever an instance is found where such an officer either exceeded his authority or took advantage of his office to make illegal profit the club would make every effort to have him ousted.

Mr. Roth said the investigation was prompted by revelations of the activities of one constable. This man paid little attention to legally prescribed methods of procedure in his work and negligently and without justice inconvenienced and humiliated motorists, Mr. Roth said.

BURNED AT STOVE TWO WEEKS AGO, WOMAN DIES

Mrs. Grace Boyle, 18, of 518 Dunloe street, North Side, died last night in the Presbyterian Hospital of burns suffered July 14, when her dress ignited from a gas stove in the kitchen of her home.



NEW YORK, July 27.

OWING to the deficit in the championship fight last night, many jeremiads were written by the observers here. The gloomiest of the scribes saw the withdrawal of Tex Rickard from boxing and the resignation of Gene Tunney. Neither prophecy will come true. Possibly, Rickard in the future will be a little more careful in the guarantees he gives, but that he will desert the field which has provd so fertile financially is too fantastic an idea to entertain. If he took one on the whiskers last night he is simply going through an experience that every showman has gone through. He has made a bundle amounting to a couple of million out of boxing and it is not usual to see men who have made that much out of their business to flee the scene when a loss is registered.

New York put the championship affair in its vest pocket. There was less confusion in making one's way to the Yankee Stadium than one encounters in getting a seat in a movie house owning a good attraction.

THE man who wires in these notes is Jimmy Fair, who comes from New Martinsville, W. Va. He was a committee of one to greet the legless and one-armed aviator from New Martinsville who wants to fly from New York to Rome. The aviator was a spectator at the fight. The flyer's name is Morris R. Daugherty.

* * *

So slight was the interest in the big bout here that the huge Yankee Stadium was only half filled when the first bout was put on.

THERE is a good chance that New York will not get next year's annual battle of the century. New York's apathy so aggrieved Rickard that he may pick out a new location next year.

* * *

Aside from the fact that neither Tunney nor Heeney owned enough appeal to pack in the customers, Tunney bears out the saying that a prophet is not without honor save in his home town. New York wildly acclaims Dempsey, the Californian, but New York knew Gene when Gene was just so-so and the home folks give Tunney little credit for his fine achievement. On top of this contempt, bred from familiarity, Tunney failed to live up to the conventional idea of what a heavyweight champion should be.

RICKARD might have saved himself some money by eliminating the preliminaries. At a championship bout the clients pay little attention to the boys who open the show and to the others who hold the stage until the headliners come on. This is ironical, too, in view of the fact that the preliminary boys, seeing a chance to make a name for themselves before a big house, put on some of their best stuff. But the fans pay more attention to the drama and after the show is over cannot recall the name of any of the preliminary boys.

Shoots in Saloon Holdup

Driven to the rear of his saloon at 1258 Juniata street by two shots fired by a lone robber, Charles Miller was compelled to stand by and watch the thief take $68 from the cash register behind the bar. The holdup occurred at 7:30 o'clock this morning.

Miller had just opened the place when the robber entered, and flashing a gun, demanded money. Miller started for the rear of the bar to get a revolver and the robber opened fire. Two shots went wild, but Miller heeded a demand to put up his hands.

After taking the money the robber ran to the street, boarded an auto and drove away. Detectives Thomas Creegan, William Harris, Sylvester Henry and William Long made a fruitless search of the neighborhood. They have a good description of the robber and his machine.

Gas Truck Wrecked By Blast

KITTANNING, Pa., July 27.—A tank truck carrying 300 gallons of gasoline was blown to pieces and the driver, Walter Hindman, and a Negro boy helper escaped injury, when backfire caused the gasoline to ignite and explode on the Kittanning-New Bethlehem road.

Hindman noticed the truck aflame and with the boy leaped and ran just before the tank exploded.

FILMDOM'S GREAT CALLED IN TRIAL FOR CAFE ARSON

LOS ANGELES, July 27.—(AP.)—The elite of Hollywood, flavored with a dash of old Russia, have moved to Los Angeles with the opening of the trial of Michael Tocaxe, film city restauranteur, charged with arson following an explosion and fire which destroyed his fashionable cafe recently.

Both the prosecution and defense sent a battery of subpena servers out to Hollywood and when court opened the scene resembled a movie "location."

Before the trial ends, the prosecution announced, the Marquis de la Falaise et de la Coudraye, husband of Gloria Swanson; Colleen Moore, her husband, John McCormack; Richard Dix and Charles Chaplin will be put on the stand to describe the fire and explosion.

The film celebrities fled from the cafe before the explosion wrecked the place. Oil soaked rags were found scattered about the building.

Gen. Theodore Lodijinsky, former member of the Russian Imperial Guards; Count Andrew Tolstoy, nephew of the famous novelist; Vladimir Torchin, former lieutenant colonel in the Russian army, and a host of other once-prominent dignitaries of the old Czarist regime have been subpenaed by either defense or prosecution.

N. Y. EMBEZZLER SUSPECT FOUND CHICKEN FARMING

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 27.—(INS.)—Admitting his identity and waiving extradition, William H. Pilkington, under indictment in New York city for the alleged embezzlement of $152,000, is held without bail today at Murrayville, B. C., until a New York officer arrives to escort him back to that city.

Pilkington, who left the eastern city last April while manager of the English firm of Joshua Hoyes & Sons, Ltd., which laid the charge, was arrested here Thursday.

Under an assumed name he had purchased a large chicken ranch at Murrayville. With him were his wife and two children.

When arrested he vigorously denied his identity, but after the New York police had been communicated with he admitted that he was the man wanted.

Search of his effects revealed only a few hundred dollars. He had paid $1,000 cash for the chicken ranch.

"I'm glad it's all over," he told provincial police, "and am ready to go back to New York at any time."

LIBERTY BONDS TRADE PERIOD EXPIRES JULY 31

WASHINGTON, July 27.—(AP.)—Acting Secretary Mills of the Treasury announced yesterday that the time for exchanging Third Liberty Loan 4¼ per cent bonds for the new 3⅜ per cent Treasury bonds of 1940-43 would expire July 31. He said that exchange applications in the mails or otherwise in transit before midnight on that date would be accepted.

MindGone, Recalls Pgh.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Suffering from amnesia, a well-dressed young man with no mark of identification about him is in Gallinger Hospital telling physicians who question him that Pittsburgh has a familiar sound, but he cannot connect the name with himself.

The only name he was able to associate with Pittsburgh is "Kaufman," according to Dr. Meyer K. Amour, clinical director. The man is 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 148 pounds, wears gold-rimmed glasses and has a smooth face. His eyes are slightly crossed. He is anywhere from 25 to 35.

Air Line Engages Title Woman As Pilot

LONDON, July 27. — (AP.) — Lady Heath, noted British airwoman, has been engaged by the Royal Dutch Air Lines as a pilot for the passenger air service. She is the first woman to be so employed.

Lady Heath, the former Mrs. Elliott Lynn, is the wife of Sir James Heath, ironmaster and colliery proprietor. She arrived at Croydon on May 17 from Cape Town, South Africa, completing a 10,000-mile solo flight started in February. She was the first woman to fly the length of the African continent.

When Miss Amelia Earhart was in England she was entertained by Lady Heath, and later the American girl bought Lady Heath's Moth plane.

THINK RIVER VICTIM WAS SCRANTON MAN

The body of an unidentified man was found floating in the Monongahela River under the Panhandle division bridge today by a Pennsylvania Railroad trackwalker. Papers on the man's body indicated that he was Ben Williams, 42, once of Scranton, and that as recently as May he worked for the Keystone Commission Company of Monaca.

WOMAN IN GEM MYSTERY DISCOVERED IN SANITARIUM

GREENWICH, Conn., July 27.—(INS.)—Closely guarded by an attendant and a victim of the wildest hallucinations, Mrs. Maria J. Leslie, central figure in the strange $238,000 Wanamaker gem mystery, was found yesterday in a private sanitarium near Greenwich, Conn., by an International News Service reporter.

The white-haired woman, who is accused of obtaining the gems from the Wanamaker store in Philadelphia without payment and selling them to Harry Winston, Fifth avenue diamond merchant, "to pay Freddie's gambling debts," was walking in the park which surrounds the sanitarium of Dr. J. E. Bowman on the Stanwick road, Greenwich. Close at her side was a nurse.

"They were always good to me. They always treated me well," Mrs. Leslie mumbled. It developed later that she was talking of her employers, Capt. and Mrs. Isaac A. Emerson of Baltimore, for whom she worked as housekeeper, and to whom she charged the gems.

The nurse held her finger to her lips. Mrs. Leslie, upon whose countenance there appeared for a moment an intelligent and comprehending expression, looked away into space and did not answer the question: "Do you feel better?"

Dr. Bowman, who drew the reporter into his private office, shook his head. Mrs. Leslie continued her stroll.

"Is is a bad case," the doctor said. "She is mentally ill. She is not a committed case. I do not take committed cases. That is, she has not been declared insane."

Mrs. Emerson, the story had gone, had commissioned Mrs. Leslie to negotiate the gem deal to pay her son's debts so the boy's father would not learn of the incident.

X-RAYS OF GIRL'S HURTS NO FAKE, EXPERTS SAY

LANSING, Mich., July 27.—(AP.)—Arthur C. Rich, son of a wealthy Battle Creek manufacturer, serving a life sentence for attacking Louise King, of Washington, Pa., Battle Creek college co-ed, lost another try for freedom when Gov. Fred W. Green yesterday declared unsubstantiated the charges that X-ray plates showing Miss King's injuries had been tampered with.

George Rich, father of Arthur, recently alleged that the plates which figured prominently in the trial which resulted in his son's conviction were fictitious. The Governor ordered an examination of them by University of Michigan experts.

"In the matter of the films offered as those of Louise King in the Rich case the conclusions of Dr. Lyons of the university, are that the films show no evdence of having been retouched or tampered with in any way. I do not believe there has been anything disclosed in this examination whereby I would be justified in issuing a parole to Arthur Rich."

Rich was sentenced a little over two years ago and is confined in Jackson State Prison.

3 CHILDREN DIE IN WRECK, FIRE

ROCKVILLE, Conn., July 27.—(AP.)—Three children were killed and 11 others injured yesterday when an automobile truck in which they were returning from work at a tobacco plantation at Ellington overturned at Ogden's corners, near here. They were pinned under the truck when it overturned on a slippery roadway, recently oiled, and caught fire. The three bodies were so badly charred they have not been identified.

Between 30 and 35 children ranging in age from 12 to 19 were aboard the truck. Joseph Radville, the driver, who was unhurt, said he lost control of the machine when it began to skid. He was arrested. The children resided in Manchester and Hartford.

TRAPPED IN DEEP SEWER, REPAIRMAN IS RESCUED

WHEELING, W. Va., July 27.—(AP.)—Trapped in a 24-inch sewer, 30 feet below the surface of the street, Burly Howard, 35, sewer repairman, had a narrow escape from death yesterday. Fellow workers pumped out the flooded sewer, using pails and a hand pump, until a fire department pumper arrived. Sediment had blocked the sewer, damming the water.

2 SHOT BY MISTAKE

SPOKANE, Wash., July 27—(AP.)—L. P. Johnson, Federal prohibition officer, was probably fatally wounded and Deputy Sheriff R. Hand, of Wenatchee, severely wounded in a shooting affray near Leavenworth, Wash., that resulted when Johnson was mistaken by Sheriff Pete Wheeler for a liquor runner.

Wheeler and Hand were carrying remnants of a captured still to their automobile when Johnson ordered them to put up their hands. Hand, thinking his assailant a member of a liquor gang, resisted and was shot several times in the leg by Johnson. Sheriff Wheeler returned the fire and Johnson received five body wounds.

OFFICERS SEIZE STILLS, LIQUOR

James L. Thomas, 33, was arrested by prohibition agents last night when 65 gallons of moonshine were reported seized in his home in Chianti street.

Visiting a residence in Jeremias street, Swissvale, the officers confiscated a 25-gallon still, 14 gallons of moonshine and six barrels of mash.

A still was also seized in a South Side dwelling and the alleged owner arrested. Moonshine was found in a Butler street grocery store and a North Side saloon.

WOMAN AUTO VICTIM HIT IN SMITHFIELD ST.

Struck by an automobile at First avenue and Smithfield street, yesterday, Mrs. Bruce Manning, 34, of 65 Millbridge street, hurt her left hip and ankle and was taken to Mercy Hospital. The car was driven by Leonard Spiker, 24, of 928 Mellon street, who was arrested.

The Murder Is Fastened on Bianca Wickert, But She Has Disappeared

SHE watched him under her lashes. All the way to Novel City and back she kept stealing glances at his beautifully chiseled profile, adoring his pride, the high, joyous nobility of him.

Marty had been wrong. Kent was fine through and through. That rushed goldenly into her throughout and exalted her. Marty had been wrong; Steve Day had been wrong; not all the blueblood clan were false and grinding. Individuals, maybe, but there were such among the redbloods, too.

Blood, she decided suddenly, had nothing to do with the heart. And the heart determined character. If the heart beat true then the blood ran true, be it blue or red.

Radiancy swept her; when she told Kent good-night he leaned down, looking into her transformed face.

"You are the most beautiful thing in the world," he said. And drove quickly away.

She closed the link next morning. Kent had told her exactly what to do. She carried some snapshots to the Wickert home and asked Bianca to look at them. The snapshots were unimportant but Emily was very careful not to touch their glazed surfaces after the Spanish woman had left her finger prints on them.

CHAPTER LIV.

IT was nearing autumn again. The marigold patch still glowed, bravely enough, but rather wistfully, too, yearning toward the passing summer. And only a few of the four-o'clocks opened their cups for the afternoon sun.

But gay cosmos smiled through the laces of their leaves and hydrangeas were beginning to blush with pleasure at being alive and in bloom. The season was blithe in spite of its transientness.

This was a dreamy, gentle interlude for Emily, filled with peace; a time when she saw herself as a figure on a long, long trail, not unhappy but always alone.

Moving into the sunset toward achievement of a sort, perhaps. But no heady thrill with it; no vivid ray of inspiration striking from a lofty summit like the one which had beckoned long ago.

Behind her were turbulent days, over and gone, and here was rest in a full, lazy tide of quiet. Later she must struggle again, meet the problems of life. But those seemed far away now and not very real.

She spent much time in thought, reliving the months just past; marveling at the manner in which chance—or was it, as Frances declared, Supreme Intelligence—had cleared her way.

After she had closed the link, which fastened Bianca Wickert to the murder of her husband, terror had come to Emily. For she understood that Bianca's conviction would not keep her sister from being a witness in the case; it would not keep Kitten from public disgrace.

It wouldn't save Kent either, since he felt it his duty to call his own sister to the stand.

"All we can do is the right thing, Emily," he said, his face grim. "If trouble comes from that we must meet it."

There was the morning when the sheriff went to the Wickert home with the warrant and found only frightened servants. Bianca had gone. The search for her extended far and wide, but she had a 12-hour start. And there were plenty to help her in New York's Spanish quarter.

And after a time the metropolitan newspapers no longer carried her name in headlines and even Lyall talked of something else.

So there was no trial in the old brick courthouse at Novel City.

Years later one returning from a world-tour was to bring back an account of a beautiful and temperamental Spanish dancer, toast of a South American capital. And a few were to wonder if the woman were Bianca. But none ever knew or cared, particularly. Few mourned Nicky Wickert.

There was another morning when Kitten and Ted were married at the parsonage of the Methodist Church. Very solemn, rather beautiful it had seemed to Emily with her arm about Agnes, who wept throughout the ceremony.

Kitten strangely sober, little face spiritualized, a glory in the amber eyes. At her side the dark boy so young, so tender, so filled with lofty purpose.

He came to Emily before he took Kitten away and pressed her hand between his palms. "I'll always be good to her," he said.

"I know you will, Ted. Bless you."

Nevertheless she wept over the bride. "You're going to be happy, Kitten-cat?"

"Emmy, dear! I've never thanked you!"

"There, now. Why, it's all right, darling. Emmy understands."

"I do love you so. Next to Ted. Isn't he wonderful? I'm going to be a good wife to him. Well, I've learned. Good-bye, Emmy—Muz. Good-bye."

Then went to the "cute little bungalow" Ted had made ready and began to live, as he said, "like a king and queen."

Things were quieter after that. Stella, feeling at last she could leave her baby, came to work in the shop. She saw none of the romance there Emily had found; colors were just colors to her and not living beauty; she never had experienced the fascination of Just Pretend.

But she worked earnestly and what she lacked in imagination she made up in effort. Frances called her dependable and was satisfied.

Eventually Emily went back to scanning the society column. And it was on the day she read of Mrs. Dirk Van Alstyne's trip abroad that she saw Marty's engagement announced.

Mrs. Van Alystne, the item ran, had gone to Paris to file suit for divorce. While there she would be the guest of Miss Marilee Grainger who had taken up a permanent residence in the French city.

Then: "Judge and Mrs. Samuel Morrow announce the engagement of their daughter, Anne, to Mr. Martin Aloysious Nolan. The marriage will take place in October."

"So it was ambition," Emily reflected. "Not just poor little Kitten. Well—" But suddenly she laughed. "One would think I cared. Probably they love each other and are very happy. I'm sure I hope so."

She forgot it then, so completely as to be rather startled later when she read of the wedding plans.

Kent had been out of town a month or more and she was glad. His absence seemed an opportunity; a time in which to pull away from him, from all he had meant through the Wickert affair and afterward.

Emily did not try to deceive herself about her love for him. It had grown with the years; nothing she had thought or felt or experienced had changed it; nothing could change it. Kent to her was a young god and she wanted only to enshrine him in memory; to be alone, upon rare occasions, with the image of him, adoring priestess in a temple of dreams.

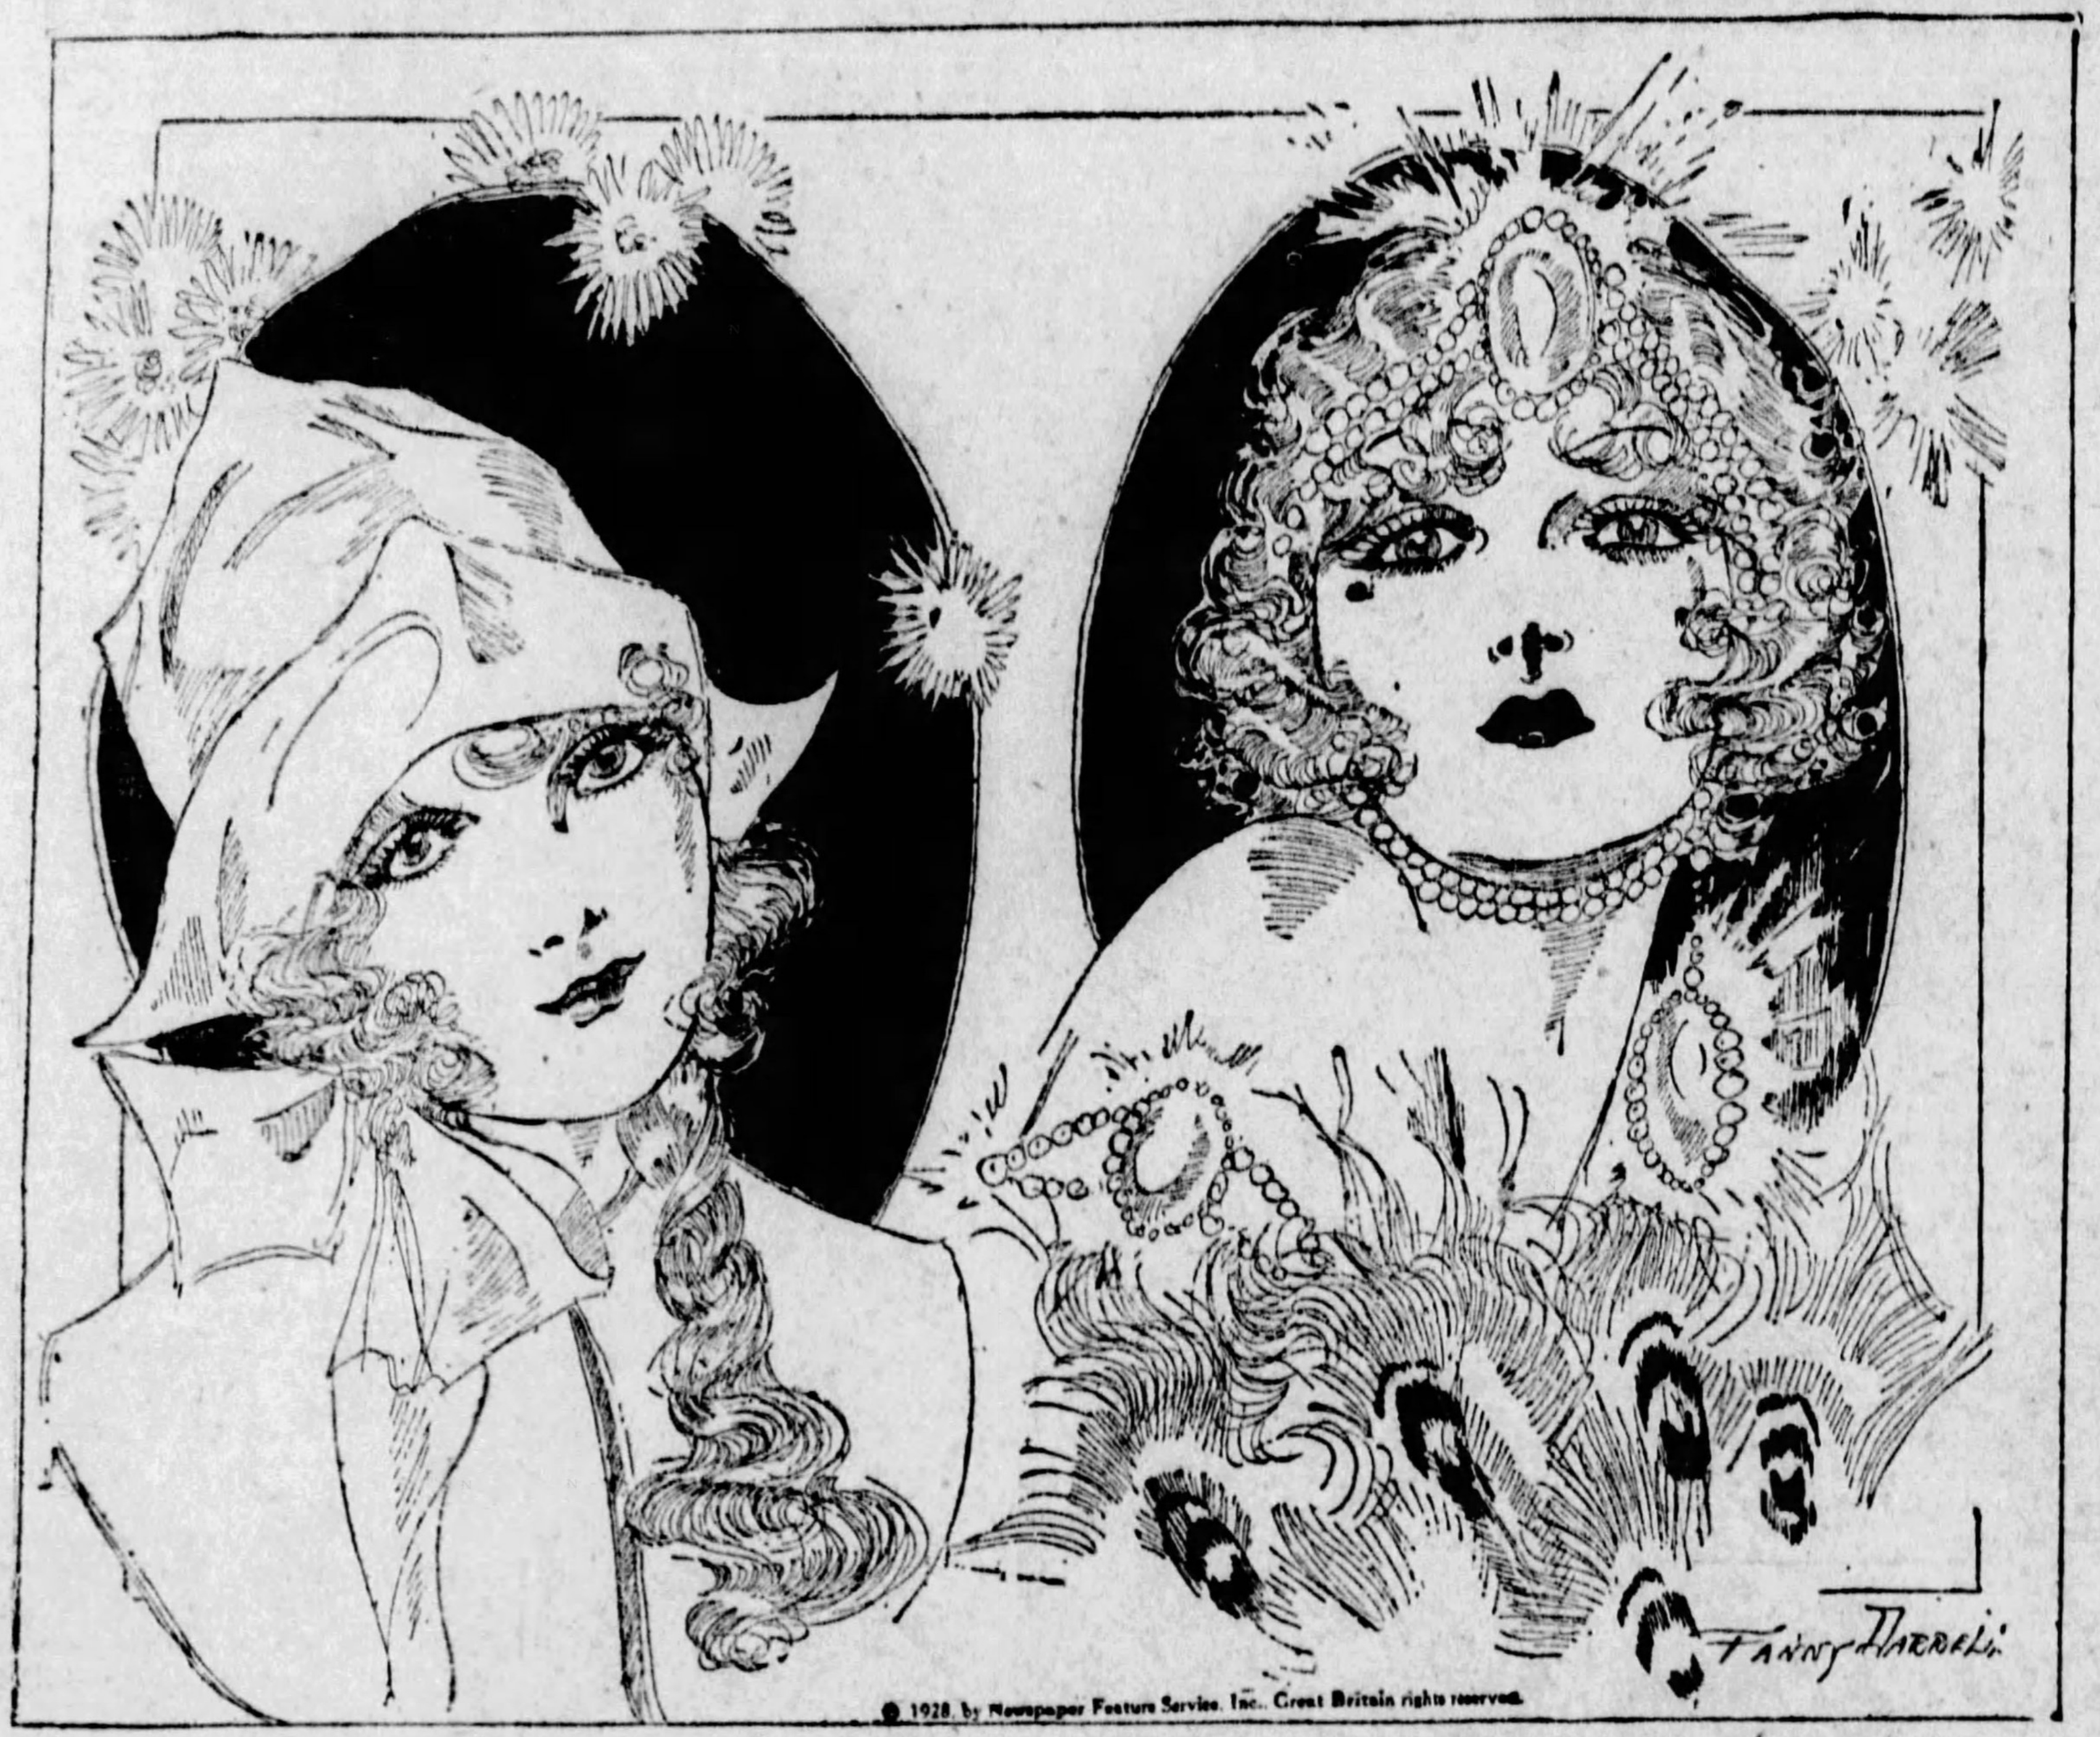
Peacock Feathers -:- -:- By Fanny Darrell



© 1928, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved.

THERE is an old Japanese proverb which says: "When all praised the peacock's tail, the birds cried 'Look at his legs, and what a voice!'" Also there is a Scotch saying, "Bonny feathers dinna aye mak' bonny birds." Of course, to offset these maxims we have "Fine feathers make fine birds," as well as the old French proverb, "Clothes do much to make a man." So that all these sayings seem almost paradoxical. And in these modern times how often one hears from the lips of one of the fair sex the disparaging remark, "Of course she is attractive. With all the gorgeous clothes she is wearing anyone would look beautiful." Fortunately, much might be said on both sides. The proud beauty adorned with exquisite jewels, and fine peacock feathers may lack nothing in fascination and may easily conquer many hearts. On the other hand, the bewitching unadorned maiden who smiles so wistfully certainly possesses a great deal of charm, character and allurement. So one must say, each one to his taste.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

WHY MEN MARRY SOONER OR LATER

THE one thing that a woman cannot BEAR, is the sight of a man going around single, free foot-loose and heart-whole!

* * *

It is like seeing a wonderful bargain left on a shop-counter. She'll take it whether she wants it or not! If she can't marry him herself, she'll get busy on the spot, trying to marry him off to some other woman!

* * *

Every bachelor's life is tormented and embittered by the women who are trying to "marry him off." The dangerous woman in his path is not the temptress or the wild woman, but the innocent looking matron who wants him to "meet that sweet girl."

HELEN ROWLAND

The very sight of an eligible bachelor is to a woman like a call to arms. The very twinkle of challenge in his eyes rouses all her fighting instinct, and makes her blood tingle for the hunt.

Men are what women MARRY! A bachelor has no place or purpose in life, except as somebody's future husband.

* * *

To find a perfectly good potential husband, hanging around loose, carefree and unclaimed, in a world full of hope chests all ready and waiting, seems to any woman sheer wanton waste.

Nearly all men marry, sooner or later—usually sooner than they expected and later than the woman intended.

* * *

But, the average man is so afraid of skidding into matrimony, that he sprinkles the path of romance with tacks instead of with flowers—and makes love with both hands on the wheel and his eye on the traffic signals.

He could hold out forever against any woman who tried to lure him or pull him into marriage; but it's all the OTHER women who are trying to PUSH him into it, that finally break down his resistance and gently ease him to the altar, willy-nilly.

* * *

Next to capturing a man, herself, nothing gives a woman such a thrill of triumph, as to have "made a MATCH," and helped another woman catch him. She thinks that she did it for the sake of Mary; but in reality, it was for the conquest and subjugation of Bill. It was her feminine urge for tidying up the world and getting rid of the loose ends. An unmarried man lying around loose just clutters up things. It is up to the first woman who spies him to put him in his place where he will fit into the scene of things and be of some USE!

What makes a man marry—in spite of all his prejudices, boasts, wisdom and cynicism? The women, of course—the WOMEN!

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

Veritzen Devotes Himself Exclusively to Mrs. Graham

I CONFESS that it was with rather a malicious anticipation of triumph over Lillian that I watched Philip Veritzen assisting Dicky's mother to get out of his limousine when we reached the beach on the bay where we were to begin our day's outing. Knowing my mother-in-law's obduracy in sticking to an opinion when she once has formed one, and knowing also her very real antipathy to my employer, I took little stock in Lillian's prophecy that the great producer's campaign of attention and adroit flattery would make my mother-in-law think him a "combination of G. Washington and the Earl of Chesterfield."

But when Mother Graham reached the ground, I saw that her face was beaming with enjoyment, and when Mr. Veritzen offered her his arm, saying gaily, "I'm not going to let anybody steal my partner for the day," she bridled like a mid-Victorian school girl, and tapped his arm playfully with the folded old-fashioned fan she always carries to any summer festivity.

"I'm afraid you're a sad flatterer," she said, and there was a pleased note in her voice that I never had heard. I forgot my amazement in the uncomfortable reflection that while we loved Mother Graham and indulged her yet neither Dicky nor I ever had paid her the subtle heady tribute of appearing supremely interested in her and her view of things—an offering which it was plain that Philip Veritzen was adroitly giving her. She was like a child with a new and delightful toy, and I felt an unreasoning irritation against my employer, husband, and most of all, myself, that a stranger should have been able to delight her with so little effort.

"Well?" Lillian murmured, and I made a grimace at her as she laughed triumphantly. No one was near enough to notice us, for everybody had dashed for the rustic bathhouses which my father has erected upon the stretch of beach and woodland back of it, which he bought several years ago that Junior might always have a place of his own for water sports.

"You win, hands down," I told her, "but I am lost in wonder. He is a miracle worker."

"No, but he's the most fascinating man when he chooses to be that I've ever known, and I've listened to a few nifties in my checkered career. But I wonder if you've yet realized all the delicate points of his plan. He isn't doing this all for the purpose of fascinating your mother-in-law and thus making it easier for him to talk to you."

"I didn't," I began indignantly, but Lillian's pleased gamin smile told me that she deliberately had dangled the bait for my snapping. "Had you that time," she gibed and then went on swiftly, soberly.

"There are three things sloshing around in that wise noodle of his, and dancing attendance on your mother-in-law we'll call number one, although I believe it's the least important to him of the three. Number two is the fact that Phil will never yield the center of the stage to any other man, especially in sartorial impressiveness. He knows, the canny old goat, that while Dicky, Noel and young Jackson can get away with bathing suits, an older man even as good-looking as he is, looks like something cast up on the beach by the wavelets, so under the guise of elaborate and noble-hearted courtesy to an old woman he's going to stick close to the only person of the party who don't go in swimming."

Tri-Color for Evening

Three-in-one is the color scheme most in vogue for sheer evening gowns. The soft, flower-like colorings inspired by natural blossoms are loveliest when a blending of three shades of the same color are used. Some of the new tones are geranium, gladiola, hydrangea, iris, carnation, poppy and watermelon.

Purse Made Like Bulldog

Putting a watchdog on guard of your purse is quite an idea, but probably not so unique a one as actually having a purse of suede made in the likeness of a bulldog, with brown bead eyes. Opening at one side, with a button flap, it has two leather handles on the back.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland, M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

Muscular Atrophy a Serious Ailment

NOTHING can be much worse than to lose the power of locomotion or to become helpless in the use of arms and hands. Such an affliction can come as the result of an injury, but also it may be the advanced stage of an affliction called "Progressive Muscular Atrophy." The "living skeleton" in the circus sideshow is the victim—or the beneficiary—of this disease. He is capitalizing his misery.

DR. COPELAND

In the beginning of this disease, there are pains in the arms and shoulders. At first the patient may think he has a slight touch of rheumatism. Then he notices an unusual, tired feeling, or a sense of numbness somewhere.

A little later there is atrophy or wasting of one or more muscles. The trouble may be in the hand, perhaps it becomes difficult to move the thumb. Gradually the other muscles of the hands are attacked. Then the forearm, the arm and shoulder are attacked.

This one-sided process may have taken several months. Then it jumps over to the other hand and progresses on that side in exactly the same way.

You see the disease is well named. Not only is it a disease causing atrophy or wasting of the muscles, but also it is progressive in its effects.

The leg muscles are not so commonly involved, but after awhile they are seized, and walking becomes an effort. All the muscles are soft and flabby. The weakness of the tissues is shown by excessive sweating.

In rare cases the speech is affected because the neck muscles are involved. For the same reason it may be difficult to swallow.

The progress of the disease is not always steady and uniform. There may be periods when it seems as if the ailment was cured. Then on it comes again, even if marked improvement had been noted.

The trouble is due to degenerative changes in the spinal cord. The disease extends along the cord and, as it progresses, the various groups of muscles supplied by the spinal nerves become involved in the wasting process.

While the disease is met from early youth to old age, it is most common in the active period of life, from 25 to 40 or 45.

There are many alleged causes. It follows the various acute infectious diseases. Typhoid fever has been noted particularly as a causative factor. Any infection from within the body, as, for instance, tonsil involvement or bad teeth, may be responsible.

Extreme overwork, overworry, overuse of any set of muscles, all these are possible factors. It has been known to follow childbirth. Lead poisoning and inflammatory rheumatism are other causes.

In the treatment it is essential to seek the cause. If this can be traced to bad teeth or tonsils, or to some other removable condition, it is easy to deal with it.

Unfortunately, it is difficult in most instances, to find a causative factor. Then the case must be dealt with on general principles. The simple rules of hygiene must be urged upon the patient. Fresh air, good, nourishing food, lots of rest and sleep, avoidance of all disturbing and disquieting things are vitally important.

Electricity in various forms has been recommended. The attending doctor must direct the treatment, but faithful adherence to his instructions is essential to success in treatment.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Saturday, July 28

THIS day may be notable for some stubborn obstructions and unyielding postponements, judging by the crystallizing tendency of Saturn conjoined with the moon. It may be difficult to escape rebuffs or reversals under this rule, but there are compensations in the way of domestic tranquility and affectional satisfactions. Guard the health and that of the family as well.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared to seek their satisfaction and compensations in personal activities and domestic relations during the year, since there are omens of delays and obstructions elsewhere. It is suggested that the health be given consideration.

A child born on this day may be steady and industrious, but may meet stubborn obstacles to progress. It should find many compensations in its purely personal connections and activities.

As above, so below; as in the heavens so on earth; as the within so without.—HERMES.

For the Lovelorn

Curly Head

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a steady reader of your Lovelorn column and think your advice is wonderful and so I am coming for some of your advice. I am a girl in my teens and agree with you on the petting, drinking and smoking questions. Now, Miss Gale, here are my problems: First, I met a very nice fellow at a party and I took a liking to him as soon as I saw him. Would it be proper for me to invite him to the house the next time I see him, for I would do anything to have his friendship, and I care for him very much, so please advise me? Miss Gale, is it proper to let your boy friend hold your hands in a theater? Is it proper for a group of girls to go out walking with a group of boys, and is 10:30 o'clock too late to stay out when walking? Miss Gale, there is a boy in our neighborhood who cares for me, but I do not care for him. How should I tell him I don't care for him? Would it be all right if I would send him a note saying I do not care to meet him again. Hoping I may enter your advice column again and wishing you loads of luck, I remain,

CURLY HEAD.

It is a girl's privilege to invite a man to call on her, my dear. Don't let a boy hold your hand in the theater. It cheapens you. I see no harm in a walk, if your parents permit it. Ten-thirty is not too late. If you refuse all this boy's invitations, he will understand your feelings without your telling him.

Blue Eyes

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am coming to you for advice. I have been going with a fellow about seven months. We have had a quarrel for three weeks, because every time I would talk about marriage he wouldn't like it. So one day I wrote a letter to him, and told him that I wanted to settle down. I do not want to give him up because I love him. Ever since I wrote him that letter I have never seen him or heard from him. Do you think he loves me? How could I win back his friendship? Do not tell me to give him up because I couldn't—because I love him.

BLUE EYES.

The man obviously doesn't want to marry and you have frightened him away by insisting on it. There is nothing you can do now but leave him alone and see what effect that has.

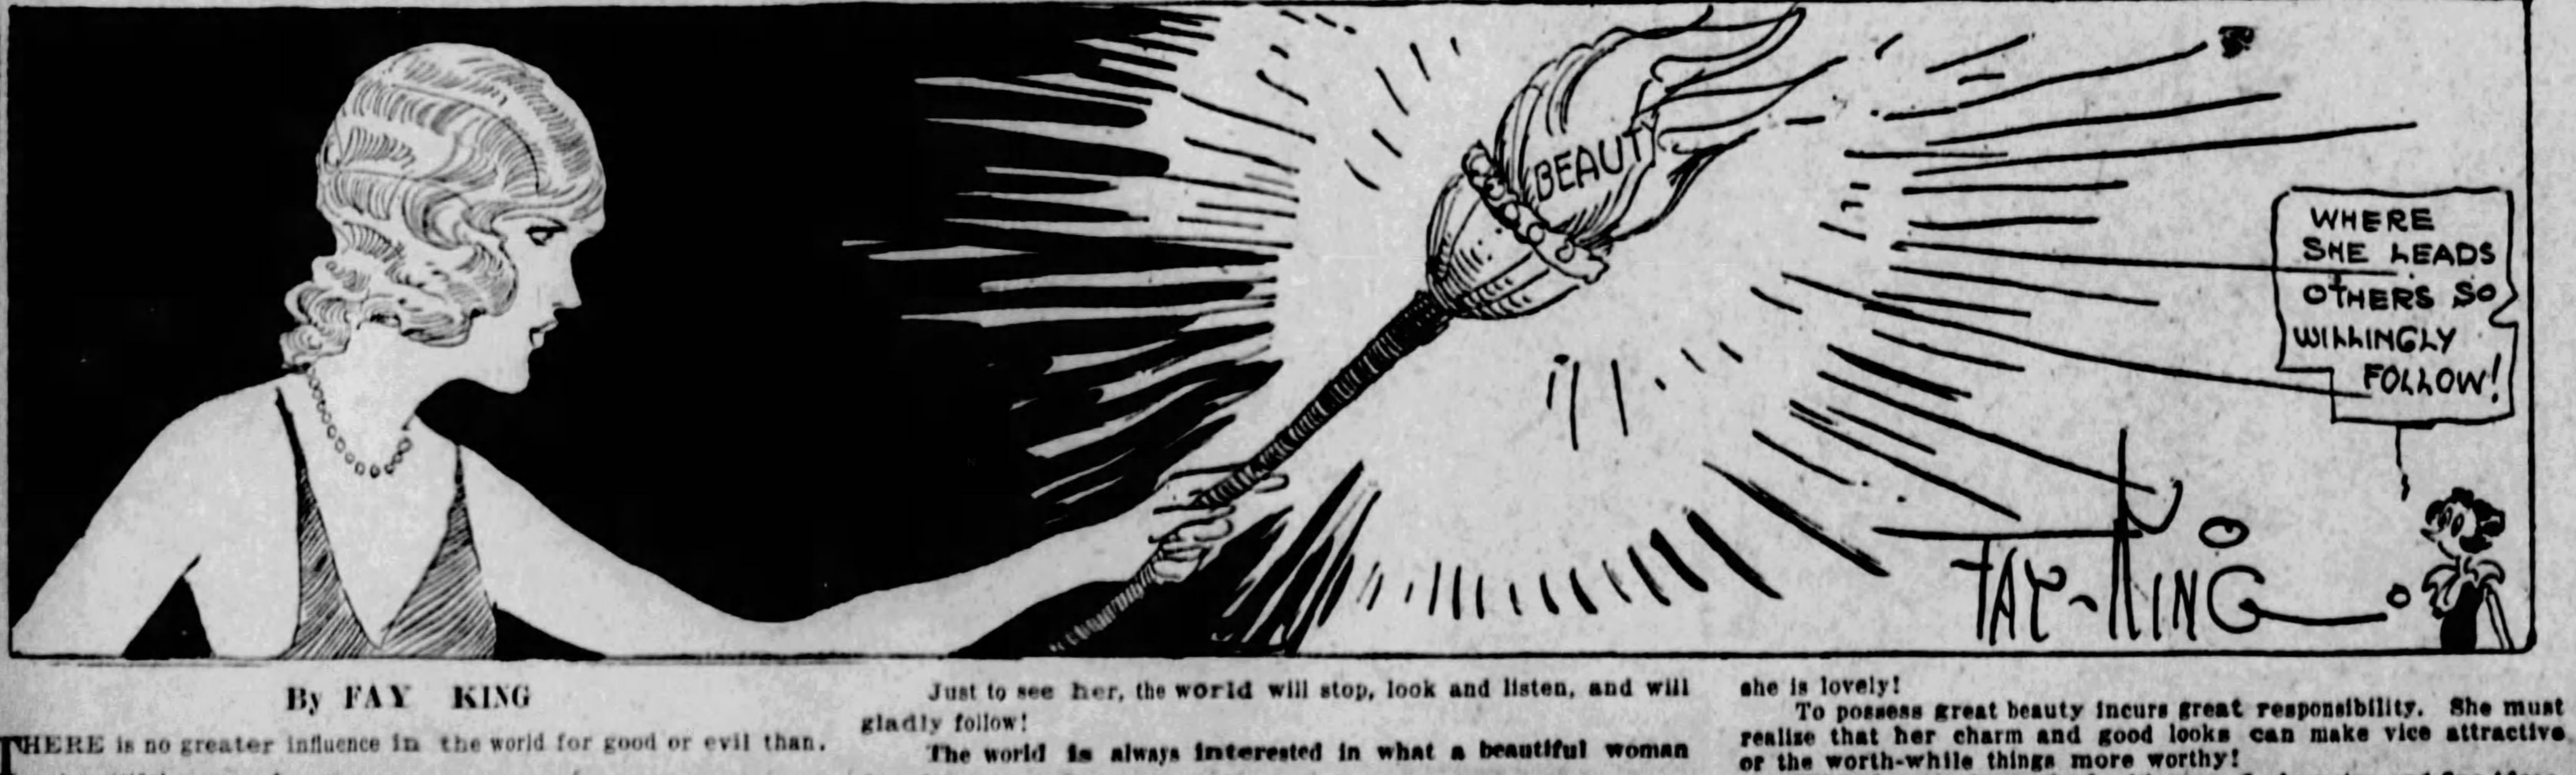
Fay King Explains Why Beauty in Women Has Vast Influence



BEAUTY
WHERE SHE LEADS OTHERS SO WILLINGLY FOLLOW!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

THERE is no greater influence in the world for good or evil than a beautiful woman!

With beauty she may inspire almost anything she wishes.

Just to see her, the world will stop, look and listen, and will gladly follow!

The world is always interested in what a beautiful woman does!

Even her mistakes in life are looked upon more leniently if she is lovely!

To possess great beauty incurs great responsibility. She must realise that her charm and good looks can make vice attractive or the worth-while things more worthy!

When beauty is matched with a good character and fine ideas, it is the greatest influence for good on earth!

ONGAHELA VALLEY OSPITAL WORK RUSHED

CHARLEROI, Pa., July 27.—Work on the $250,000 Charleroi-Monessen Hospital is being rushed as plans went ahead for a winter dedication of the structure. It will be the largest hospital in the upper Monongahela Valley and will include a modern training school for nurses.

SIX WHEELING SITES FOR AIRPORT REJECTED

WHEELING, W. Va., July 27.—(AP.)—Six proposed sites for a city airport here were found unsuitable by W. O. Snyder, Department of Commerce inspector, on visiting them yesterday. He was to visit eight other places to determine whether they would make suitable fields.

SHALER TOWNSHIP FOLK TO DEBATE WATER PLANT

Residents of Shaler township will meet in the Undercliff School next Thursday evening to discuss plans for a fresh water system and also for a sewage disposal system. The meeting will be open for discussion. A report will also be made on the meeting of the township commissioners held July 3.

STORAGE EXCEEDS SALE PRICE OF SEIZED AUTOS

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 27.—Selling automobiles confiscated in rum-running cases is not found profitable in Washington county. Six machines at auction as demanded by law brought $480 while the storage costs amounted to $556. This has been the experience of authorities here in all such sales.

Dethol

It shows them no mercy

WHY play hide and seek or give in to flies and mosquitoes? You don't have to tolerate these annoying pests another single day. Spray Dethol. Get rid of them.

Dethol never fails. Flies and mosquitoes breathe it—and die. By the roomful. And it's so easy. The Dethol mist from the handy sprayer does it. Just as deadly to roaches, ants, bedbugs, moths, fleas. For cleaning, spray basins, bathtubs, tiling. Leaves a spotless, glistening surface when wiped. And you'll like the clean, refreshing odor of Dethol.

Nothing is so quick, so sure as Dethol. If you don't think so too, if you're the least bit dissatisfied with Dethol, return it to the store and get your money back. Dethol Mfg. Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

MADE WONDERFUL CHANGE IN HER!

Carrick Lady Feels Like New After Ten Herbs Benefited Stomach and Nerves

"Since using Ten Herbs, I have undergone a wonderful change for the better," was the statement of Mrs. Anna Humburg, 221 Meredith Street, Carrick, Pa. (near Pittsburgh), to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this popular medicine.

MRS. ANNA HUMBURG

"For a long time I had been troubled with my stomach," Mrs. Humburg continued. "Even the lightest kind of food would ferment and cause a great amount of gas to form. I was terribly bloated and in constant misery. My nerves were so bad that I could not sleep at night, and I got so weak that I could not do my housework. I think I was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. Neuritis was so bad in my shoulders that I could not raise my arms above my head. I had hot flashes and rushes of blood to my head. My whole system seemed to be upset and in need of a thorough cleansing. I was discouraged, as I had tried many different medicines without being benefited.

"After reading the statements of many local people, all praising Ten Herbs, I started using your medicine. Now I look and feel like a different woman. I have a normal appetite and can eat anything without misery afterwards—no more gas, bloating, or belching. My nerves are stronger. I get a good night's sleep and arise feeling rested and refreshed. I have more energy and ambition. The neuritis pains in my shoulders have been greatly relieved and only occasionally do I feel a slight twinge. Ten Herbs does not work on one organ alone, but seems to give the whole digestive tract a thorough cleansing. I gladly endorse your medicine to the public."

The Ten Herbs Main is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

FOOD EXPERT GIVES MENUS

Menu for Sunday's Dinner

—By PRUDENCE PENNY

Atipasto
Roast Lamb with Mint Sauce
Browned Potatoes
Green Peas Green Corn
Peach Sundae

TO start the meal, prepare individual servings of relishes. Place a little mound of cold slaw in the center of the plate. Then in a circle around it lay slices of salami, Italian ham, tomato and pimento. Across the plate, a piece of stuffed celery and wherever you find room, tuck a couple of stuffed olives.

FOR mint sauce take one-half cup of water, one-half cup of vinegar and two tablespoonsful of sugar. Bring to a boil and cook until the sugar is dissolved. Bruise two tablespoonsful of mint leaves, and cover with the hot vinegar syrup. Chill.

Remove the skin from a leg of lamb. Score the fat well and place in a hot oven. Cook about two hours, basting often with the fat in the pan. Some people do not like to salt meat until it is done but I always salt a roast well before putting it in the oven. Place washed and peeled potatoes about the meat, one hour before taking it up. Turn them once during that time.

SHELL peas and put on to cook with barely enough water to cover. The water should be entirely absorbed by the time the peas are cooked. Melt a tablespoonful of butter in a sauce pan and saute a tablespoonful of chopped chives or onion sprouts in it until tender. Add the peas and stir about in the butter. Cover and let simmer until ready to serve.

Green corn should be covered with boiling water and cooked 10 minutes.

Pare and cut up peaches in small pieces. Sweeten to taste and serve over vanilla or peach ice cream.

Vegetable Soup—Two cups milk, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 tablespoon butter, salt, 2-3 cupful thoroughly cooked vegetables—peas, potatoes, celery

By PRUDENCE PENNY.

carrots, spinach, cauliflower, etc.—mashed or put through sieve.

Blend flour and butter and add milk, then other ingredients. If the soup is too thick, thin it with milk or water.

Rice Pudding—One quart milk, 1-3 cupful rice, 1-3 cupful sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg or cinnamon.

Wash rice thoroughly, mix ingredients and bake three hours or more in a very slow oven, stirring occasionally.

Junket—Two cupfuls milk, 3 tablespoons sugar, honey or syrup, 1 junket tablet, ⅛ teaspoon salt, a few grains nutmeg or cinnamon.

Warm milk and crush tablet, add it with other ingredients to milk. Pour into one large or several small dishes and place in a warm (not hot) place to harden. Cool before serving.

Milk Stew—One quart milk, 1 cupful raw potatoes cut into small pieces; 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cupful salt codfish cut into small pieces or just enough to flavor stew.

Soak fish in lukewarm water until it is soft and the salt removed. Cook potatoes in water until tender, drain them, add milk and codfish, and bring to boiling point, add butter and salt to taste.

If you don't want to use fish, add a few drops of lemon juice, or a vegetable cut into small pieces and cooked thoroughly.

ONION SOUP GRATIN—Slice six large onions. Melt 2½ tablespoons of butter and fry onions in it until they are browned. Add 6 or 8 cups beef stock or water and boil soup until onions are tender, about 15 minutes. Put soup into casserole or baking dish, add slices of bread and sprinkle with cheese so that some of it is on bread. Bake soup in hot oven for 5 to 15 minutes.

STUFFED SPANISH ONIONS—Parboil six large Spanish onions for 10 minutes. Let them get a little cool, then cut a slice off top and scoop out part of pulp. Mix 6 tablespoons chopped cooked ham, 3 tablespoons bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon butter and pepper and salt to taste. Fill cavity made in onions with this mixture. Pour over them 2 cups beef stock and bake in moderate oven for one hour.

CRAB AND ASPARAGUS SALAD—Shred ½ pound of fresh crabmeat and marinate in French dressing for one hour, together with one pound of fresh asparagus tips cut in inch pieces. Add one-third cup chopped walnuts and fork lightly in one cup shreded and crisped lettuce. Add mayonnaise, mix and serve at once.

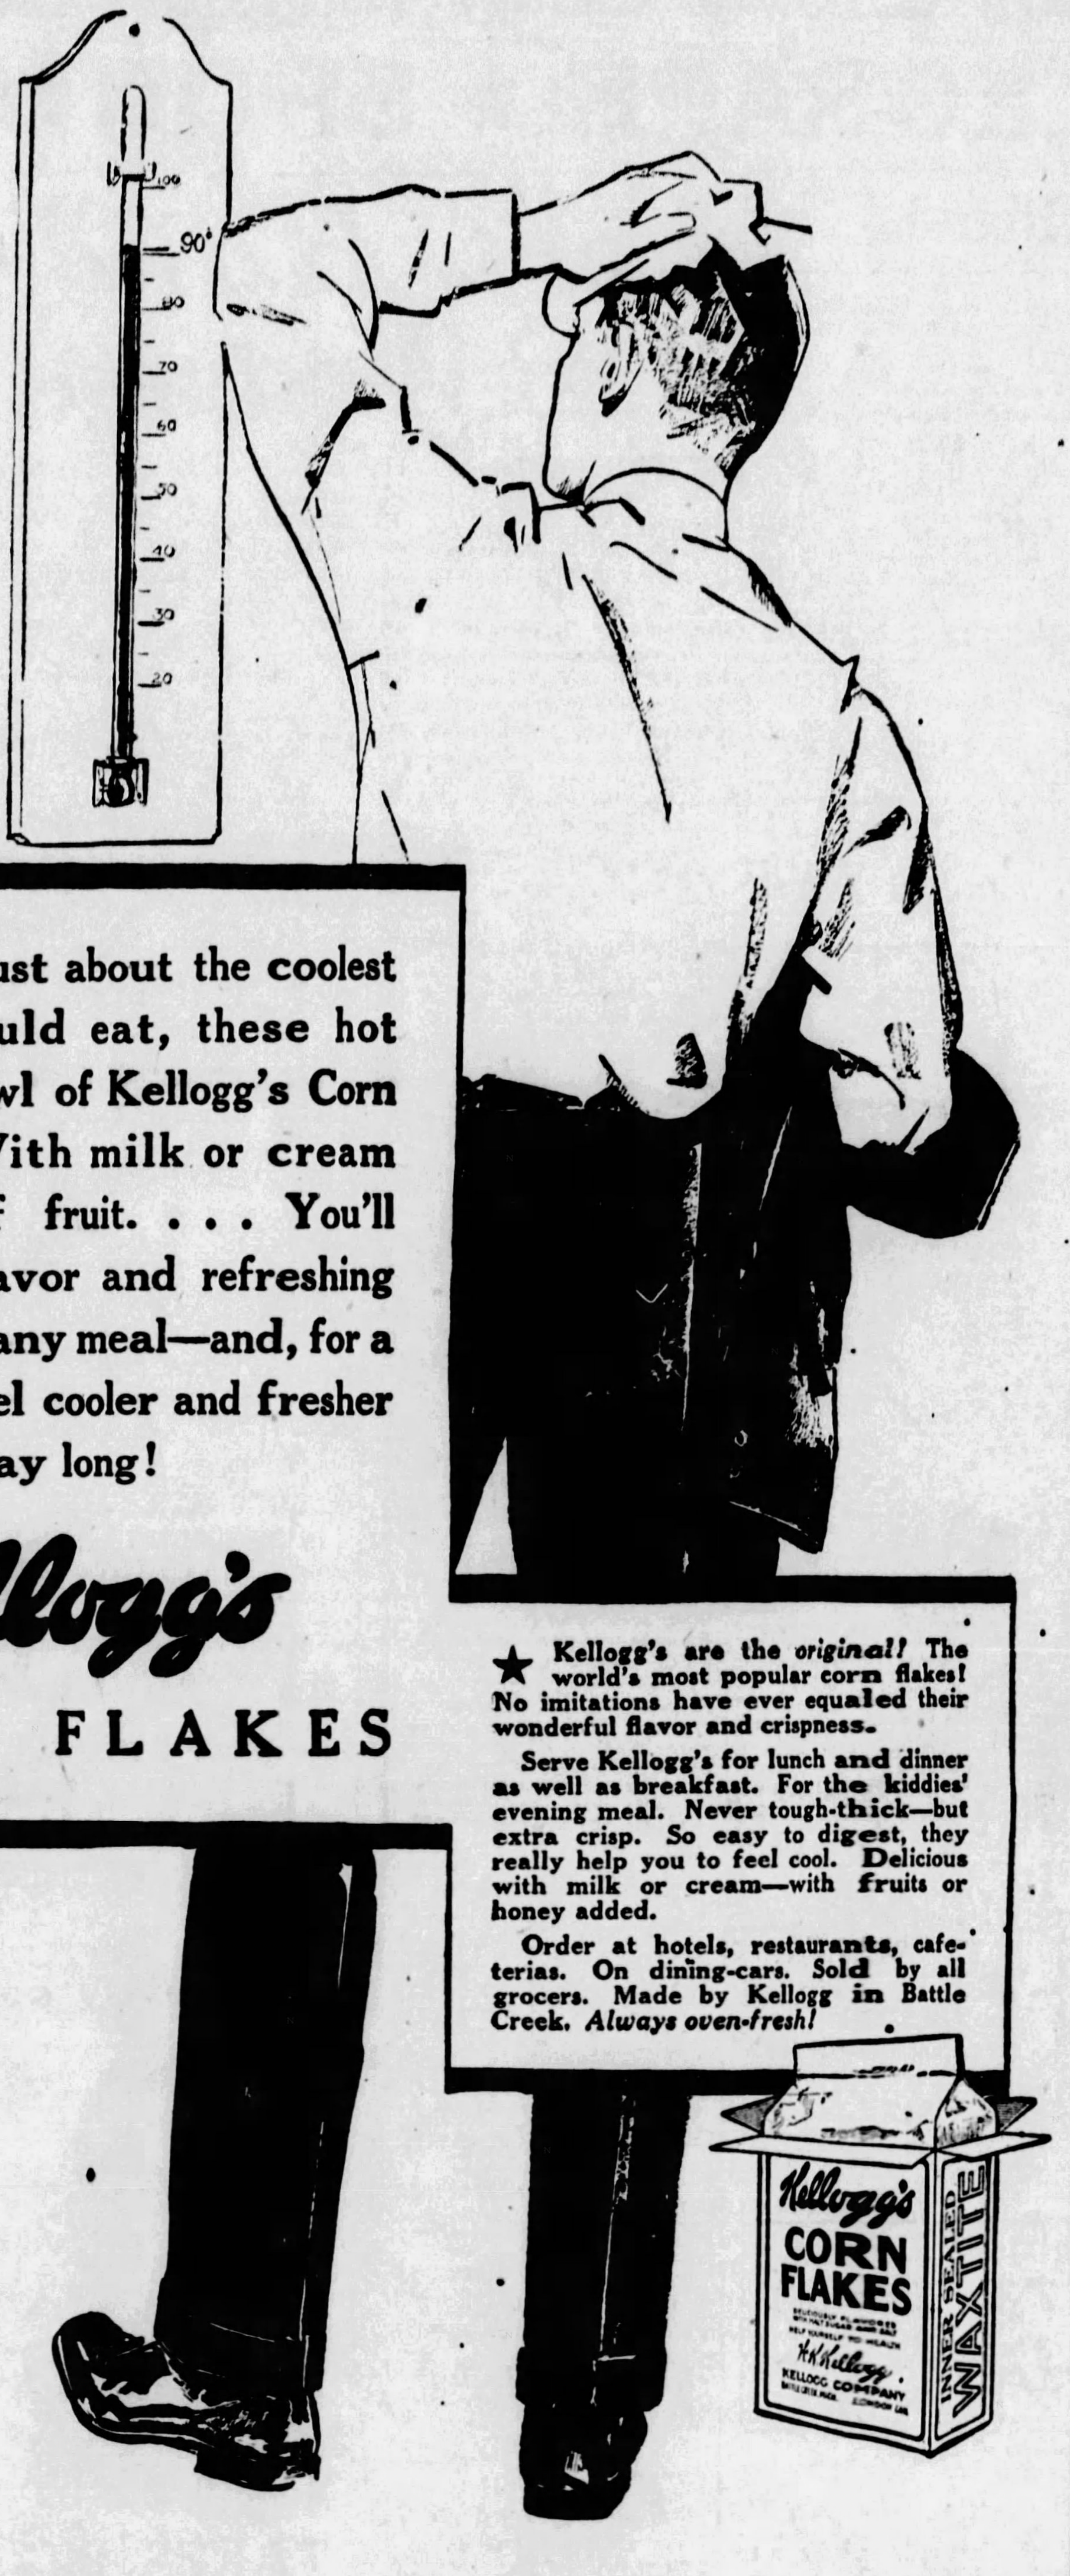
SCOTCH WOODCOCK—Make a sauce of four tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour; 2 cups milk, 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Add four hard-cooked chopped eggs and asparagus tips cut in 1 inch pieces. Add one canned chopped pimento and serve on toast.

ASPARAGUS TIMBALES—Cook one pound of tender green asparagus in small pieces. Beat one egg slightly and add to asparagus, together with the following: ½ cup milk, 2 tablespoons melted butter, ¾ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon onion juice, and 2 teaspoons chopped pimento. Put in well greased molds and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees) for 30 to 40 minutes or until a knife comes out clean. Unmold and serve with a white and chopped parsley.

ASPARAGUS OMELET—Make a French omelet of 4 eggs, 4 tablespoons milk, ½ teaspon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and a few grains of paprika. Put all together in a bowl and beat just enough to mix the yolks and whites. Add 2 tablespoons butter in a skillet and pour in mixture. As it cooks on the bottom, turn gently from side to side, and shift with a spatula so the uncooked part runs onto the bottom of the pan. Be careful not to mix up like scrambled eggs. When done, spread with hot, well seasoned asparagus tips, cut in small pieces. Fold over onto a hot platter. A little grated cheese may be sprinkled on the asparagus.

CARROTS have a characteristic and delicious flavor that differs from that of other vegetables. In addition, they have well-bal[illegible] food elements and not enough sugar to alarm our dieting friends. Serve them often and know that you are giving the family something that is as healthful as it is good to eat.

FRENCH CARROTS—Cook six medium sized carrots in boiling, salted water; drain and dry. Saute in butter with chopped parsley, salt and pepper. Sprinkle with a few drops of lemon juice before serving.



Just about the coolest dish you could eat, these hot days, is a bowl of Kellogg's Corn Flakes.★ With milk or cream and a bit of fruit. . . . You'll enjoy that flavor and refreshing crispness for any meal—and, for a fact, you'll feel cooler and fresher yourself all day long!

Tom's Blows Lacked Kick

By GENE TUNNEY,
Heavyweight Champion of the World.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Tom Heeney is a tough, game fighter. I have never fought a gamer. I pounded enough rights under his heart to drop an ox and yet he came on for more. He never stops tearing in and takes everything you can hand him. If pluck alone would have done it, Tom Heeney would be fighting yet.

But he is a far different man to handle than Dempsey. When Jack landed the blow fell with a whack and it stung to the core. Heeney's looping punches, though they may have seemed effective from the far seats, failed to jar me.

At no time in the whole 11 rounds did his punches hurt me. Many of them I rode off my shoulder when the watchers cheered what they thought was a real sock.

Heeney came on with the bell with a different assortment of blows in the first round but it was easy to get the range on him and calculate his methods.

The fight worked out just about the way I figured. I worked on his left eye with the straight right punch and varied this with rights to the heart.

My left hook to Heeney's' jaw jarred him time and again and slowed him up. It was then that Tom strated to hang on and I was confident he was a safe bet for me. In the fifth round he came on with a determined spurt, launching his looping lefts and rights to my face and head.

That was my opportunity to make him miss by drawing my body back though still leaving me in position to catch him with left hooks to the face. Heeney's own fightng style of always coming on in the face of punishment made an ideal situation for my left jab to the face. I closed his left eye and brought blood from his nose as well.

In the tenth round the bell saved Heeney from the count. He was against the ropes being hooked to pieces when I crossed my right to his jaw and felled him. He dropped like a bull and I thought the fight was over; just then the bell rung.

After they fixed him up in the corner and came out for the eleventh he was like a baby in my hands. I got in rights to the heart that were just like hitting the heavy bag in training. Poor Tom wilted under lefts and rights to his badly mutilated face. I was glad the referee stepped in to stop the slaughter.

I am happy to have defended the heavyweight title in New York, my own home town, against a splendid and courageous fellow, who has fought his way from New Zealand to this country. He was fighting for his own country and the eyes of the world were on him. He did his best without a backward step, always fighting and ever game to the core, although he knew from the fourth round that I was his master, and he was fighting a hopeless fight.

I think now that I have convinced the people of the world that I am a real world champion. Needless to say, it is a great moment in my life, and I am happy to be the one to hold the heavyweight title in the U. S. A.

Universe Hears of Win

NEW YORK, July 27.—(AP.)—"Tunney wins!"

By radio, telegraph and cable those two words flashed last night, not only around the world, but up and down the face of the globe to waiting news presses in every important center.

"Tunni pobidil" was the way it came to Moscow, well into the activities of a new day while the crowd still was straggling from the Yankee Stadium.

"Tunney vainqueur," said the cable to Paris in the early dawn, where many had waited on the boulevards for the result.

"Gano Tunney," chattered cable instruments in Buenos Aires and Madrid, and "Tunney siegt" was the two-word combination to pugilistic fans in Berlin.

Through the closely knitted web of wires of the Associated Press and its affiliated agencies the result of another long campaign to unseat a sovereign of sport was "told the world" in brief seconds virtually. Special circuits were set up to South America; Mexico—despite the internal crisis—asked and received "most complete details;" the new beam-wireless was used to transmit columns of descriptive matter to Australia and New Zealand, Heeney's homeland.

Helen Wills Wins Essex Net Bowl

MANCHESTER, Mass., July 27.—(AP.)—Miss Helen Wills defeated Edith Cross, of San Francisco, Pacific coast woman's champion, to win the Essex County Club tennis tournament bowl today. The scores were 6-1, 6-3. Only in the second set did Miss Cross give the champion any real opposition.

Miss Wills became possessor of the tournament bowl as the result of her victory, having won it the third time. Miss Elizabeth Ryan was the only other player to gain a leg on the trophy.

The Women's doubles finals were won by Miss Cross, paired with Mrs. L. A. Harper, of Berkeley, Cal. They defeated Mrs. Dallas Corbiere, of Southboro, and Mrs. William Endicott, of Boston, 6-3, 6-3.

Fight By Rounds

NEW YORK, July 27.—The round-by-round account of the Gene Tunney-Tom Heeney bout for the heavyweight championship of the world staged here last night follows:

ROUND ONE—Grimly determined Tunney whipped a solid right to Heeney's jaw. The challenger ducked and swarmed into Gene with short left and right hooks to the chin that drove the champion to the ropes. Heeney shot over a solid right to the head on the break. Sticking to his right hand, Gene crashed two rights on Heeney's jaw, but a sweeping left hook almost bowled the champion from his feet. Tunney was out fast, stabbing now with his left, but Tom beat both hands like a tatoo on Tunney's chin as they swapped in close. Gene ripped a solid right to Heeney's head, but it never moved the challenger and Tunney was on the run. As Tom ripped after him, both hands flailing to the head, there was a bad bruise over Tunney's left eye as the round ended.

ROUND TWO—Tunney, obviously startled at Heeney's fierce offensive, started boxing the challenger. He shot his left to Heeney's head, but could not keep the Bulldog of the Anzacs away. Tunney blasted left and right into the sturdy head of the hard rock without causing a flicker of Heeney's eyelashes. Gene swapped with his challenger and they ripped left and right hooks to the chin in a furious exchange. Tunney sparred as Tom ripped in. When Gene's left hook dropped low, Tom mentioned it, and Gene smiled and asked forgiveness. A second later they were crashing each other all along one side of the ring in a slugging exchange of head clouts that rocked both on their heels. The bell broke up the exchange as the crowd stood and roared its approval.

ROUND THREE—Absolutely unawed by the power in Tunney's newly found right, Heeney plodded into a right-handed exchange with the titleholder. Tom dropped his guard and stood before the champion, hands ready and daring another exchange. Gene accommodated him and they cracked lefts and rights, short, vicious pokes that stung jaw and cheek. Gene didn't seem to like that and he bounced back on defense, spearing the challenger with a succession of lefts as Tom stalked after him. Tunney slipped as Heeney swept a right hook to his head and nearly fell, but came back to firmer footing, without having been down and unhurt. Heeney slugged viciously at the champion's head while Tunney met his attack with solid left hooks to the body.

ROUND FOUR—Rising in sympathy with Heeney's unexpectedly determined onslaught, the crowd bellowed the invader on as he whipped a short left and right into Gene's chin. Tunney bounced two rights off Tom's flint chin and shot the challenger's head back with a stinging left hook. Gaining the upper hand decisively for the first time in the fight Gene threw a right into Heeney's head with every ounce of his weight and strength behind it. This time, Tom's eyelids actually fluttered and Tunney pressed his advantage with two crushing rights to the heart. Sensing the turn, with blood beginning to drip from a cut under his chin, Heeney tore savagely into the champion and nailed him to the ropes with a rocking volley to the head. Back to the hemp, in the same position as when Dempsey floored him last fall, Tunney fought vainly to sway out of danger, but Heeney nailed him repeatedly on the head. The bell broke up the challenger's onslaught.

ROUND FIVE—Tunney smashed his right full under Heeney's heart, but the Anzac seemed to like it and bounded in close to slug at the champion's body. Gene drilled a left and right into Tom's rugged head and blood dribbled from the challenger's nose. Boxing cagily again on the defense, his natural style, Gene prodded the Anzac with jolts to the head and body as Tom sturdily ploughed into whatever punishment came his way. Tom slipped as Tunney poked him in a clinch, but was up without a count. Tunney pecked at him steadily up to the bell.

ROUND SIX—Tunney's masterly defense had Heeney quite muddled now as Tom plodded in only to find his clouts caught on the champion's arms and his body battered by Gene's thudding right. The champion stepped in with a bullet-like left hook to the body and bounced his right again off Heeney's corrugated features. In a clinch, with the broad-shouldered New Zealander half a head shorter, Tunney roughed, taking a breather. Tunney was content to maul with the challenger, killing the effectiveness of Tom's left hook by burying his right hard against his cheek, as Tunney danced about, spearing Tom with his left.

ROUND SEVEN—As Tunney danced about, spearing Tom with his left, the Anzac missed frequently, his short arms going by Tunney's head. Tom caught the champion again near the ropes, Tunney's vital spot, and slashed a left and right to Gene's head. Gene wabbled a bit and tore out of the precarious position so fast that he landed in the center of the ring before Tom could get away from the ropes. Gene was boxing his man easily, spearing Tom with his left.

ROUND EIGHT—Freshened by half a bucket of water poured over his head, and a new hair comb, Tunney came out to hold the challenger helpless. Tom's left eye flooded and nearly closed when something irritated it. Tom shook his head in desperation as he could hardly see from that eye. Finally he closed it of his own accord and tore into Tunney with one good eye. Quick to see his advantage, Gene held the challenger a moment, looked over his difficulty, then pumped lefts and rights to Tom's head and body. Tom wobbled under the blows, but blood spurted from his nose as he lashed forward in one despairing effort. Tunney met his courageous attack. Tunney jolted Heeney steadily despite his courageous onslaught right up to the bell.

ROUND NINE—Hardly able to see from his left eye, despite the ministrations, Heeney gallantly piled in to the champion. It seemed dye from the tights had gotten on to Tunney's gloves and into the challenger's eye. Tunney, a sportsman himself, stood and slugged with the challenger, but Heeney got the worst of that too, as Tunney's knifing lefts drummed on the challenger's head, blood began to ooze from Tom's battered left eye. A gory sight, and becoming gorier, Heeney again summoned his strength for another surge and ripped his right and left to the champion's head.

ROUND TEN—Heeney's eye looked almost normal as he came out doggedly to battle the unmarred champion. Gene grabbed Tom as the Anzac lunged forward and sank a left and right in the body. The snap seemed to have disappeared from Heeney's punches and Tunney apparently had little desire to cut up the challenger further. Gene grabbed Heeney as the challenger plunged in close and showered him with left hooks to the head and body. Tom reeled under full left and right hand clouts to the head. Plodding forward now by instinct, Heeney ran into a barrage and went down under a right to the head. As Heeney rolled unconscious, almost from the ring, the bell rang and ended the session. Heeney was out, flat on his back and had to be carried to his corner. His seconds had him restored for the next round.

Eye Injury Beat Heeney—Dempsey

By JACK DEMPSEY,
Former Heavyweight Champion.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Class will tell. Gene Tunney.

Tom Heeney was somewhat shy last night, and as a result Gene is still king of all the fistic kings. It was a great fight until the eighth when something happened to Heeney's left eye. What caused it I don't know. That is for other folks to debate. But from that moment Gene, who was a little in front at the time and biding his time, opened up with both guns and blasted Heeney's championship dreams into a nightmare of terrible defeat.

The fight was a thriller from its beginning to its dramatic ending. Every man or woman who sat around the ringside tonight hopeful of seeing a savage battle realized his hopes.

Tunney made good tonic for his legion of admirers who insisted that he has improved amazingly through the year. He had all his old speed, all his skill and he showed a punch that seems to have been loaded up with dynamite through the past year.

Tunney had no setup in Heeney. For seven rounds the New Zealander made a fight of it, a great one. He forced Gene to step, he forced the champion to uncover all his science and he bested the resistance of Tunney's jaw.

There are many who will take the attitude that the turning point of the battle came in the eighth when Heeney suddenly went blind in one eye and Tunney, taking advantage of the opportunity, ripped and tore into Tom. But even if nothing had happened to Tom's eye I feel certain that Tunney would have won.

Tunney seemed always to be holding something in reserve. He didn't get away to such an awfully good start, because for three or four rounds he seemed to be trying to drop Heeney with a punch.

TUNNEY TOO CLEVER

That made him call on his right hand almost to the exclusion of his left. As a result Heeney did some scoring on his own account either with counter punches or with short jolts when Tunney missed his own swings. After the fifth Tunney started to use his cleverness, rather than try to slug it.

And from then on Tunney gradually scored points for himself, drew blood from Heeney's nose by his repeated jabbing, rocked Tom with left hooks and right crosses.

Tom fought back gamely, but it seemed certain after the fifth that he never could knock out the champion and that unless Tunney tired the Heeney cause was hopeless. Until the eighth it didn't look as if Heeney would be flattened. He had taken 30 or more of Tunney's most terrific rights without even staggering and looked as strong as Tunney at the time.

But when Heeney's eye went bad almost as the eighth started, it meant the beginning of Tom's end. Tunney ripped into Heeney and drove him around the ring through the rest of that round with punches that he fired with his entire body in the impact.

In the ninth it was somewhat the same, although Heeney fought back with rare courage and once or twice actually forced the champion to back away.

As they came out for the tenth it was just a question of how long Heeney would last—whether it would be one, two, or three rounds more. Only the bell saved him in that round because he was out—dead cold, out on the floor, a helpless human, swept there by as vicious and fearful an attack as I ever saw launched in the prize ring. Heeney was a pitiful figure, swaying out for the eleventh. Yet every human at that ringside undoubtedly got a thrill over the gameness, and the wonderful courage of Heeney. He took all that Tunney handed out through two minutes and 52 seconds of fighting—and wouldn't go down.

Eight seconds before the bell would have ended the eleventh round the referee stopped the slaughter. It was an act of mercy for Tom, blind in one eye, bleeding from his nose, legs buckling under him, thoroughly, completely beaten—without a chance for victory.

I doff my hat to Heeney for the splendid fight he made until blindness came on, for his wonderful gameness from then. Having done that, I doff the old skimmer again and again and again and I salute Gene Tunney, the man who is champion of champions becuse he has everything a champion needs—and enough else to make him a superfighter.

Left Hand Best Weapon

By TOM HEENEY.

NEW YORK, July 27.—I gave my best in my effort to take the heavyweight championship of the world from Gene Tunney, and I failed. Referee Eddie Forbes stopped the bout in the eleventh round, but I feel positive that I could have lasted the limit if the third man in the ring had not stepped in.

My left eye was puffed and I was bleeding from the nose, but I still felt strong enough to continue; still felt and hoped that I might bring the champion down with one of my punches. Let me say right now that Gene Tunney is one of the greatest boxers that ever lived. He has everything that goes to make a champion. He is fast as a streak and hits with both hands. It was his left that bothered me most. I blocked his right, but he kept shooting the left hook into me like a machine-gun. It is the greatest punch in the game today, I guess.

For the greater part of the fight I thought I did pretty well. I was carrying the fight to Gene all the way. He kept dancing away, jabbing. It seemed to me that I was pretty well in the lead as we passed the sixth round.

LANDED OFTEN

I landed pretty often and in the second staggered him with a sharp right to the jaw. At that moment I had visions of the championship coming to me.

From my viewpoint it looked as though the champion was on the run. A little blood from the nose didn't bother me at all. A single jab can bring that, but the fans always yell at the sight of it, and they semed to think that Gene was hurting me.

I was wrestled down, as I slipped in a clinch during the third round. The eighth round was the turning point of the fight. My left eye was cut and intentionally I guess Gene jabbed his thumb in it. For a moment I couldn't see. I stepped back and blinked, trying to get my vision back. Tunney hesitated for a moment, and then rushed in. The blood kept dripping into my eye. My sight was clouded. I could only see Gene through a haze.

My seconds bathed it up as well as anyone could during the intervals between rounds. I kept charging as I always do, punching away with both hands. Even with that handicap I thought I was pretty even with Gene. Certainly, he hadn't hurt me, even with his most vicious right slashes to the body.

Toward the end of the tenth round we were slugging away against the ropes. He landed and I landed. It was a bloody good scrap.

Then out of nowhere that right came across. I wasn't bothering about defense then. I was set on getting home a few slams myself. It landed straight on the button, and down I went. My head cracked against the floor, and everything went black. They tell me I rolled under the ropes. The crack on my head did as much as the punch I guess.

I didn't know what it was all about until I was in my corner with Charley and Eddie Harvey slopping water on me. I came to right enough, and came out fast at the start of the eleventh. So far as I was concerned the fight wasn't over—not by a jolly sight.

COULD HAVE LASTED

Tunney hit me with some left jabs. That cut eye of mine and my nose bled pretty badly, and then before I knew it referee Forbes stopped the fight. It wasn't necessary. I wasn't knocked out, no; no; nor not near it, but the blood scared the referee, maybe. Well, it was up to him to make the decision, and I can't bear an ill will toward him for stopping it, but so far as my name is Tom Heeney I feel that I could have gone on to the finish—and may be pulled the chestnuts out of the fire before the finish.

There was only eight seconds to go before the finish and the minute's rest would have done me a world of good. It's all in the game, though. I'd like another chance at the championship. I'm not done yet by a long shot, and I will fight my way back toward that chance. Now that I've fought Gene Tunney I've found that he's a great fighter, but I'm not sure yet that he's my master.

I'm sorry that I couldn't bring the title to Great Britain for the first time since Bob Fitzimmons held it. I did my best, and it wasn't enough this time. Maybe there will be another time and another result. I hope so.

I can only add that Gene Tunney is a fine sportsman as well as fine fighter, and that I wish him all the luck in the world.

RECORDS ANTICIPATED IN MOTORCYCLE RACES

Qualifying time runs in the motorcycle races scheduled for the Bridgeville Speedway tomorrow point to the fact that the existing records for tracks of this type will be lowered by a good margin when the riders are called to the tape.

An advance squad of five or six riders have been putting their mounts through their paces and times turned in have surprised all connected with the event. Special gear sets will be required to get the proper results and these sets have already been shipped from the various factories.

The mile time trials for track record and riding position will be started promptly at 2 p. m. and the first race will get away at 3 p. m.

No more tenderface.

Men! It's Here!

LIFEBUOY Shaving Cream

—its soothing lather completely lubricates skin—heals, protects—gives smoother shaves

HERE'S good news for men everywhere! A new kind of shaving cream. A shaving cream so soothing that it not only ends all burning and smarting, but completely lubricates the skin, giving you the quickest, smoothest shave you've ever known.

The greatest cause of tenderface is friction—the rough scraping of razor over skin. The only way to end this friction is by complete lubrication.

Ordinary lather fails in this respect. It is too light and frothy. The healing double-dense lather of Lifebuoy Shaving Cream, however, crowds down into the pores. It hugs the face so closely that a thoroughly lubricated shaving surface is formed.

The result is a marvelously quick, clean shave. Yet your razor scarcely seems to touch you.

Moreover, Lifebuoy Shaving Cream contains the same antiseptic ingredient as the famous Lifebuoy Health Soap. Keeps skin clear, smooth, healthy. Get the big red tube today.

TUNNEY, IN THE FOURTH ROUND, KNOCKED HEENEY INTO THE RESIN

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

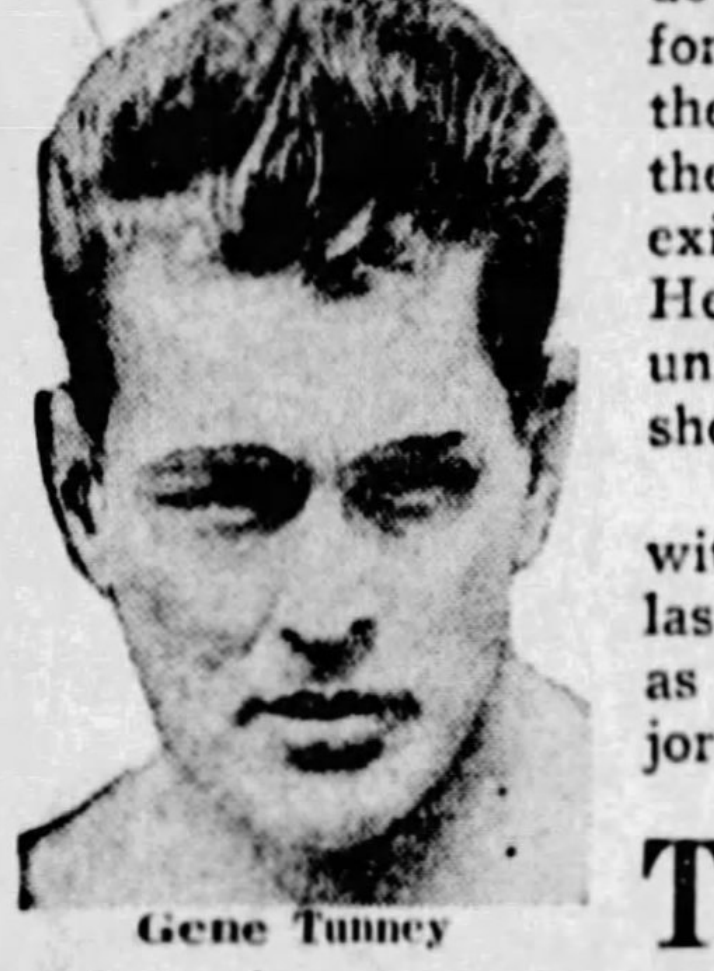
Tunney Superior to Heeney in Every Department of Glove Game—Rickard to Bear Loss of Goodly Sum—Return of Wright to Aid Pirates—Injury to Scott Recalls Mueller Case.

MANY a time, it is true, the consensus of opinion among the fistic "experts" has been wrong on a heavyweight championship fight, and favorites back at heavy odds have gone down to defeat. But when the known form of the principals runs true, and there is such a vast difference between the men in ability as every one knew existed between Gene Tunney and Tom Heeney, there can be only one outcome unless there is a "fix" for a future show.



Gene Tunney

That's why Tunney beat Heeney with such ridiculous ease in 11 rounds last night and retained the world title, as had been expected by the vast majority of ring followers.

THERE never was any comparison between the men, and, as a matter of fact there never was any excuse for arranging the socalled match at all.

The only motive being contained in the belief of the promoters that its international flavor would draw a profitable gate.

There was no sport tinge about it anywhere. Tunney was clearly superior to Heeney in every department.

It was like sending the proverbial lamb to slaughter, as results proved, and when Tunney wound up a terrific lacing by scoring a technical knockout of the New Zealander in the eleventh he gave the laugh to the only claim Heeney's supporters were able to put forward in advance—that the rugged Tom would have his chance after the tenth round, when "Tunney started to weaken."

You've got to be able to "give it" as well as "take it" in order to win fights, and Heeney wasn't able even to do his vaunted "taking" in the quantities that Tunney handed out.

PROMOTER RICKARD discovered that "you can't fool all of the people all of the time," and he will have a heavy financial loss to bear for one of the few times in his career. With $625,000 going to the fighters, 10 per cent of the gross receipts to the Yankee owners for park rental, 25 per cent of the price of every ticket above

DE MARCO-BRIGNOLIA IN TUBE CITY FEATURE

The Majestic Club, of McKeesport, will hold its next outdoor boxing show next Thursday evening at Cycler Park, McKeesport, offering a 10-round main bout between Larry Brignolia, of Erie, and Cuddy DeMarco, of the Tube City, at 146 pounds.

This bout was arranged for several weeks ago, but had to be called off when DeMarco suffered a split lip in a bout at Ebensburg. Cuddy has won 12 of his last 13 bouts and is going better than ever right now.

Brignolia's last engagement was with Fifield, the Canadian champion, whom he knocked out in the fourth round, this being the first kayo suffered by the Canuck in 253 bouts.

There will be three six-round bouts in addition to the main event, and the show is expected to attract a big audience.

HOW BASEBALL'S STARS TWINKLED YESTERDAY

Babe Ruth—Got one double in five times at bat in first game and hit a triple and a single in three attempts in the second game.

Ty Cobb—Doubled and singled in four times at bat.

Rogers Hornsby—Singled twice in seven attempts.

Harry Heilmann—Failed to hit in five times at bat in first game. Got a home run, a three-bagger and single in four times at bat in the second game.

Hack Wilson—Singled once in six attempts.

Frank Frisch—Tripled and hit a home run in five times at bat.

Paul Waner—Doubled and singled twice in five times at bat.

Tunney Scored In All Frames

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

NEW YORK, July 27.—It was Lapoolaka over the blue network last night. It was an evening of bozos and gumps. Heeney had the same chance against the champ as an investor did against Ponzi.

Tunney scored in every inning against the Australian. By the third round you finally realized why Johnny Kling and Chief Meyers used to wear masks while catching.

WHEN the fight ended in the eleventh round, poor old Tom's ears were blistered, his nose was on upside down and his face had been lifted two feet.

The crowd warmed up to Tunney after he showed more footwork than a Chinese army and did more pawing than a monkey in a blazing tree.

Tunney did everything to Tom but jump on him from the roof.

DEMPSEY saw the fight and didn't even challenge the loser.

Heeney's eyes were closed from about the seventh round on to the finish, but he kept swinging away in the dark. There wasn't a time during the fight that Tunney didn't lay over him like a circus tent over a bum.

Gene kept rocking Tom, but the child refused to go to sleep.

EVEN when Referee Forbes stopped the guessing contest the Australian was pushing out feeble lefts and rights that looked like the feelers on a wet roach.

The fight was as one-sided as the paste on a postage stamp. It was a sickening exhibition of a man with the heart of a lion and the claws of a toothpick. Nobody was sorry when Forbes stopped the match. Tom was game enough, but so is any other guy who goes to war with a wooden gun.

Heeney was the first into the ring. He wore a black and white Maori battle robe over his shoulder that made him look like a neglected piano.

TUNNEY got a cheer that would have warmed the heart of a village coroner.

Then Jack Dempsey hopped through the ropes and got a welcome that blew out teeth, tonsils and fuses.

Heeney clipped Tunney on the beak in the first round. Tom was fighting London prize ring rules, fog and all.

TUNNEY protested to the referee, then landed a right to the jaw that shook up Heeney's three managers.

The shortness of Heeney's arms was apparent in the second round. Tunney beat him in all the exchanges like a circus grafter matching dimes with a farmer.

Tunney went on the jab in the third round and filed Heeney's nose to a pin point. Then Tom landed a

GENE RETAINS CROWN WITH TECHNICAL K. O.

By HAVEY J. BOYLE.
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, July 27.—A marine landed last night on Tom Heeney and the situation is well in hand. It was a story book hero in the person of Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world and a marine, who finished the New Zealand entry in the eleventh round of their scheduled 15-round bout for the championship of the world. With only eight seconds to go in that round Referee Forbes decided that the staggering red bulk, which was bending and swaying from stiff punches to the face and body, had suffered enough. Seconds in Heeney's corner put up a protest over the referee's action, but Heeney, too dazed to understand completely that he had been stopped, was mute in his corner. He seemed to relish more the vigorous rubbing of his head by his handlers to bring back a clearer mind rather than showing any interest in the protest of one of his seconds.

The bout, after the first round, was one-sided, and from that time until the finish the question uppermost was not centered on who would win, but whether Heeney would be able to stand up under Tunney's steady barrage over the full distance of 15 rounds.

The bout, in spite of its one-sidedness, was not without its moment of high excitement. In the tenth round, after Tunney had delivered a series of rights and lefts to the body and head, Heeney rolled on the floor, taking the count, but as the referee tolled the fateful 10, and while a hysterical mob out in the blackness away from the ring's white glare, rolled up a terrific thunder of shouts and shrieks, the bell rang and for the nonce Heeney was saved. Into the ring ran a frantic group of Heeney handlers, who half-dragged and half-carried his more than 200 pounds to his corner.

Tom's Father, Mother Tune In on Bout

AUCKLAND, N. Z., July 27.—(AP.)—Two persons who listened in on the radio accounts of the Tunney-Heeney world's heavyweight championship fight last night were the parents of Tom Heeney. The Heeneys have been so besieged with callers since their son sprang into fistic prominence that they are protesting they would rather be left alone, as they are not used to it.

They listened in on the fight broadcast just "in case Tom speaks," they said. They were sure their blacksmith boy would do his best as far as the fighting goes.

HEENEY RALLIES

Meanwhile, an unconcerned Tunney watched with interest the hurried efforts and the confusion in Heeney's corner. Three men were working on Heeney, who at the start of the operations resembled a corpse more than a living thing, but water and massaging brought back stirs in the big frame in the corner, and ere time for the next bell Heeney showed he would be able to take his feet.

The bell rang, and Heeney went out with the air of a hopeless victim, yet impelled by something beyond, no doubt, his sounder judgment, to meet the relentless, good-looking, pompadoured boy with the firm chin, the blue flashing eyes and two menacing brown gloves he wore on his sturdy wrists and hands.

It was the beginning of the end for Heeney. He had been saved from a sleeping knockout a moment earlier, and now, as if to

TUNNEY'S "KILLER" TACTICS LATE

NEW YORK, July 27.—(AP.)—The hard rock of down under was well nigh gravel today, pulverized by the power in the fists of Gene Tunney, a real fighting marine.

Under a storm of gloves that ripped his seamed features open, and blinded him in one eye, Tom Heeney of New Zealand, who plodded his way past all American challengers, crumbled last night in the eleventh round of the 15-round battle he had earned with the heavyweight king.

Heeney went down—a shambling, gory fighter, numbed in body by terrific right hand punches which a new brand of Gene Tunney poured into the almost defenseless challenger for neary five consecutive rounds. Heeney sank to the canvas, saved from the ignomy of a knockout by the shielding arm of the referee, but only after one of the greatest stands and most vicious beatings a heavyweight ever endured.

Overshadowing, perhaps, the unquenchable courage of the challenger in the face of withering glove fire was the picture of the champion, revealed at last under the glaring light of the Yankee Stadium ring as a "killer"—the type of fighter Tunney in his heart always has envied.

Unfortunately, Gene's awesome display of punching venom came too late to save Tex Rickard from the first great financial failure of his career. Although official receipts have yet to be announced, the promoter admitted that the crowd of 50,000 that more than half filled the huge home of the American League world champions paid but $700,000 to see the major fistic show of the outdoor season.

Tom's Second Takes Ref To Task

NEW YORK, July 27.—It remained for Tim Hennessy, trainer of Tom Heeney, to pull the prize crack of the slaughter of his man by Gene Tunney at the Yankee Stadium last night.

After the bell had saved Heeney in the tenth round and the referee had stopped the uneven battle in the eleventh, Heeney's handlers had their hands full. Joe Humphries announced to the crowd that the eleventh round had gone 2 minutes 52 seconds."

"Gee," somebody below Heeney's corner remarked. "Only eight seconds to go."

Hennessy heard that and he pounced upon Referee Eddie Forbes.

"Only eight seconds to go," he bawled. "Did you hear that? What kind of a referee are you, anyway, stopping a fight with only eight seconds of a round to go? And where was your watch?"

TEX LOST $300,000

The loss to Rickard and the Madison Square Garden Corporation, coming at the end of a series of heavyweight championship matches that set new records for receipts, is approximately $155,700. The championship tilt, counting a guarantee of $525,000 for Tunney and $100,000 for Heeney, probably cost $800,000 to stage and of the $700,000 estimated receipts, the promoter must pay 50 per cent in taxes to the state and federal governments.

But through that dreary vista of figures that showed Rickard noth-

TUNNEY RAISING ARM IN TOKEN OF VICTORY

Loughran To Get Shot At Gene

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor of the Sun-Telegraph.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Gene Tunney's next opponent will be Tommy Loughran, the light heavyweight champion, and the fight may be staged in Philadelphia, Loughran's home town, in September or next summer.

Promoter Tex Rickard promised Loughran the title shot at a confab in his office in Madison Square Garden late yesterday afternoon.

Loughran and his manager, Joe Smith, were visiting Rickard, who also had Jack Dempsey, the former champion, with him at the time. Loughran suddenly spoke up and asked Rickard pointblank when he was going to get a chance at the heavyweight championship and the big money.

Without batting an eye, Tex shot back:

"You can fight the winner of tonight's fight, in September."

"You know the winner won't meet me that soon," Loughran shot back.

TO GET CHANCE

"Well, if he won't do it then, he will next summer," Rickard said. "I'll see both of them before they enter the ring tonight and get their promise."

Dempsey broke in at this point.

"Why don't you go away somewhere and put on about 15 pounds, Tommy, and then you'll be all set?" he asked.

"But what's the use?" Tommy replied. "I've got the light-heavyweight championship, and it will be better for me to stick to that, unless I have some assurance that I will get a chance to fight for the big title."

"You're on," said Tex. "You get the next chance. Get ready for it."

And so that's that. Loughran will fight Tunney either in September or next year. He'll be the cleverest man Tunney ever faced, and the bout may not be interesting with two boxers in there, but one thing is certain and that is that he will give Tunney plenty of trouble. They fought once before, when Loughran was only 19 years old. Tunney knocked him down in the first round, but Loughran got up and held his own for the remainder of the route.

Another bout between the pair probably would go better in Philadelphia's Sesqui-centennial stadium than here. In Philly the mob would turn out to see a home boy make a bid for the biggest honors of ringdom and the New York crowd would be on hand, too, as it was when Dempsey and Tunney clashed there the first time.

TOM TO CLEAN UP FIELD

NEW YORK, July 27.—(AP.)—Tommy Loughran today announced the intention of cleaning up all challengers for his world light-heavyweight boxing champion this fall and then entering the heavyweight division in the hope of a crack at Gene Tunney's crown.

"I have defeated all contenders for my title and my field is now limited," the Philadelphia Adonis declared today. "I'll fight either Leo Lomski or Jimmy Slattery in September, then may take on Mickey Walker in Chicago and then will give up my title to enter the heavies' ranks."

INJURY TO SCOTT WEAKENS BUCCOS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Outfielder Pete Scott was resting in the Lutheran Hospital here today following his accident of yesterday.

Unless unforseen complications set in Scott will be able to leave the hospital in a day or two. The attending physician has informed Manager Bush that it might be O. K. to take Pete along tonight when the Buccos leave for Boston, but the Pittsburgh boss may decide to leave the outfielder behind in order that he may get the benefit of rest.

When the report of the fractured vertebrae reached the Pirates' dugout Scott's mates were scared. But the New York club physician, who hastily attended Pete on the grounds and who later took pictures of his bruised neck, stated that the injury should not be serious.

HITS WALL

The doctor diagnosed Scott's injury as a sub-laxation of the atlas vertebrae. The injury was suffered when Scott, in trying for a daring catch of Travis Jackson's drive in the second inning, crashed head-first into the left wall. Pete made such a worthy effort to grab the ball in both hands that he could not get either hand out to break the force of his contact with the concrete wall. The ball dropped from his grasp almost at the same time and Scotty fell prone to the ground. He was unable to toss the sphere back and Lloyd Waner came over to Pete to throw it in.

The Giant physician rushed to the scene and he ordered Pete carried to the club house. Not long afterward Scott was able to walk to a taxicab in which he was taken away for X-ray photographs.

With Glenn Wright back in the lineup and playing stellar baseball, the Pirates trimmed the Giants in the third game of the series. The score was 7-5.

Burleigh Grimes recorded his sixteenth victory of the season, but the Duke of Burleigh had to extend himself to the limit to hold the New Yorkers after the second inning.

The second round was a hectic one, by the way, the Pirates and Giants scoring all of their tallies in this inning.

Trio of Major Stars Injured In Action

NEW YORK, July 27.—(AP.)—An epidemic of injuries, suffered in actual warfare, has struck the major leagues.

Three players were rendered hors de combat yesterday.

The most seriously injured was Floyd (Pete) Scott, outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Scott suffered a dislocated vertebra in his neck when he crashed into the wall while chasing Travis Jackson's line drive in the second inning of the Pirates' battle with the New York Giants. Scott's condition was said by physicians to be serious, but not necessarily critical.

At Detroit, Chick Galloway, Detroit utility infielder, was struck on the head by a ball pitched by Haskell Billings. Tiger mounds man, during batting practice. Galloway was taken to a hospital for examination.

Charlie Dressen, third baseman of the Cincinnati Reds, was carried off the field at Philadelphia when he was spiked by Fred Leach, of the Phils, in the ninth.

Tough, Pete!

TUNNEY SEEKS SECLUSION AFTER WIN

NEW YORK, July 27.—Seeking seclusion, Gene Tunney slipped away from the scene of his greatest triumph early this morning for Stamford, Conn., to look over his new home recently completed there.

Tunney checked out of his hotel at 1:30 a. m., and caught an early morning train.

Billy Gibson, his manager, said the champion probably would not return to New York until Monday.

Tunney plans to leave August 14, with Thornton Wilder, author of "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," for a hike over the European continent. The trip probably will take two months.

FIGHT RESULTS

At New York—Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world, won by a technical knockout over Tom Heeney, 11 rounds; Bill Daring knocked out Frank Land, 2 rounds; Johnny Grosso knocked out Francisco Cruz, 1 round; George Larocco defeated Herman Heller, 6 rounds; Ad Warren defeated George Hoffman, 6 rounds; Jimmy Byrne and Big Boy Peterson drew, 6 rounds.

At Chicago—Billy Petrolle and Jack Berg drew, 10 rounds; Al Greenfield defeated Ray Van Hook, 6 rounds; Johnny Nasser defeated Harry Fierro, 5 rounds; Irish Kennedy defeated Billy Horn, 5 rounds.

At San Antonio—Jimmy Watts and Chicho Cisneros drew, 10 rounds.

At Minneapolis—Mike Mandell defeated Jack Humbeck, 10 rounds; Herman Ratzloff defeated Joe Gordon, 6 rounds.

By CHILLY DOYLE

Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Paul Waner was able to take his place in the lineup yesterday, much to the comfort of Manager Bush. The rightfielder's sore throwing arm was not serious enough to keep him out of action and Paul performed much in his regular manner, making three hits. It was quite unusual, however, to see Paul fan twice in one ball game.

PAUL and Lloyd generally are at their best when playing against the Giants and this series is no exception. New York newspapermen marvel at the stride of the two little stars when opposed to the Giants. These same scribes seem to think that Paul and Lloyd should both be batting well over .400 in view of their activities against the men of McGraw.

IT is a treat for the spectators to watch the antics of Traynor, Wright, Lindstrom and Jackson when the Pirates and Giants clash. The leftside of the diamond always flashes a number of feature plays with these four stars extending themselves. Although each of the four have admiration for the other three, there seems to be a duel in action between the Pirate pair and Giant duo whenever the two teams meet.

WRIGHT won the plaudits of the crowd today by going behind Traynor to rob the clever Jackson of a hit. A long and accurate throw was necessary on top of a beautiful stop. The fans appreciated the whole thing a moment later when Jackson robbed Wright on the same kind of an effort.

THE Giants are quite convinced they have a good chance to overtake the leaders and as a result of their convictions they are playing a fast grade of baseball. They go into their daily task with a vim and it takes a stubborn resistance to hold them. Outside of the second inning yesterday Grimes was their master, however.

SCOTT certainly traveled fast to get within reaching distance of Jackson's homer, which brought Pete what might have been a more serious injury. Pete realized he was getting close to the barrier, but he had enough nerve to try to get to the rocket ere it would collide with the wall.

CLYDE BARNHART is not in uniform. Pooch has been ill since the club landed in New York, but he was able to get out of his room yesterday. With Scott in the hospital and probably out for more than a week, Manager Bush has to rely on three left-handed hitting outfielders. Fred Brickell made a fine impression yesterday when he entered the fight. Fred connected for two hits off lefthand pitching.

THE permanent services of Dr. William Humphries, a chiropractor of Pittsburgh, who joined the team here this morning have been secured. The new addition to the roster is considered important in view of the many ailments suffered by the club this year. Dr. Humphries already had worked on Lee Meadows and other veterans with much success. Humphries will stay right with the team at all times. Other clubs have made the same move with success.

"Third Man" Gives Views

NEW YORK, July 27.—Here is what the principals in the Tunney-Heeney fight said after it was over:

Gene Tunney, champion—I am very gratified to win. I am positive my right-hand punches to the body are what won the fight for me. I was very concerned about Heeney's condition and was glad to get word from his dressing room that he was all right. I cannot say anything at this time about a return match. Heeney put up a wonderful fight. He was a worthy challenger.

Tom Heeney, defeated challenger—Gene Tunney is a wonderful fighter. I have every praise for him. But I'm not satisfied with the fight I put up. In the fifth round a piece of eyelash turned back into my left eye and I could not see after the sixth round. Gene beat me fair, though, so I'll say kaori (good luck) to America.

Charley Harvey Heeney's American manager—I told Tom to crouch when he went out in the eleventh round, but he continued to stand up and was wide open. It's the first time in his ring career a fight has been stopped because he was in trouble. He felt pretty badly about it and he told the referee he was willing to go on with the fight.

BOUT FAIR—MORTIMER

John Mortimer, Heeney's English manager—It was a fair and square fight. Tunney won on his merits. I want to thank you Americans for your splendid sportsmanship. So kaori—good luck—to everyone.

Referee Eddie Forbes—Heeney was in a helpless condition when I stopped the fight. There was no need to submit him to further punishment, for he could hardly swing his arms and was an easy target for the punches of the champion.

Heeney broke into tears when Bernard Mortimer, his other English manager, greeted him after the battle.

"Bernard, I am sorry you came over here to see this," Heeney said.

"We are with you, win or lose," Mortimer replied.

Then Mortimer issued the following statement:

"We are perfectly satisfied. Tunney's thumb caught Heeney in the eye, bending an eyelash beneath the lid, making him totally blind in one eye. The other was filled with tears and it was impossible for Heeney to see his man. When Heeney went down the first time, if the referee had said, 'knockout' we would have said nothing. When he stopped the fight owing to the eye, we are firmly convinced with a minute's rest Heeney would have recuperated and gone back to fight.

SHOULD FIGHT OFTENER

"It's a pity a champion like Tunney does not defend his title more often and create further interest in the game that has made him."

When the champion and challenger met in the middle of the ring, Heeney, with a smile on his battered face, turned to Gene and said:

"God bless you Gene; you're a real champion."

"Thank you, Tom, and good luck to you," Gene answered.

More pathetic, however, was Tex Rickard's statement as he stood in the rear of the ground seats at the Yankee Stadium and gazed pensively at the "great open spaces."

"I can't get from under on this," he said. "Well," and he chewed harder on his cigar, "tomorrow's another day." And with that he moved off toward the box office.

Sam Parks, Jr., Shoots 64 for Links Record

Samuel M. Parks, Jr., 19, former West Penn Junior champion, and Penn State College titlist, scored a brilliant 64 to establish a new course record at the Highland Country Club last evening. He was out in 31 and home in 33. Par is 71, 36 out and 35 back.

Sam Parks, Jr.

In setting the new mark, Sam had five birdies going out, and three on the inner trek, starting with two in a row. He was over par only once, taking a 4 on the par 3 fifteenth. Parks was playing with George Stanger and John Stanger. His card, with par, follows:

Par—

Parks—
Out ..3 3 4 2 4 3 4 5 3—31
Par—

right on the champ's jaw that rang all the burglar alarms in The Bronx.

HEENEY'S beezer started to spurt in the fourth round, and the champ started to work on it like a hostler on the town pump.

Heeney came out for the fifth like a bloodhound on a leash. A right cross to the snoot made him look like the same bloodhound on six leashes.

But the Australian kept trying with all the earnestness and vigor of a dunce in a spelling bee.

HE WAS like Columbus crossing the ocean: he didn't know where he was aiming, but he hoped to land somewhere.

Charley Harvey rubbed a chunk of ice on the back of Heeney's neck in between rounds.

Heeney's right eye was closed in the eighth, his nose was bleeding and his left eye looked like a buttonhole. He was all cut up. But what is that to a guy who has spent his ring career being cut up by three managers?

HEENEY blinked his way through the ninth and showed more courage than there is in a gallon of white mule.

Heeney is game. You can chop a guy like Tom to ribbons and he will make a battle flag out of the ribbons.

Heeney was knocked outside of the ropes at the end of the tenth. The bell saved him. Harvey and two seconds worked on him like old maids on a sick cat. They brought him to, and he answered the gong like a marine answers the mess bugle.

A GUY like Heeney is too game to be a fighter. He should be a cleaner and dyer in Chicago.

31 RECORDS APPROVED

AMSTERDAM, July 27.—(AP.)—Postponing any discussion of amateur rules issues which might have involved the Charley Paddock case, the congress of the International Amateur Athletic Federation at its opening session this afternoon elected four new members, including Cuba and Peru, and approved 31 world's record track and field performances.

The federation approved 10 world's record performances by Americans, but the congress confirmed the examining committee's refusal to accept tenth-second timing so that Paddock's nine and five-tenths for the 100-yard dash was registered among world's record equallers only at nine and three-fifths.

Similarly Roland Locke's 220-yard dash performance, which also is a 200-meter mark, was put down as 20 3-5 seconds, replacing the former standards held by Paddock.

YANK GOLFERS LEAD IN CANADIAN OPEN

TORONTO, July 27.—(AP.)—With Macdonald Smith, veteran American professional, and Walter Hagan shot brilliant 69s to lead ting the pace, the golfing contingent from the United States was well on its way today in the race for the Canadian open championship. Since 1919 the Canadian title has been the exclusive possession of the players from below the border line, and the scores of the first round yesterday indicate that it probably will remain in the United States another year.

Smith, the winner in 1926, and Hagan shot brilliant 69's to lead the field by three strokes on the first 18 holes.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

NEW YORK, July 27.—Buck Crouse, of Pittsburgh, one-time contender for the middleweight championship, hit Broadway for the big fight in all of his sartorial splendor and stopped traffic at Forty-third street as he hesitated to greet Tom Bodkin and some other Pittsburgh friends. He looked for all the world like Tom Gibbons, and some of the natives thought he might be Jack Dempsey. He had to beat a precipitate retreat to keep from blockading the sidewalk.

UP THE street a piece, Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, stood on the sidewalk with his manager, Danny Dunn. Risko wore no hat, and his shock of hair, parted sharply in the middle, made him a striking figure. Anyone who ever had seen him in action or even noted his pictures carefully could not help but pick him out. Yet he stood there unnoticed and unsung. All he has done has been to beat Paulino, Jack Sharkey, Jack Delaney and big George Godfrey. With either Risko or Sharkey in the ring instead of Heeney against Tunney, Promoter Rickard undoubtedly would have drawn a much larger gate for his Fistic Folly of 1928.

NORMAN ALLDERDICE, brother-in-law of Sam Pryor, Gene Tunney's great personal friend, was among the prominent Pittsburghers here for the fight. With his party he was quartered at the Biltmore Hotel. Many other Pittsburghers were on hand. Among those noted at the ringside or on Broadway earlier in the day were: Joe Keally and his son, Joe, Jr., and son-in-law, John Squires, of Cumberland and Pittsburgh; Jack Zivic and wife, Luke Carney, Harry Newman, Eddie Deasy, Patsy Scanlon, Lieut. John Burke, of the motorcycle squad; Ambrose Fredericks, Morris Goldstein, Young Eppy, Jackie Lightning, Joseph Kenny, Eddie Kenna, Henry Bost, of Braddock; Harry Mooney, James (Red) Mason, Jim Courtney, Slim Silverhart, Charley Anderson and Hartley Walker.

MASON announced that he has signed Cuddy DeMarco for two fights. One will be with Larry Brignolia at McKeesport next Thursday night, and the other with Tony Vaccarelli at Englewood, N. J., the following Monday.

THERE was hardly any betting on the fight. The Heeney people got 3½ and 4 to 1 for their money and didn't cover much of it at these odds. There was some wagering that Heeney would not be knocked out. Jack Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey, is said to have lost $30,000 betting at 2 to 1 on this basis.

THE usual very ordinary preliminaries that go with a heavyweight championship bout were on the bill. Bill Daring, of the Navy, let Frank Lang, of the Army, cuff him around for a round and a half and then knocked out Lang with a couple of hot shots on the whiskers in the second round of the opening event; and then Big Boy Peterson, of New Orleans, handed Jimmy Byrne, of Louisville, a cuffing for six rounds, only to have the officials call it a draw. Francisco Cruz, champion of Portugal, was on next with Johnny Grosso, of New York, and was down three times before the referee stopped it after only 32 seconds of fighting, for the shortest but not the sweetest morsel of the evening. Herman Heller, a German importation, gave George LaRocco, one of the home boys, a hiding in the next six-rounder, but LaRocco got the decision, amid the catcalls and boos of the crowd.

THE semi-final was between Add Warren, of Virginia, Jimmy Bronson's new protege, and George Hoffman, of New York, who won the national amateur championship and then turned pro rather than make the trip to the Olympic games. Each was wary of the other's punch, and it wasn't much of a fight. Warren received the decision. In a four-rounder put on after the main bout, Jackie Saunders bested Bing Conley.

Fight Loss $155,700

ing but losses where gates of $1,-800,000 and $2,600,000 once bloomed under the magic touch of Jack Dempsey, the promoter saw visions of bigger and better "gates" to come. The impressario of Madison Square Garden believes that he now has in Tunney the makings of one of the greatest drawing cards in the history of the ring—a master boxer with the power in his granite fists to batter helpless a man who never before was punched to the canvas.

Certainly the handsome champion, bronzed the color of an Indian, trained to the minute, and savage in the perfection of his clouting accuracy, turned loose upon Tom Heeney a brilliant all-around display of fighting power.

From the third round until the seventh, when a slashing right hook paralyzed the optic nerve in Tom's left eye, there was no question of Tunney's supremacy. And from the moment that blow landed until Referee Ed Forbes mercifully stepped into save the Anzac, blind and helpless, after two minutes and 52 seconds of slaughter in the eleventh, the sole issue was one of endurance—Heeney's ability to absorb punishment.

For just a moment in the tenth round, as Heeney, battered senseless by a storm of punches that rattled off his flinty chin and chugged deep in his burly body, stretched helpless at the edge of the ring, Gene seemed to have won the prize on a clean knockout. But before a count could be started the gong clanged to end the session and Tom's despairing seconds dragged him to his corner. Heroic treatment restored the Anzac sufficiently to warrant sending him forth for the final round, but the end, forecast from the moment Gene paralyzed half of Heeney's sight, could not be averted three minutes more.

"PITTSBURGH DAY" AT MADISON SATURDAY

Pittsburgh members of Madison Golf Lakelands, at Madison, O., have planned to celebrate Pittsburgh Day at the club next Saturday. They will stage a golf tournament in the afternoon and that night there will be a Pittsburgh dinner and dance.

Col. L. W. Depuy is chairman of the planning committee which is composed of Dr. T. E. McMurray, Elmer R. Stoll, Fred Carruth, Fred Mercer, A. R. Greenwood, R. G. Dorrance, E. P. McLean and Ray H. Finger.

More than 50 families of Pittsburghers will drive to Madison for the celebration and stay over the week-end for the usual Sunday tournaments.

Tunney Easy Victor

—By HAVEY BOYLE—

make his cup the more bitter, the fistic fates had decreed that he was to take another severe lashing on a complaining stomach and protesting eyes and nose. Heeney marched the death march of the ring, and the dirge he heard rumbling back there in the darkness was a series barbaric shouts calling for the blood and death of the half-slumping New Zealander.

Tunney, not over eager, yet wearing a relentlessness around a tightly closed mouth and a resolute chin, shot his fistic rapiers into the gaping wounds in Heeney's face and into the midriff. The Heeney head rocked back and forth, the stomach would involuntarily command a retreat as a right hand was whipped into it, and with the situation in this stage, a wise and merciful referee stepped between the fighters, waved Heeney to his corner and proclaimed Tunney the victor.

For the half million or so that he earned last night Tunney experienced only that discomfort that one might suffer after exercise more spirited than ordinary. He breathed a little more quickly, but that was the only sign apparent that he had been pitted against a 200-pound blacksmith who was intent on battering him to pulp.

GENE EASY VICTOR

The beginning of the end was apparent as early as the seventh round, when Heeney's left eye began closing from a stiff punch. Until this time Heeney, while losing, still pressed forward, but after his eye began troubling him he backed up and Tunney took up the role of pursuer.

In the first round Tunney attempted an exchange of rights and lefts, hoping to surprise Heeney; hoping, too, doubtless, to score a knockout. Heeney did so well in this sort of exchange that on this score he was given the round. Tunney in the second round went back to more boxing and less slugging, and this system proved the proper one.

In the blows that Heeney landed from time to time there was a jolting quality that made Tunney seek a clinch or prompted him to resort to clever footwork to escape further blows, but at no time was the cool marine flustered or hurt.

Tunney was not quite so fast nor so furious as he was against Dempsey in their two meetings, but he certainly was accurate with his punches. He whipped his right to the body and jabbed with his left. At times he varied his beautiful attack with a left hook to the body. It was the body blows that spelled the doom of Heeney.

As clearly as the scene at the finish and at the time when the bell saved Heeney, I shall remember the scene when Tunney and Heeney met in ring center before the start of the bout to pose for the conventional photograph.

Heeney had come into the ring wearing a robe obviously peculiar to his native New Zealand. It suggested, such was the cut and pattern, that it might have fit a cave man of prehistoric times. Heeney, with this robe, looked not unlike the pictures of early man going out to foray for his food against the competition of the jungle beasts.

Tunney was quick to see the robe. He was interested. Even more than interested, he was really curious. He reached out his hand and touched the robe, and his eyes told how much he admired this bit of New Zealandism.

"My," said the man who in a few minutes was to defend a property known as a title and worth a couple of million dollars, "that's a nice robe, Tom. Mighty nice."

Heeney kept what he thought about the robe to his grim old self. He didn't even nod approval, and Tunney, sensing Heeney's diffidence about the robe, looked in mock amazement that Tom did not believe Gene was taken with the robe.

It was a story-book fight, for the fellow who lost was a tough, strong-looking man, who grimaced, and the winner was a gracious, yet determined and clean-cut young American, who smiled.

CHARLEROI IN GOOD FINANCIAL CONDITION

CHARLEROI, Pa., July 27.—The condition of other Middle Atlantic League ball clubs may be near financial rocks, but the Charleroi Governors are on the way to a good season. Turnstile reports were not so encouraging during the first half of the season due to bad weather.

Manager Bill Phillips has been shifting his material about in reckless fashion and, though the railbirds saw ill omens, new and finer baseball is coming out of the team. The signing of Bill Sisler, of the Blue Ridge League, a twirler who established the record of four victories in the only four games he played in the Blue Ridge League, has added strength here.

Will Modern Youths Prove Unfit to Fill Our Shoes?

By B. C. FORBES

HAVING had occasion to pass Columbia University, New York, several mornings, I was impressed by the large numbers of young men and young women entering its many portals. The thought created was, "This does not look as if all the youths of America are going to the bow-wows." How many students are attending the summer courses of this university? Your guess probably will be several thousands wide of the mark. The total, I have just been officially informed, is 13,965—a record-breaking figure.

IT SO happened that the heat was terrific almost every time I passed. Yet the students were approaching their studies with, in nearly every instance, alert step and earnestness of countenance. It was clearly evident that they were more interested in what they were pursuing than worried by the heat. Some of the dresses were of the flapper style, but the demeanor wasn't.

Sprinkled among the youthful students were older ones, most of them presumably attending teachers' college, affiliated with Columbia.

ON a recent visit to a hospital the talk turned to the younger generation. One nurse related this incident: "A well-to-do young girl, very much of the flapper type, came here and smoked cigarets constantly both before and after her baby was born. When I suggested to her that I didn't think it was good for her to smoke so much at that time, she paid no attention. I next said that it wouldn't do the baby any good. She immediately became interested. 'Is that so?' she asked. 'Then, I'm through.' And never once did she smoke another cigaret all the time she was here."

WE constantly hear about the bad manners and worse morals of the modern youths of both sexes. Very often they are painted hopelessly black. We are asked to believe that they will never amount to anything creditable and that the nation is swiftly sliding towards perdition.

What is the truth?

I'M reminded of what has been happening during the last few years in the stock market. It used to move as a whole; practically all issues either went up together or went down together. It is now frequently pointed out that we do not have one stock market but many stock markets. The financial writers emphasize almost every day "The buying was selective," meaning that certain stocks were singled out for purchase, while the rest of the list was going down. And certainly there has been little uniformity in price fluctuations for a long time. The market has become so big, the issues now dealt in so numerous, that there are bull movements and bear movements going on simultaneously in different divisions of the stock exchange.

MAY it not be that our modern youths can be likened to the modern stock market? There are now so many of them and they include so many different types that, naturally, both good ones and bad ones attract attention. Just as full publicity has become the watchword in modern business, so the American youths of this day go in very strongly for publicity. Ongoings which you and I and others of our young day always indulged in beyond reach of the public gaze are now carried on without the slightest attempt at secrecy.

IS IT not significant that far more young men and young women who have entered the business world are today joining special classes organized by their employers or attending evening schools or studying correspondence courses than ever before? Formerly only relatively few of those who left school early to earn a living continued painstakingly to study in order to improve their general education. Conditions in this respect unquestionably are distinctly more encouraging today, notwithstanding that we are so frequently asked to believe that there is nothing but foolishness, flippancy and gaiety in the heads of our younger folks.

More. Many a senior executive is finding just the right material among the younger members of his organization.

I, for one, have every faith that those coming along to fill our shoes will fill them more capably in all important walks of life than they are now being filled.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Upward Trend Continues.

The Street was inclined to regard the $10,000,000 drop in loans as a bullish development and the result was a further upward movement in the general list with General Motors and Steel acting as the lead team. Favorable reports for the second quarter are expected from both of these companies next Tuesday, and the opinion is that the stocks are now discounting the expected good news. Several miscellaneous specialties came to the front, among them A. M. Byers, which was pushed to a new current high above 100. Radio and Wright Aeroplane also scored wide advances, the whole picture being one of an evident attempt of the bulls to revive the trading spirit which died down at the first of June when Federal Reserve authorities began their decisive operations to relieve the brokers' loan tension and curb activity which had reached its crest in a single day's turnover of more than 5,000,000 shares of stock. Some traders offered the opinion that the inconspicuous strength of the general market the past few days is a long vision discounting of a Hoover victory in November, but the more conservative element held that it is as yet too soon to expect a crystalization of opinion of sufficient proportion to warrant the assumption that the election is "in the bag."

Railway Signal Net Shrinks.

General Railway Signal Company reports for six months ended June 30, 1928, net income of $746,341 after expenses, federal taxes, etc., equivalent after dividend requirements of 6 per cent preferred stock, to $1.85 a share earned on 357,500 no-par shares of common stock. This compares with $1,789,171 or $5.26 a share on 325,000 common shares in first half of 1927. For June quarter net income was $531,612 after above charges, equal to $1.36 a share on 357,500 common shares, against $214,729 or 48 cents a share on common in preceding quarter and $1,073,798 or $3.18 a share on 325,000 common shares in second quarter of previous year.

Westinghouse Air Brake.

Westinghouse Air Brake's earnings are expected momentarily and are also expected to make a poor showing. Despite these earnings, which were thought to have been discounted by the declines in Air Brake and Railway Signal earlier in the year, the stocks have been strong recently. Current buying of the stocks is actuated by the outlook for active purchasing of interlocking devices, train controls and other safety apparatus by the railroads in the near future, even if the Interstate Commerce Commission fails to hand down its anticipated order for general installation. Only a small percentage of this nation's railroad mileage is now completely equipped with safety devices. Hence, general installation would mean active business and large profits for the two companies for some years to come. Within the past few weeks orders have been larger than in many months. Westinghouse Air Brake owns Union Switch and Signal. Latter concern and General Railway Signal are the two leading factors in the railroad safety field.

Western Oil Prices Revised.

The Carter Oil Company revised its schedule for Mid-Continent Crude Oil, advancing the price on the highest grade 24 cents and reducing the price on the lowest grade 14 cents. Humble Oil and Refining Company advanced west Texas crude oil 5 cents a barrel to 65 cents. Humble Oil also advanced Panhandle crude oil, making 32 gravity 96 cents against 90 cents formerly and top grade 44 at $1.56, as against $1.26 heretofore and 25 gravity and below is 68 cents against 60 cents previously. Wheeler county crude is posted at 86 cents for 32 gravity and $1.46 for 34 gravity, as against 80 cents and $1.16, respectively, previously. Carson and Hutchison crude of 32 gravity is listed at 76 cents perviously and top grade 44 and above at $1.36 against $1.06 formerly. Other leading oil companies posted similar schedules.

Bethlehem Beats First Quarter.

Bethlehem Steel Corporation reports June quarter net income as $4,529,328 after all charges, equal after preferred dividend to $1.57 on 1,800,000 common shares, against $3,384,718 or 94 cents a share in the previous quarter and $5,048,680 or $1.86 a share in the June quarter of 1927. Six months' profit totaled $7,914,046 or $2.51 on the common, against $10,666,718 or $4.04 in 1927. Unfilled orders June 30 were $51,761,908 as against $61,393,488 March 31 and $48,655,757 on June 30, 1927. The company declared the regular preferred dividend. Current operations are at the rate of approximately 75 per cent of capacity. President Grace said: "We look for increased demand for steel products during the forthcoming months. Demand now is meeting our expectations. If railroads were in the market for normal requirements, it can be readily seen how this would increase business for the steel industry."

Combined Rail Net Lower.

The first 31 railroads to report June earnings had aggregate net railway operating income of $52,063,000, a decrease of 4.8 per cent from the $54,671,000 reported for the same number in June, last year. Gross revenues were 3.2 per cent lower. Net for all roads in May showed a gain of 2.5 per cent over May, 1927.

Bullish on Paramount.

A strong group is reported to have taken a bullish position on Paramount Famous Lasky. They expect that definite action will soon be taken on the plan to split up in the ratio of 3 for 1 and that the new stock will first be placed on a $3 per annum dividend, to be increased to $3.50 within a reasonable time and later be put on a $4 basis.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

Pittsburgh Fourth in Insurance Payments With 14 Millions—Seven-Figure Policies Written Here.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

PITTSBURGH ranked fourth in the total payments of life insurance claims last year. Bereaved families in this city received the greater part of $14,000,000. The rapid growth of public confidence in life insurance can be seen in the fact that this was $4,550,000 more than in 1925.

PITTSBURGH'S high place in the list of cities gives a truer picture of its status from the standpoint of national wealth and business importance than its population would indicate.

The 1920 census listed Pittsburgh as the ninth city in population, while its volume of life insurance claims was exceeded only by New York, Chicago and Philadelphia.

Not until the neighboring boroughs, which actually form a part of greater Pittsburgh, are included within the city will census statistics show its real place.

FOR the information on the settlements of life insurance policies we are indebted to The National Underwriter, which has made a very complete survey. The report shows that one of the nine payments made last year in excess of $1,000,000 was made here. The late Edward A. Woods, a leader in the insurance field, carried policies totaling $1,013,012. Judge James H. Reed was thirty-first on the list, with insurance of $395,285.

WHILE million-dollar policies were a rarity a few years ago, they are now quite common. One local company alone has written several policies totaling over seven figures. Many of these large policies name business connections or creditors as beneficiaries to give protection against the interruption by death of important projects.

The necessity for meeting inheritance taxes on large estates, which may not be left in a liquid condition, accounts for the large policies carried by the very wealthy.

EARLY this year the death of Rodman Wanamaker, operator of great department stores in Philadelphia and New York, removed from the list the most heavily insured man in the world. He followed in the footsteps of his father, the late John Wanamaker, who had been insured for $6,500,000.

At the time of Rodman Wanamaker's death he was credited with being the first man to take out a $1,000,000 policy. This was incorrect. The first was written 31 years ago on George W. Vanderbilt, who died in 1914.

Rodman Wanamaker carried $6,000,000 in insurance and left an estate valued at from $60,000,000 to $75,000,000.

JOHN C. MARTIN is today reputed to be the most insured man. He recently took an additional $3,000,000, which brought his total to $6,540,000. Even before this the death of Rodman Wanamaker had left him at the top of the list. He is managing head of the Philadelphia Public Ledger and a director of the Curtis Publishing Company.

IN CONTRAST to the general reliance placed in life insurance by multi-millionaires, Henry Ford has never carried a policy. At one time Ford's newspaper, the Dearborn Independent, carried severe criticisms of life insurance.

THE United States Government through the war risk or veterans' bureau disbursed a total of $21,140,714 in the year ended June 30, 1927, against $16,926,989 in the previous year.

The grand total of distributions in the United States and Canada in 1927 was $1,746,105,557. This was a gain of $160,464,432 over payments made in the previous year.

MOST of us think of life insurance as money we cannot spend until we are dead, but this is not entirely true. The claims paid in the United States last year amounted to $947,549,073, which was not so much greater than the amount of $798,556,484 paid to policy holders in dividends and for lapsed, surrendered and purchased policies.

CONSOLIDATED ICE PFD. UP ON DIVIDEND HOPES

A broadening tendency was evident in the market on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, but the price movement continued uncertain with fluctuations being restricted mainly to fractions.

Prices of a few issues drifted toward lower levels in the early session. Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt sagged off fractionally on moderate offerings of the stock, although there was no news in the Street to account for the decline. American Window Glass Machine was down more than a point on a sale of an odd lot at 18. The last previous sale was at 19, a week ago. Pittsburgh Plate Glass was handled again at 230, equal to yesterday's price, which represented a loss of five points from the level at which it sold at the beginnnig of the week.

Consolidated Ice preferred displayed further strength, going above 27 for the first time on the present movement. It is expected the usual dividend payments of 75 cents will be paid in October and December. Back dividends on Ice preferred now amount to $27.75. The company has been paying two dividends of 75 cents each for the past three years as against requried payments of $3 for a full year.

Fuel stocks were quiet again and prices held at or near the levels prevailing yesterday. Arkansas did not appear in the list during the forenoon session and only one transaction was recorded in Lone Star.

BRIGHT TRADE NEWS LIFTS MARKETS

NEW YORK, July 27.—(AP.)—The recovery in stock prices made further progress today under the influence of favorable trade news and an ample supply of call money. Early gains of 1 to 7 points were distributed over a broad list, with the motors, coppers, rubbers and airplanes giving the best demonstrations of group strength. Several weak spots developed during the session, but they failed to stem the upward surge of prices.

Banks called $5,000,000 in loans, but there was no strain on call money, which renewed unchanged at 5½ per cent. The influx of out-of-town funds, attracted by the possibility of higher call money rates over the month-end, helped to ease the situation.

Resumption of pool operations in Radio sent that stock up 7 points. Eastman Kodak advanced nearly 6 to a new high record at 190⅞ on buying influenced by the reported development of color photography with amateur motion picture machines. Wright Aeronautical also soared 6 points, and Curtiss Aeroplane, Coty, American Smelting, International Nickel, American Can, American Express and A. M. Byers sold 3 to 4½ points higher.

Oils responded to stiffening gasoline prices. Coppers were under accumulation on reports of large current earnings. Steels apparently were discounting the expected improvement in earnings in the last half of the year. Rubbers were again in demand on the theory that the leading producers all had taken large inventory losses in the first half of the year and were now in a position to show large earnings. Chrysler and Dodge Brothers issues led the advance in the motors despite reports that insufficient stock had been deposited to make the merger effective.

LONG'S SPORT COMMENT

$5 going to the government, 5 per cent going to the state of New York for tax, and the numerous other items of expense connected with the show, Tex probably came out of it with a worse headache than that of the severely punished Heeney. But he'll come back for more, don't doubt that. It won't be long until he is looking ahead to another show, perhaps one in which he will turn his back on New York and shift possibly to Philadelphia to take a chance on the native son appeal of Tommy Loughran bringing out the citizens in paying numbers to see Tommy, with some weight added in the meantime, vieing with the champion.

THOSE irresponsible persons who concocted and circulated the unjust stories that the absence of Glenn Wright from the Pirate lineup was due to his having neglected to keep himself in shape, and that he had incurred the displeasure of the management to such an extent that he was to be disposed of at an early date, may have been surprised yesterday to learn that Wright was back at shortstop for the Bucs in the third game of the series with the Giants in New York.

Tom Heeney

Glenn's resumption of work at his old post, his first start since July 4, bore out the indignant denials of President Dreyfuss and Manager Bush at the time the tales were circulated, when they declared that the shortstop had been taken out only on account of illness and that the delay to put him back after his recovery was due merely to the fact that Manager Bush, like all pilots, was unwilling to break up a winning combination. He did not wish to make any changes so long as the Bucs were winning with Dick Bartell at shortstop.

BUSH'S action in putting Wright back on his regular job after the two defeats suffered in New York is not only a vindication of the shortstop, but will mean a great deal to the Pirates as soon as Glenn gets his batting eye in trim and qualifies for a return to the clean-up position in the batting order.

Glenn's bat is the most powerful factor in Pittsburgh's attack, and the offensive is never up to par when his long hits are missing. A glance at the number of runners left on the runways while he was out of the lineup, even when the club was winning through improved pitching, will uncover plenty of evidence on that point.

IT IS beginning to look as if from bad to worse is the only change that the baseball fates are going to make in the Pirates' luck this year. Buc followers were hopeful, when midseason arrived and the team picked up to the extent of winning nine games in a row and 14 out of 19 up to date, that the jinx which had kept them in the rut for three months through repeated cases of illness and injury, was about to let up.

But on the contrary it appears to have become more active than ever, for, just as Glenn Wright had recovered sufficiently to be sent back into the game and Ervin Brame had won his fight against a case of blood-poisoning, Pete Scott yesterday was the unfortunate victim of a severe injury.

THE atlas, or first, vertebrae in Scott's neck was partially dislocated when he fell in trying to field Travis Jackson's home run against the left field stand in the second inning. Pete narrowly escaped a broken neck, but at that the severe injury means the loss of his services for a prolonged period if not for the remainder of the season. He had been playing fine ball in all departments, and his loss will be a hard blow to the Pirates in their efforts to advance in the pennant race.

Glenn Wright

IN A PREVIOUS instance a Pittsburgh player actually suffered a broken vertebrae in his neck. Walter Mueller, outfielder, was the victim. Obtained from Joplin after the season of 1921, Mueller was taken on the spring training trip of the Pirates in 1922 and during one of the practice sessions was severely jarred in a collision with a team mate. However, he continued to play. Manager George Gibson sent him to the Flint (Mich.) club on June 28, but a couple of days later Gibson resigned, and one of Bill McKechnie's first acts as his successor was to recall the outfielder on July 1. Mueller played his first game on July 15 and continued to fill in as utility outfielder and pinch-hitter. It was not until the latter part of the season that it was discovered he had actually been playing with a broken neck ever since the collision in spring training camp.

WALTER was sent to his home near St. Louis for the remainder of the season, but he returned to the local team in 1923, only to be forced to retire in 1924. He applied for and was granted reinstatement from the voluntarily retired list in 1926 and returned to the Corsairs, playing his first game on August 31.

He was unable to show major league form and was sent to the minors, but is still playing there, seemingly as strong physically as ever.

WITH Scott lost and Clyde Barnhart still on the hospital list with a burned back, Manager Bush has only Fred Brickell to fill the outfield vacancy.

It will not be surprising if steps are taken to recall Adam Comorosky from Indianapolis as soon as possible, though it may be expected that the Hoosiers will beg to be allowed to retain him, as his splendid all-around work is a big factor in keeping them in first place above Kansas City and St. Paul in the hot American Association pennant race.

Pete Scott.

WHEN it came to bearing down after that freakish second inning yesterday, in which Pittsburgh scored seven runs and New York made five, Burleigh Grimes did not yield an inch to Jim Faulkner and Bill Walker, and held the game safe by matching their seven runless innings. Every run in the contest was scored in the second inning. Burleigh now has 16 victories to his credit, and is tied with Larry Benton for the National League leadership in games won. Meanwhile Vic Aldridge, for whom he was traded, has pitched only one full game for New York. The Giants have been Grimes' favorite dish. He has pitched four games against them and won all of them.

"My dear, I'm so MAD I could GARgle BUTtermilk—I mean I ACtually AM, because ARab SIMply inFURiates me at this point, no less. I mean he's ABs'lutely got NO conception of ROmance, my dear, because f'r instance the other DAY, my dear, he got me all worked UP talking about the MEM'ry of the PASsionate, hot, burning KISS of true LOVE and I was HONestly TOO imPRESSED because I mean I think it kind of SHOWS a roMANtic NAture when you can reMEMber something like that YEARS afterwards or something in spite of interVEning INterludes of ONion-eating, but, my dear, I was SIMply LIVid because after SAYing it SEEMED to him it was but YESterday because the MEM'ry of this smack was so VIVid he said that come to THINK of it, it WAS yesterday—can you BEAR it, my dear? GOSH, I was RIPping, my dear, because I mean it just SHOWS you how inCApable ARab is of any LASTing afFECtion for anybody, my dear, because I mean he CHERishes no precious ALLUsions about LOVE, my dear, because LOVing anybody just means PETting them, as far as ARab is concerned, my dear, which I HONestly think is a POSitively SEPtic iDEA, my dear, because it's so SORdid, sort of, to think that all there is to it is NECKing and PETting, because I mean you don't have to REALly be in LOVE to enjoy EITHer or BOTH of those international sports, but I think there's kind of a MYStic sigNIFicance or something to it all when you're ACtually in LOVE, my dear, that gives you HEAPS more of a KICK—I mean I ACtually DO!"

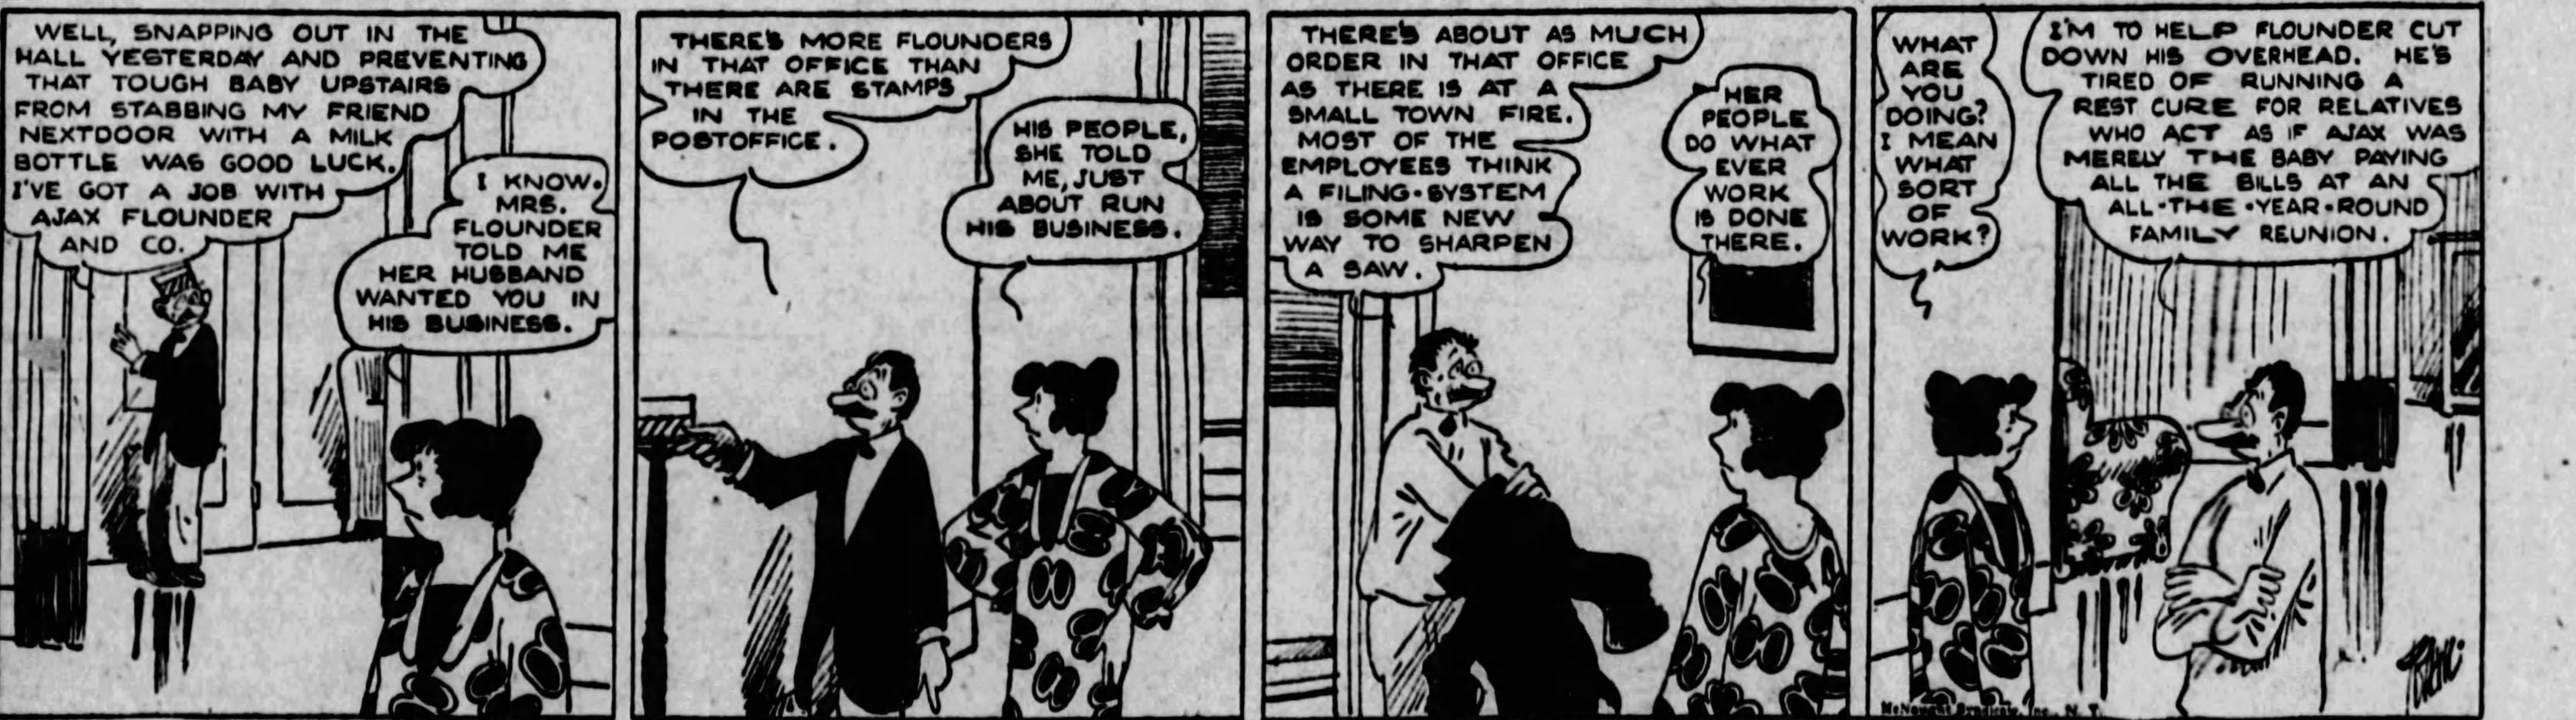
THE BUNGLE FAMILY - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - Work



WELL, SNAPPING OUT IN THE HALL YESTERDAY AND PREVENTING THAT TOUGH BABY UPSTAIRS FROM STABBING MY FRIEND NEXTDOOR WITH A MILK BOTTLE WAS GOOD LUCK. I'VE GOT A JOB WITH AJAX FLOUNDER AND CO.
I KNOW. MRS. FLOUNDER TOLD ME HER HUSBAND WANTED YOU IN HIS BUSINESS.
THERE'S MORE FLOUNDERS IN THAT OFFICE THAN THERE ARE STAMPS IN THE POSTOFFICE.
HIS PEOPLE, SHE TOLD ME, JUST ABOUT RUN HIS BUSINESS.
THERE'S ABOUT AS MUCH ORDER IN THAT OFFICE AS THERE IS AT A SMALL TOWN FIRE. MOST OF THE EMPLOYEES THINK A FILING-SYSTEM IS SOME NEW WAY TO SHARPEN A SAW.
HER PEOPLE DO WHAT EVER WORK IS DONE THERE.
WHAT ARE YOU DOING? I MEAN WHAT SORT OF WORK?
I'M TO HELP FLOUNDER CUT DOWN HIS OVERHEAD. HE'S TIRED OF RUNNING A REST CURE FOR RELATIVES WHO ACT AS IF AJAX WAS MERELY THE BABY PAYING ALL THE BILLS AT AN ALL-THE-YEAR-ROUND FAMILY REUNION.

Citizens' League Quits After Fight Against Vice

Announcement is made that the Citizens' League of Pittsburgh has decided to abandon activities, but will retain its charter so that it may be revived at any time it is felt conditions warrant resumption of its work. It is announced the determination to quit was caused by a growing belief that united efforts of church organizations in various communities resulted in a duplication of endeavor in the fight against vice.

The Citizens' League, brought into existence as a protest against vice conditions, likely did a great deal of good. It was unfortunate in having brought to the city as an investigator one W. L. King, a professional "reformer," whose shortcomings, after a hectic career here, left a sour taste with the public. Of course, it was not the fault of the League that a man in whom it reposed confidence should prove faithless.

The work of the League was not without effect, because, while there is no doubt that vice, graft, gambling and bootlegging continue to be far too prevalent, authorities have been aroused to the need of law enforcement.

Around World in 40 Hours

It's Coming.

Wilkins, who flew across the North Pole, says "distance between continents no longer matter." He expects to see commercial flights around the world in 40 hours. It is simply a question of bringing motors and construction details to a final stage.

Some of our biggest industrialists are working on that problem. Our Government OUGHT to be, but ISN'T working at it.

Two Italians, flying from Italy to Brazil, have broken all long distance nonstop flights over water, including Lindbergh's. A Spaniard, Commander Ramon Franco, starts a flight around the world July 31. You will see China "from the air" some day.

True, Noble Courage

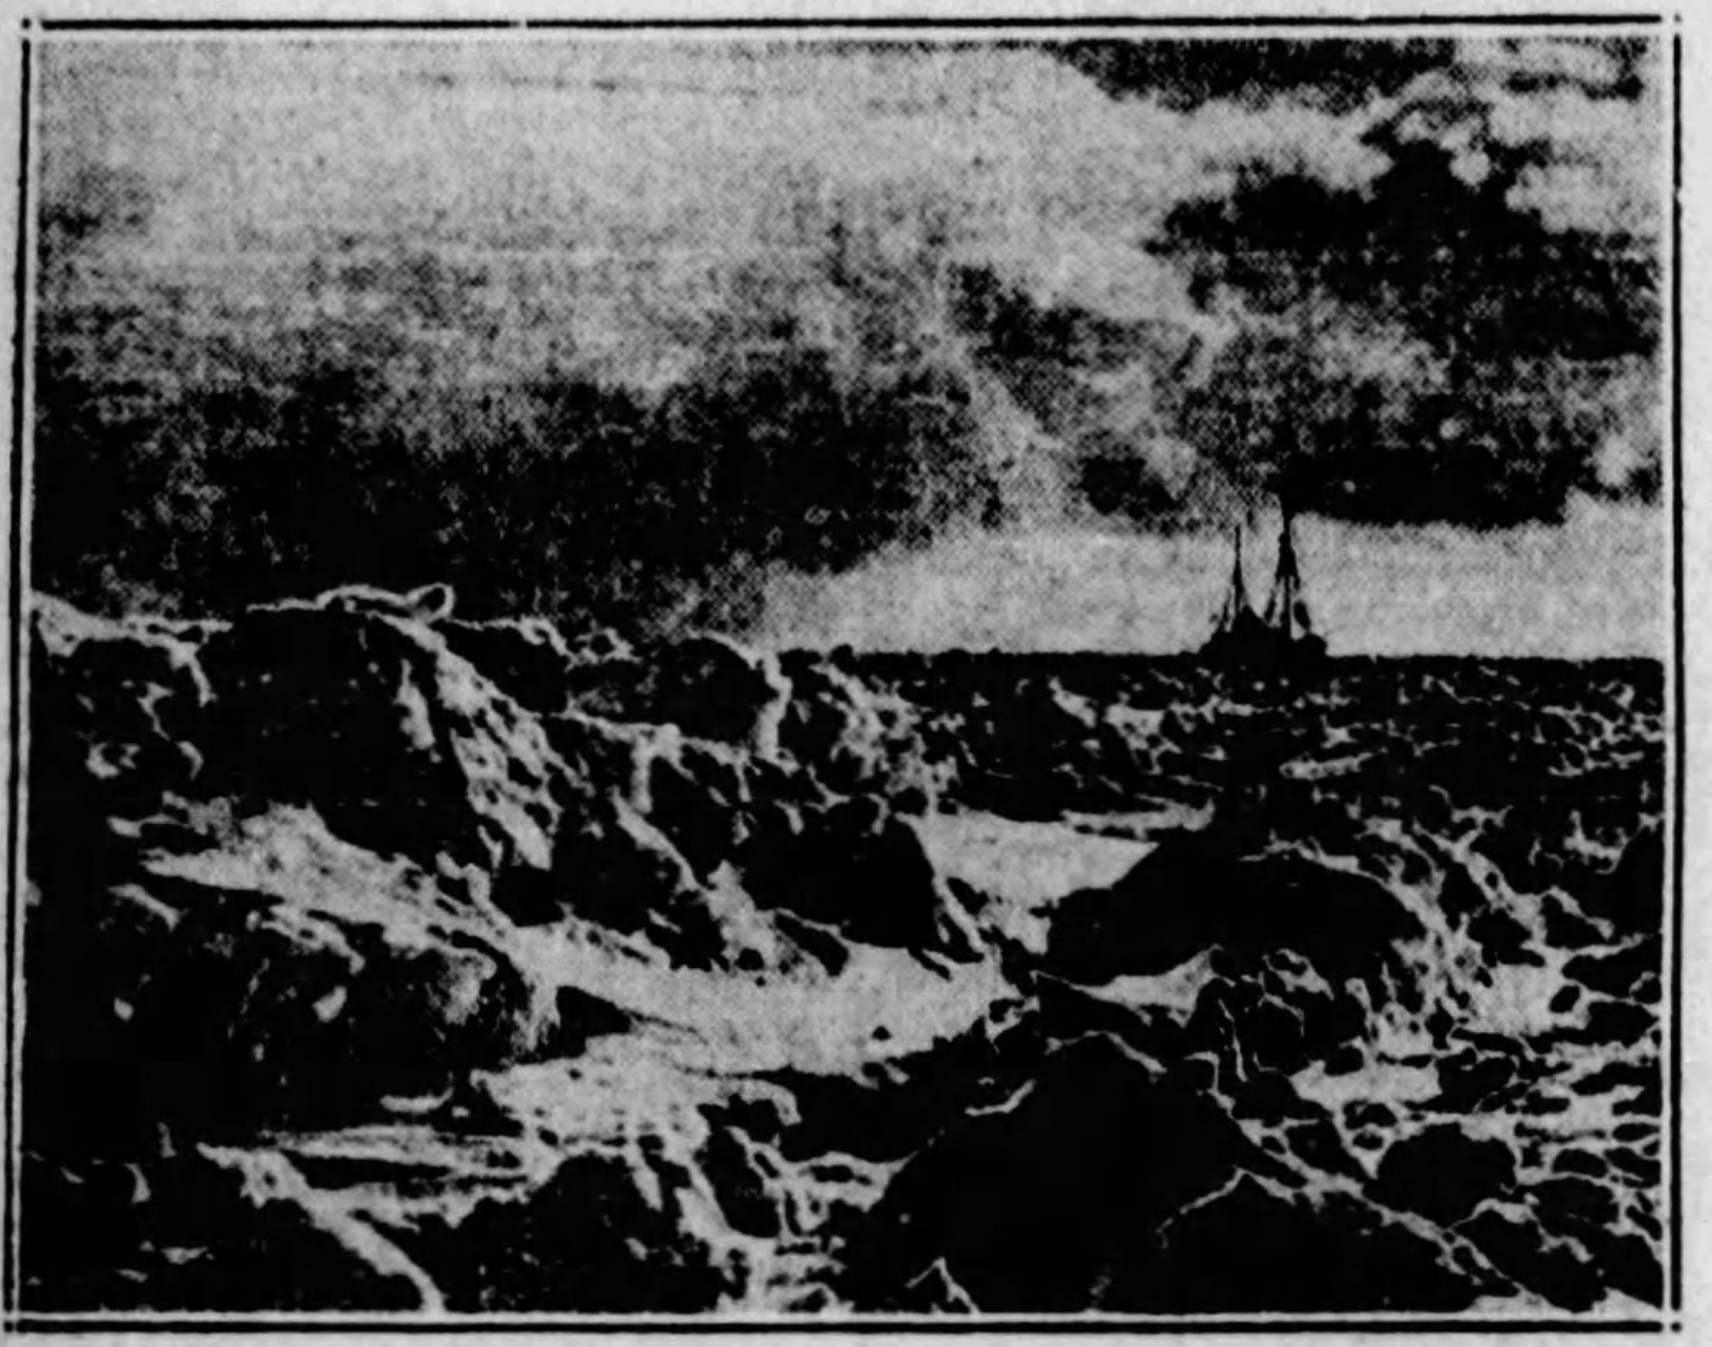
Arctic and Antarctic Wastes Have Seen It Often.



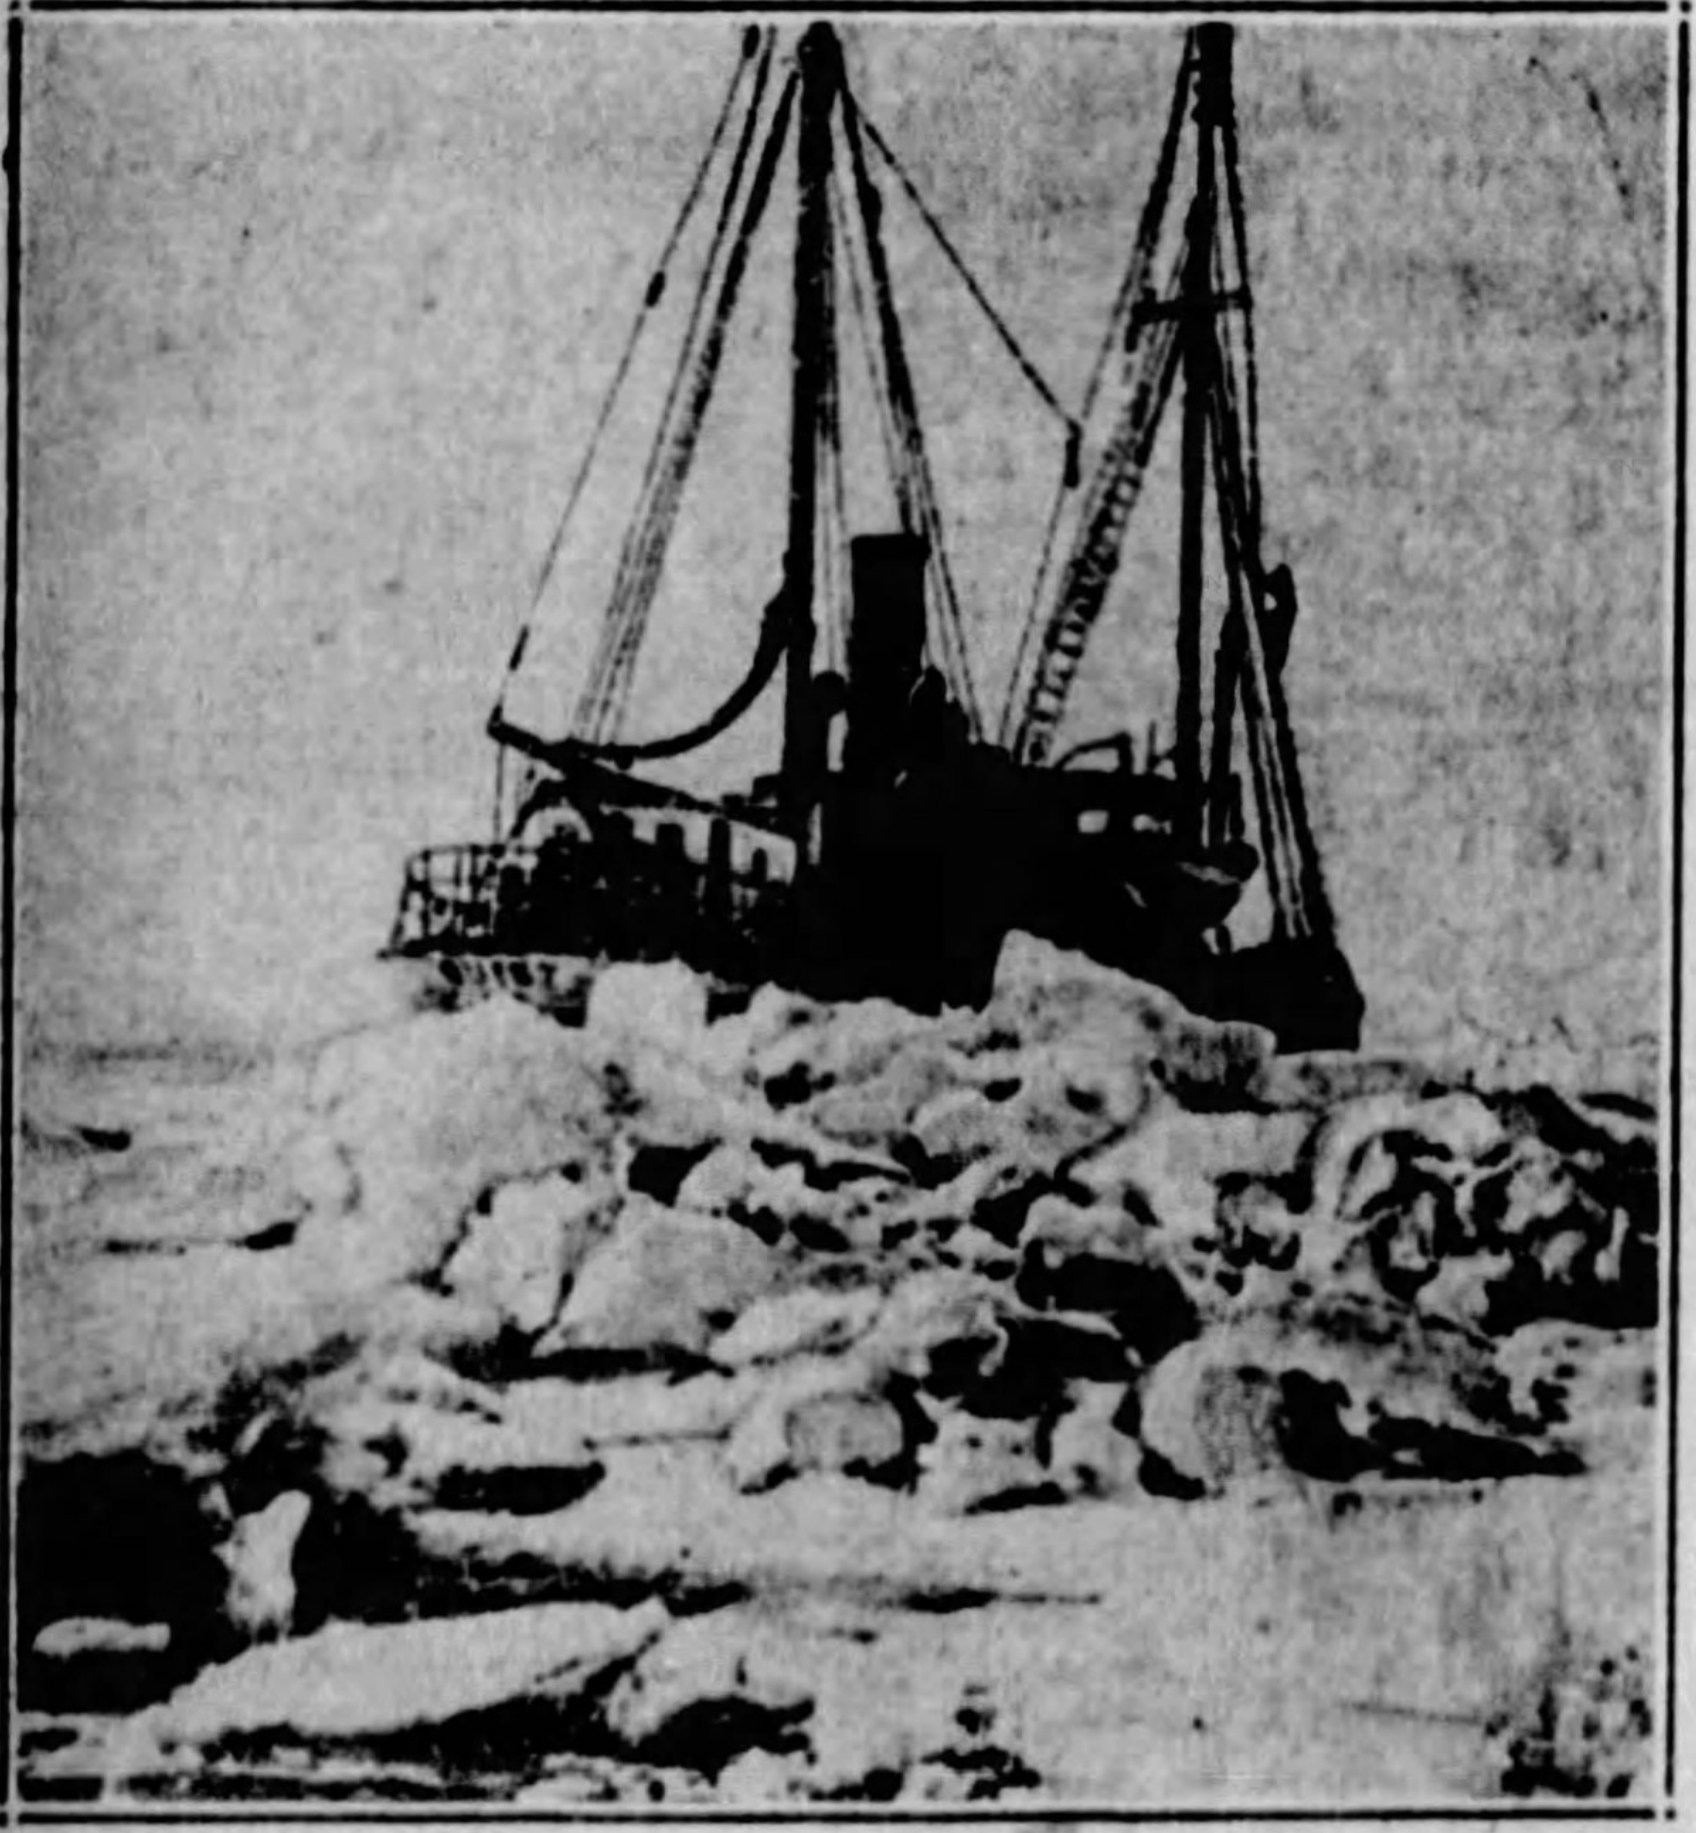
ON THIS ICE NOBILE'S RESCUER HAD TO LAND.

These pictures make plain to every eye the courage of the Swedish flier who rescued Nobile, head of the Nobile North Pole expedition. The picture above shows the "landing field" that fliers saw beneath them as they searched for men marooned close to the North Pole inside the Arctic Circle.

In that circle, close to the point where our "North Pole" points toward the North Star, stretch thousands of dreary square miles of such ice as this. Everything is rough, uneven, the ice piled 50 and 100 feet high in steep walls by the movement of the waves, tides and winds.

In this dreary waste, by the truly miraculous powers of science and human courage, the Nobile expedition, one after another, were located—thanks to the radio, without which it would have been impossible—and many brought back to safety.

The ship in the lower picture is one of the rescue ships sent by the Swedes, accompanied by airplanes. Nobile, leader of the ill-fated polar expedition, was taken away in an airplane. Lundborg, who rescued him, returned, upset his machine on such a landing as you see here, and was himself marooned on the ice floe.



FROM THIS SHIP A BRAVE SWEDE'S PLANE FLEW AND RESCUED NOBILE.

Then came the powerful Russian ice breaker, sent out by the Bolshevik government, and rescued all that was left of the Nobile group. Three others who crossed the ice, walking on such a horrible landscape as this FOR 43 DAYS, were identified by fliers and picked up by the ship.

These pictures are printed to remind you of the things that men can do, guided by SCIENCE, and enable to defy all danger by LOFTY COURAGE.

It is for us that live in such ease and safety to pay tribute to these heroic men and thank Providence that the human race produces them.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 27.—Thoughts while strolling: That stretch of Fifth avenue sidewalk sprinkled with diamond dust. The bus driver who looks like Fontaine Fox. Otto Kahn, a Mannheim (Germany) boy, who made good in the city. Constance Collier with a griffon. The Metropolitan club. It looks grand in "Who's Who."

More modernistic whatnots in Saks' windows. A priest comforting a distressed woman on the side lawn at St. Patrick's. George Creel, the "Uncle Henry" of Collier's. And husband of Blanche Bates. The legless beggar with the Boston dog that pulls him along in a cart.

Joe Humphries, the leather lunged fight announcer. Those new hotels blazing with light at night but practically empty. Women's heels are getting lower. There's a Gay Ninety touch—a bicycle rack. Boys with flowing ties who play piccolos in orchestras.

Bon voyage fruit baskets $50. On the East Side you can open a fruit store for that. Those doll-faced simpering girls who dress like twins. And demurely practice the oldest profession. Venerable croquet players on way to Central Park—each with a sun parasol.

Nothing so intimidating as a wild-eyed motorcyclist. A bowling alley opens next to a hotel. That's nice. Every trunk store seems to be "selling out." The town is full of green shirts. Why do men with big feet wear small derbies pulled down to their ears?

And why are bow-legged men always running after street cars? Crooked stocking seams. Walt Roesner, the Capitol orchestra leader. A man pushing a baby carriage. Just like they do in Brooklyn. Strike up the band—a taxi driver just told a fare he had plenty of change. Harry Reichenbach, the silver-haired press agent.

A street hawker selling colored clothes line. The Brighter Back Yard movement arrives. Wonder what Columbus Circle used to look like. The sombre dignity surrounding every church—even those on Broadway. Who remembers when a telegram was a dispatch?

A gentleman in New Rochelle writes that in the Bronx there is a laundry sign reading: "Don't Kill the Wife. Let Our Mangle Do Your Dirty Work." I seem to remember something like that in Punch, but it's funny anyway.

Broadway's so-called moths do not always flutter back to the searing flame. One of the well-known professional dancers was for years found where chandeliers blazed brightest. She was a toast of the town. About five years ago she married a rich young manufacturer in a small middle west city. Broadway always expected her back. She does return now and then with her husband, makes the rounds of the night bazars, looks on, but seems bored, and departs early. Those who know say she is supremely happy in the limited small town pleasures. She motors, plays golf and dances now and then with her husband's friends at the country club. Her name was Joan Sawyer.

If a list could be furnished, it would surprise those living in Broadway's narrow little world how many have drunk deep of the White Way gaiety and found the taste bitter. In every small city there are several who know Broadway like the proverbial book. They have had their fun in the lighted canyon, but the idea of ever being drawn back to it makes them laugh right out loud. They are quite content on the front porch and listening to the radio. They feel so much better in the morning.

* * *

The incurable Broadwayites—and Broadway in this sense is not a street but a state of consciousness—thinks he would be miserable away from it. He is like a bear in a western zoo placed in a large enclosure, but day in and out walks a few steps forward and backward. The animal grew up in a cage and cannot realize there is more room in the world.

* * *

Some time ago I wrote Mail street was the shortest street in New York. An anonymous correspondent who calls me a "liar"—how in the world did that get out?—says the shortest street is Edgar, near Rector. Edgar street has only one house.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Curbing the Earth

"The earth, as you state, would fall toward the sun but for its cross motion. Now, the sun has attraction and attraction offers resistance, why, then, don't the earth's motions, whatever they are, come gradually to a standstill, as a wheel suspended in midair, revolving around its axis, gradually comes to rest by the resistance of gravitation regardless of any other resistance?"—H. H., Weehawken.

THE proper measure of the attraction of gravitation is the acceleration: i. e., the increase of velocity that it produces in a given time. In the case of the earth this amounts to about 32 feet per-second-per-second; that is, 32 feet are added to the velocity during each successive second. In order to know at what speed a body is falling it is only necessary to multiply 32 feet by the number of seconds elapsed since the fall began. A body that has been falling 100 seconds will at the end of that time (neglecting the effect of air resistance) be moving at the rate of 3,200 feet per second.

The acceleration of gravitation, however, diminishes with increase of distance from the attracting body. Thus a body starting from the distance of the moon (about 240,000 miles) would have an acceleration of only about one-tenth of an inch. But this would increase as the body approached the earth.

The same law applies to the sun's attraction upon the earth. Owing to the great distance of the sun the acceleration that it produces on the earth is less than a quarter of an inch. Now, this is the measure of the sun's gravitational attraction upon the earth, and its effect is not to "resist" the earth's "cross motion" but to change its direction at each instant from a direct, or tangemtial line to a curved line forming the orbit around the sun. The distance that the earth is drawn toward the sun in one second is half the acceleration, i. e., less than an eighth of an inch, and this is found by taking into account the size of the earth's orbit, to be just the amount of deviation required to turn the motion from a direct line into the closed curve around the sun that the earth actually pursues.

Just how the earth started its motion we do not know, but its revolution around the sun being once established the only force acting upon it is this accelerating force of the sun's attraction. Since the earth travels through empty space it encounters no resistance; therefore, after it was once in motion no force would be required to keep it moving, if it were not attracted by the sun. The effect of the sun's attraction, as just stated, is to bend its motion from a straight line into a curve, and this force must be constantly applied, for otherwise the earth would pass away on a tangent line, and so recede from the sun. The acceleration of the sun's gravity counter-balances this tendency of the earth to follow a straight line.

A wheel rotating in open air, as you describe, is arrested by friction (of the air and the axle) but not by the earth's attraction. Free the wheel completely from friction and it would continue to revolve indefinitely.

Appraisal

HOW do you act under appraising observation?

Do you get nervous and lose command of yourself?

Are you so uneasy that you cannot think clearly? Do you cover your embarrassment by talking too much and too rapidly?

If so, you say little of value and make a poor impression.

But why so uneasy?

If you know you have been straight, your reputation is as good as the majority, at least, no one should disconcert you.

If the other fellow scrutinizes closely, do the same to him.

He may not have as much as you to be proud of, but he may have himself under better control.

There are men who derive pleasure from the discomfort they can cause others, and there are women who delight in disconcerting others.

Still others are bluffing under the guise of fearless audacity.

But if you are truly great you do not have to indicate it.

The bigger the man the less he seeks to impress you.

Indeed, he does not have to.

He is big because he has natural ability and does not have to make an effort to appear what he is.

Summer Noon

SO drugged with sleep the wide land lies
Beneath the heat's gold haze,
Naught stirs, save painted dragonflies,
That wing down flower-sweet ways.

Naught stirs, the very air too still
To move a leaf, a bud,
And the cicadas' chorus shrill
Leaves off its pulsing flood.

All drugged with sleep, each creature now
Admits the noonday spell,
The linnet songless on the bough,
No sound from field or dell.

No beast's low calls, no bird's gay chime,
No murmur from the soil
While nature rests a little time
From all her lovely toil.

Leaden Shoes

THE metropolitan summer girl wears 24 ounces of clothing. It appears that this excessive weight is caused by the shoes, which tip the indicator to eight ounces, just one-third of the weight of the entire outfit.

Something should be done about that. Isn't there danger that the work of lifting four ounces of slipper every time a foot is raised will wear out the girl?

A four-ounce hat and a six-ounce dress are ponderous enough, but with shoes that register eight ounces per pair—well, the situation looks serious. The toil involved would make the girl lose weight herself—only she doesn't seem to have much to lose.

Great Passages from the Bible

"Praise Ye the Lord"

(Psalm 148)

PRAISE ye the Lord. Praise ye the Lord from the heavens, praise Him in the heights.

Praise ye Him, all His angels: praise ye Him, all His hosts.

Praise ye Him, sun and moon: praise Him, all ye stars of light.

Praise Him, ye heavens of heavens, and ye waters that be above the heavens.

Let them praise the name of the Lord: for He commanded, and they were created.

He hath also established them for ever and ever: He hath made a decree which shall not pass.

Praise the Lord from the earth, ye dragons, and all deeps:

Fire, and hail; snow, and vapours; stormy wind fulfilling His word:

Mountains, and all hills; fruitful trees, and all cedars:

Beasts, and all cattle; creeping things, and flying fowl:

Kings of the earth, and all people; princes, and all judges of the earth:

Both young men, and maidens; old men, and children:

Let them praise the name of the Lord: for His name alone is excellent; His glory is above the earth and heaven.

He also exalteth the horn of His people, the praise of all his saints; even of the children of Israel, a people near unto Him. Praise ye the Lord.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

SOME say the convicts are being petted too much, and others say they ain't getting a fair deal at all because some of them ain't allowed to write for the magazines any more. Well, I don't know about it, but there's a good story that is told by the folks that think the convicts are petted too much.

At one of the real stylish prisons, where there is a radio in every room, a new guest was being dressed in. He was in for life, and he had to fill out a blank about himself. One question asked was: "What trade or occupation do you prefer to learn and practice during your stay with us?"

And he answers: "Steeplejack, aviator, traveling salesman or bunion derbyist. Ain't partickular which one, and would like to practice all four."

Sold!

AN ORGANIST, having become a motor car dealer, and having no catalogue at hand when his first customer arrived, pounced despairingly upon an organ advertisement in a newspaper, memorized it hurriedly, and said to the patron:

"This car has 36 pistons, including five combination foot, five thumb, one adjustable, two acting in key-check, a balanced pedal to swell, wing pressure such as pedal flue-work, 3½ in. to 6 in., reeds 8 in. and 15 in., great flue 3½ in., swell flue 3½ in. The drawstop jambs are at an angle of 45 deg., the stop handles being of solid ivory. The thumb pistons are of solid ivory, slightly concave, and the foot pistons of gun-metal. The wind is generated by a Discus blower coupled direct to a Bull motor. There are 24 couples and—"

"Stop!" cried the enthusiastic customer. "I'll buy that car."

And That Was That

THE Eastbourne express was packed with people bound for the coast.

In one first-class compartment a lady, not content with a seat for herself, had spread the greater part of her belongings over another.

A courtly old gentleman entered the coach and politely asked the lady if he could move the things.

"Dear me," she protested, "you are a nuisance, and I am one of the director's wives, you know."

"Indeed, madam," came the suave rejoinder, "and even if you were the director's only wife, I would do exactly the same again."

War Anywhere Disastrous

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

President Coolidge delivered a message on Decoration Day of this year in which he pointed out the fact that no matter where a war might break out in the world it would be prejudicial to this country.

War is simply lawlessness and destruction and the commercial interests of the United States today are so widespread, our investments and trade relations are so far reaching that it is almost impossible to conceive of any conflict anywhere on earth which would not affect us injuriously.

The President also stressed the fact that the United States is engaged in warfare only for the protection of American citizens. It is incumbent upon every nation to protect its own citizens.

Unfortunately the plan of Woodrow Wilson for a league of nations did not receive universal support. While this writer enthusiastically supported Mr. Wilson's idea he holds no brief for any one plan.

Equally to be approved are the efforts of Secretary of State Kellogg to conclude a treaty with European powers for the complete outlawry of war. Just so we arrive at a stage of civilization where war is not countenanced and glorified it makes no difference by what route we get there.

Mr. Coolidge also laid stress upon the best argument of the most intelligent pacifists, to wit, that "the chief defenses of America lie not in her armed forces but in the industry, prosperity and patriotism of her people; these are of far greater importance than preparedness."

The same day at Thiaucourt, France, Gen. Pershing addressed an audience where he said that "millions of graves cry out against war and the big nations must show the way to durable peace."

He continued that war threatened civilization because of the "fallacious theory that war is an essential element in the national policy of a government," and an erroneous belief that nations become great through aggressive undertakings.

Gen. Pershing insisted that history disproves that the expansion of one modern civilized nation at the expense of the other can be permanent.

"There would appear to be no longer any reason," he said, "why the leading civilized powers could not agree among themselves to the general principle of the elimination of war as an avowed instrument of national policy."

It need not interfere with the necessities of reasonable armament he said, "nor the fulfillment of consistent obligations."

The day is coming when public opinion, that final arbiter of destiny will rapidly turn against war.

A Bird Call

THE universal kinship of bird, beast and man is not all dream stuff nor poetic fancy.

The theory of their mentality has a respectable defense among the psychologists.

Hence we do not filch our speech from the violent ward when we resent the ruthless and indiscriminate killing of our featherd kin by men who are neither sportsmen nor nature lovers.

Recently I visited a state game preserve and saw great coops containing thousands of beautiful ring-necked pheasants. From this preserve some 16,000 birds are taken and liberated annually.

Well and good! Reasonable game shooting is reasonable.

But here and there in the coops were poles standing some eight feet high and on top of each was a steel trap set to catch the hawks and owls that might come to carry away a baby pheasant.

My companion that day was one of the greatest bird scientists in the world. His name is familiar in every ornithological class room in the country.

He spoke of the cruelty of the traps and said that his institution regularly received dead hawks and other birds from that preserve, and they came with their legs broken and mangled mercilessly.

Moreover, he said he would wager that not one out of fifty of the birds caught in those traps would molest a pheasant, young or old.

Hawks are not all chicken hawks. Most of them feed on d structive field mice. My frie examined the crops of 1,293 haw and found fowl in only four them.

And how the poor birds are murdered! Nine hundred hawks were killed on one September day in Southern New Jersey.

Let us stop this slaughter before our skies are as entirely denuded of the graceful hawk as they are now of the once multitudinous passenger pigeon.

Here is a task for the National Association of Audubon Societies and its allied organizations throughout the country.

As my friend and I stood looking at the imprisoned pheasants we saw a bald eagle, the American emblem, Lindy high in the heavens sailing along like a majestic viking of the air. And my friend remarked, "He is nearly 'The Last of the Mohicans.'"
